Hindu Revival and Sri La Sri Arumuga Navalar

Hindu Festival in U. K.

(Our London Correspondent)

In 1860 Sri La Sri Arumuga Navalar left for Madras and bought a big printing establishment now established at Madras. This is housed at 300 Mint St, Madras, and is known as Navalar Vidyanupalane Yanthira salai, Indeed the most popular Tamil work Thirukkural — wh ch has hitherto been published in over 60 languages—was first published in a form originally a century ago by Arumuga Navalar. He also published the "Thirukkovaiyar" — the mystical poem of St. Manikka Vasagar and other works over a hundred years ago.

Chidambaram is the Rome of South India and it was here that Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar decided to establish Hindu Schools where children could be taught Hinduism and their mother tongue Tamil and also preachers could be trained to teach and preach Hinduism.

Navalar tapped first the Jaffna's rich circle; he also availed himself of the generosity of South India, specially the Nattukottai Chettiars and the Heads of the Hindu Maths—to establish the Hindu Schools at Chidambaram. These schools are now in a flourishing state—under the guidance of the present trustees of the school.

Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's lecture tours to Madurai, Ramnad, Thiruvavaduthurai, Madras, Chidambaram and other shrines helped in spreading the "Vydeeka Dharma". After listened to his prasangams people began to give up eating meat, making sacrifices in temples, having fire-works in temples and engaging the services of "Deva Dasis" (nautch-dancers). He made significant changes in the life of the common man as well as that of the preacher of Hinduism. By stopping the sacrifices of goats at Nallur Kandaswamy temple and proposed sacrifice at Chidambaram temple, he ushered in an important reform by exposing the preachers who did not observe their religion and attacking Hindu preachers as well as the hypocrite preachers of Christianity.

Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar upheld the sacredness of the Vedas as well as the Agamas. He wanted people to sing the sacred hymns of the Four Acharyas — Saints Manickavasagar, Thirugnanasambandar, Thirunavakkarasar, and Sundaramurthy and inspired them to resuscitate the—then dilapidated shrines which were adored in hymns sung by the Saints, for instance, the shrine at Thirukketheswaram in North Ceylon to which hymns were dedicated by Saints—Thirugnanasambanda Nayanar and Sundaramoorthy Nayanar. So was the Shiva temple at Nahuleswaram in North Ceylon. Navalar urged their resuscitation. Today these shrines have been rebuilt There is a society that functions known as the "Thirukketheswaram Restoration Society" in Ceylon.

It was due to Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's inspiration that the Saiva Paripalana Sabhai, the foremost Hindu Association in Jaffna was founded in 1889—80 years ago; the Jaffna Hindu College was established in 1890—and the 'Tamil Sangam" was founded in 1899—at the Navalar School, in Vannarpannai, Jaffna The 'Tamil Sangam' established in North Ceylon was the model on which the Madurai Tamil Sangam which exists at present was founded in 1901.

Not long after the Hindu Board of Education was founded in Jaffna, to establish Hindu Schools — inspired by Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's example.

Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar has been regarded by his contemporaries as an 'Avatar" and by posterity as a Saint. In fact many great writers in South India and Ceylon have described him as the fifth Saint—next to the four cardinal saints of Hinduism. He has been known as the Champion Reformer of Hinduism by the present generation. Very few could be found like him. He led

Centenary Exhibition at Attiaar Hindu College

A very colourful and educative exhibition was held on the 17th instant at Neervely Attiaar Hindu College. Mr. K. Kanagasabapathy, Educational Advisor, Jaffna opened the exhibition after the Principal of the College welcomed him in a short speech. He said he was glad to be present to open the exhibition and he was glad that opportunities for self-expression and initiative were provided for children by such activities He was impressed by the exhibition which had many sections, English, Geography, History Art, Needlework, Woodwork, Basketwork, Science (with separate section for Physics, Chemistry, Biology and General Science. and separate enclosures for Music and Art The students and the teachers had evinced a lot of interest in making the exhibition a unique event in the history of the College. Most of the exhibits attracted the attention of the visitors.

Letter to the Editor

"RELIGION & LANGUAGE"

Sir,

Saivite Hindus are in the face of an all embracing reminder of the greatness of Navalar but those of us who repeatedly harp on the greatness of Tamil as a badge of racial superiority should not overlook the simple fact that Navalar himself emphasised the divinity of Sanskrit and the recent articles on Navalar by a senior Don of the University of Ceylon makes this clear The articles of the Don also showed to what extent Navalar used English in the defence and spread of Saivite Hinduism in its pure form in the face of various temptations from the Christian camp We understand that the Don has produced a fine book on Navalar and suggest that all Hindus with means purchase and periodically read it for if Navalar goes up in our esteem to become someone like a 'Nayanar', then works about him written by men eminently befitted for the task assume the status of 'Puranas'.

