Catholic Church to seek Easter justice with international community.

Colombo Archbishop, Malcoom Cardinal Ranjith said that they are currently exploring the possibilities to reach out to the international community, including the United Nations (UN), to seek justice for the Easter Sunday terror attacks of April 21, 2019 as all attempts made by the Catholic Church to get justice within the country have failed.

Speaking during a virtual forum on January 23 rd , he said: "We have tried our best to get justice from our people within our own context, but all these attempts have failed. Therefore, it does not leave us much room but to explore the possibilities of going international. That means that we will also be going to the UN." "Not only going to the UN, but we will try to influence some of the more pertinent and powerful countries that have a relationship with us, because, as the Catholic Church, we are an international organisation and we have our links all over the world. Also, at my level as a Cardinal, I have my fellow brothers who are Cardinals in different and important cities and countries with whom we will be able to do that," Archbishop Ranjith said.

He further said that "In fact, the legal system operated by the Attorney General (AG) does not seem to consider the recommendations of the Presidential Commission of Inquiry (PCOI) into the Easter Sunday terror attacks. Therefore, we are left with no other option but to go to the international Community." On April 19, 2019, Easter Sunday, three churches (St. Sebastian's Church in Katuwapitiya, St. Anthony's Church in Kochchikade, and Zion Church in Batticaloa) and three luxury hotels in Colombo (Cinnamon Grand Colombo, The Kingsbury Colombo, and Shangri-La Colombo) were targeted in a series of co-ordinated suicide bombings.

Later that day, another two bomb explosions took place at a house in Demalagoda and the Tropical Inn Lodge in Dehiwala. A total of 269 people excluding the bombers were killed in the bombings, including about 45 foreign nationals, while at least 500 were injured.

A PCOI was appointed to investigate the said terror attacks and the PCOI, in its final report, has made several recommendations including the filing of criminal charges against former President and incumbent Government Parliamentarian Maithripala Sirisena, former Defence Ministry Secretary Hemasiri Fernando, former Inspector General of Police Pujith Jayasundara, former State Intelligence Service Director Nilantha Jayawardena, former Chief of National Intelligence Sisira Mendis, and several others.

However, most of the recommendations made by the said PCOI have not yet been implemented. As a result, several parties including the Catholic Church have been insisting on the need to implement the PCOI's recommendations. Inn Lodge in Dehiwala. Worried about vaccine side effects? How to cope

(NC) More people across Canada are getting the COVID-19 vaccine to help protect against the delta variant. If you're finally getting your first shot, you might have a lot of questions around what to expect.

Some common items in the news include concerns about side effects, vaccine hesitancy. Another common question is whether you can take pain and fever medications to combat side effects after your shot.

Knowing what to expect can help you feel more prepared for your appointment. Here's what we know:

1. The process of developing immunity post vaccination could cause symptoms such as fever, pain and/or swelling at the injection site, as well as other systemic side effects that include headache, fatigue, and/or muscle pain. These symptoms are normal and are a sign that the body is building immunity.

2. Whether participants take over-the-counter pain relievers post-vaccination for symptoms relief or not, both Pfizer and Moderna vaccines showed efficacy of over 94 per cent, implying that the use of pain-relief medicines after the shot did not blunt the immune response to the vaccine.

3. Health authorities and scientific professional societies in Canada, USA and Europe, including Health Canada and the CDC, recommend talking to your doctor about using a pain or fever-reducing medication, such as Advil (ibuprofen), following a vaccination should you experience any side effects.

When it's time to get your COVID-19 vaccination, staying informed will help you feel more comfortable and prepared. Once vaccinated, continue to take smart safety measures such as washing your hands, wearing a mask and practicing social distancing. Learn more about pain relief post-vaccine at advil.ca/coronavirus.

Finally getting the vaccine? How to prepare

(NC) Many of us held off on getting the COVID-19 vaccine for a variety of reasons. But with companies mandating the shot for employees, governments requiring it for travel and attractions needing immunization proof from visitors, plenty more people are now rolling up their sleeves.

If you or someone in your family is about to get the shot, nerves might be high. But knowing what to expect and how to best prepare for your appointment can help put you at ease.