Today the problem is not conflict with Christianity but a small reduction in the ranks of Hindus with a low social status who are trying to turn Sinhalese and Buddhist with a vengeance on the religion and language front. The ideal is of course for something to happen that would make the converts realise by themselves the magnitude of the offence they have committed in disowning Lord Siva and His various manifestations In the alternative a modern version of Navalar campaigning in Sinhalese is urgently wanted. This Navalar working in Sinhalese, English and of course Tamil can work to make all Ceylon realise the greatness of Saivite Hinduism and also work to see that desirable social changes come about without splitting society again as long as we Saivites pray in such fashion as to make beholders feel that we look upon our Gods as favour-granting divinities with a peculiar status assigned to each of them by our prayer traditions. We cannot blame adherents of other faiths for turning Hindus for a day with the idea of becoming recipients of divine favours the easy way. We must learn to live and pray the Navalar way. Navalar taught not only children. He was one of the greatest adult educator of all time. Knowledge, clean and sensible thought and behaviour and honest and decent religious life were part and parcel of the Navalar system. Our patterns of worship and living must reflect the high standards of inner cleanliness Saivism demands from its adherents

Sign Boards and instructions to devotees in temples may be in all three languages viz. Tamil Sinhalese and English but it goes without saying that each devotee would prefer praying in his own mother-tongue Will a Tamil devotee be committing a sacrilege if he prays in English? I don't think so. Sanskrit and Tamil must be put on a par as far as Saivite Hinduism is concerned and devotees must help one another to go higher and higher along the four fold path available to all Saivite Hindus Language and literary efforts are only vehicles for this purpose. Books on Navalar

MOUNTING THE MOON

The heavenly body that regularly revolves around the Earth once about every twenty nine and a half days (29·53 days to be exact) called the moon, however, was not revolutionary when the two American Astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin in the most daring feat of mankind set foot on it while the third member of the Expedition, Michael Collins, was patrolling space in orbit. The moment of man's mightiest movement was reached when the heroes of heavenly flight acknowledging the great Grace of God stood on the surface of the moon in the midst of not living beings but craters and rills, mountains and those darker and smoother areas traditionally described by the misnomer 'Sea'. It was a total triumph, a symbol of the sustaining capacity of man to score victories in the teeth of trials and tribulations. Man has moved up in his majestic stature and America the leader of the Free world can take legitimate pride in being at the helm of this historic mission. Computations of the data made available by telescope and common knowledge have made man think of the Moon, the Satellite of the Earth, as a barren waste without atmosphere and water and, therefore, without any chance of animal or vegetable life being possible. American Astronauts have in their daring expedition made on - the - spot study of some of the features, obtained many-more details with the help of machines, and have thus opened a new chapter in the exploration of space. Mankind is in deep debt to America and her heroic space mission headed by the incomparable 'Trio, Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins. May the Almighty God's blessings continue to elevate mankind.

Hindu Revival.....

a life of exemplary celebacy devoted to Hinduism for over 30 years

A society for Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's cause was founded last year. It has installed a statue for him at Nallur, his birth-place. Both in Ceylon and South India his anniversary celebrations have been observed by various Hindu Associations for several years. We of the British Hindu Association of Gt. Britain, celebrated Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's Anniversary celebrations last December for the first time. We hope to do so this year too.

It will be fitting to plan Sri la Sri Arumuga Navalar's Centenary Celebrations — that could be celebrated by the Hindus—who live all over the world in 1979 – 10 years hence.

APOLLO—11

Exploring the Moon

BY A J.H.C. STUDENT

John F. Kennedy, late President of United States of America, following the historic flight of Gagarin declared, 'We have to consider whether there is any programme now regardless of its cost, which offers us hope of being pioneers in a space project.....If we can get to the moon before the Russians we should' and he was very unhappy about being second to the Russians. He even told the period in which the mission must be completed. It was a decade ago that said period began. And the prophetic remark of him is now on the verge of completion

The Moon

As the moon revolves and rotates at the same speed in opposite directions, we always have seen the same face of the moon, which is a planet some 128,345 nautical miles away from the earth. It is said to be the most beautiful planet that the earthlings can see with their naked eyes and to the astronomers it is an almost spherical shaped craggy, sandy, mountainous, waterless, planet with dominating craters gaping to swallow anything. Some craters have even a diameter of 150 miles. Under the surface of the moon it is believed that there are some sources of water and more particulars will be found out after the arrival of the Apollo 11 crew.

Anybody in need of an exact model of the moon can make contact with the 63 years old, talented Dr. Arthur Wrightman, of England whose models of the moon are said to be very exact and even Americans place their order with him.

EMOTIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The monthly meeting of the Jaffna Psychological Society was held on Friday 27th June at 5 P. M. in St. Patrick's College library with Mr. K. Pooranampillai the President in the chair.

There were nearly 35 members present. After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, Rev. Fr. Michael Francis Joseph M. A gave a talk on Emotional Development. He referred to the development of man as a unity or in totality, though one could split up the development for convenience sake into Physical, Psycho - social and spiritual developments.

The reactions of an individual to various (meaningful) stimuli, he thought could be considered emotions. Some emotions caused delight and some others disgust. The development of emotions depended both on maturation and learning he pointed out.

He traced the various types of emotions and reactions found in an individual from the time of his birth to adulthood.

These emotions were however subject to control like Repression and other healthy forms of diversion such as sublimation etc.

The President offered a few comments after which Mr. C. E. Anandarajan proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer.