Here's what the CDC recommends:

1. Once you approved to get a vaccine, talk to your healthcare provider ahead of time and ask any questions if your healthcare provider is not administering your injection directly.
2. Do not schedule any other vaccinations within two weeks of your COVID-19 vaccination. If you feel ill before your appointment, call ahead and ask if you should still come in or reschedule.
3. Get good rest the days prior to the appointment. Eat a light meal or snack and stay hydrated before your appointment. Rest and good nutrition help prepare your immune system for the vaccination.
4. Ask about side effects. While some people have no symptoms, some could experience headache, muscle or joint pain, chills, fever, and/or fatigue, which generally subside after 48 hours. Plan for several low-key days following your Vaccination.
5. Plan ahead for post-vaccination care by having the essentials on hand in your medicine cabinet. "Aches and fever are common side effects of coronavirus vaccination, and can easily be treated with a pain reliever," says Dr. Jeffrey Fudin. Over-the-counter medications like Advil (ibuprofen) can reduce pain, fever or discomfort associated with the COVID-19 vaccine, including mild aches or arm soreness.
6. Consult with your local clinic or pharmacy to schedule your first and second dose. When it's time to get your vaccine, these steps will help you feel more comfortable and prepared. Remember, even after vaccination, continue to take smart safety measures such as washing your hands, wearing a mask and practicing social distancing. Learn more about pain relief post-vaccine at advil.ca/coronavirus.

Post-vaccine pain management tips

(NC) Whether you're getting your first or second shot to help protect yourself from the delta variant or are part of the specific populations targeted for a third-dose booster shot, many people are receiving a COVID-19 vaccine this fall. Knowing how to prevent pain at the injection site can help you prepare.

Here's what the latest health research states:

- * The CDC recommends talking to your doctor about taking an over-the-counter medication, such as Advil (ibuprofen), for possible pain or discomfort from a COVID-19 vaccination.
- * The British Columbia Centre for Disease Control states that if you are unable to carry on with your regular activities because of these symptoms, you can take pain-relief Medications.
- * The National Advisory Committee on Immunization states that oral pain reliever shouldn't be routinely used before or at the time of vaccination, but that their use is not contraindication to vaccination. These medications may be considered for the management of side effects such as pain or fever, if they occur after vaccination.
- * The Ontario Ministry of Health says that using a cool, damp cloth where the vaccine was given may help with soreness. If needed, pain or fever medication may help with these side effects.

When it's time to get your COVID-19 shot, staying informed will help you feel more comfortable and prepared. While the battle against COVID-19 is not over, continue to take smart safety measures such as washing your hands, wearing a mask and Presidents' new panacea to solve their 72 years of ethnic problems.

Sri Lankan President opening speech on January 18, 2022 detailing his commitments and acceptance of current volatile situations is welcome in paper and words but, whether they would be put into practice and make them a reality is far from certain viewing the past track record of most of the Presidents including Prime Ministers.

The President acceptance of accountability to all the people is a flagrant lie like hiding a pumpkin in a pot of rice. His accountability for the alleged war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide committed during his tenure as Defence Secretary under his brother Mahinda Rajapakse who was the former President have been already exposed and recorded by UN, UNHRC, and Human Rights Organisations like Human Rights Watch, Amnesty International, International Truth and Justice Project, and International Community.

His accountability for Tamils and even for Muslims will always hang as a sword forever until and unless properly remedied through independent investigations and other punitive measures.

His long term development is focused on promises endorsed by the majority Sinhala/Buddhist voters and his prioritization over the dire need of other people particularly the Tamils and Muslims who voted against him.

His statement that Sri Lanka is a nation that respects International Laws and Conventions is a blatant lie and distortion of truth as Sri Lanka has declared its withdrawal from UN and UNHRC Resolutions calling them as interference in the internal affairs of the country. As Sri Lanka is a member of the UN, UNHRC and other International Organizations, it is nothing but a baseless statement to say we are seriously considering to implement those Resolutions.

The statement alleging misconceptions of the International Community flies in the face of several UN, UNHRC and Human Rights Organization's Reports which have recorded the numerous human rights violations against the Tamils for the last 72 years. The statement that "Sri Lanka does not support any form of human rights violations" is another diabolical lie when one recalls the arbitrary arrests of MP Rischard Badiudeen and Hijaz Abdulla including the ban on burial of the Muslims affected by Covid-19. After protests and outcry from all over the world, it was later revoked.

The statement that "Sri Lanka" suffered terrorism for the last 30 years" is partially correct as Sri Lankan citizens particularly Tamils and Muslims suffered the long arm of state terrorism with several pogroms, massacres and genocidal killings of thousands of innocent civilians.

The President's "Request to set aside the dark memories of the past" is one which inflicts pain and anguish to the victims of the war crimes etc., who have been crying for accountability and clamoring for justice which has been rendered with no value to the hallowed human rights primary obligation of accountability which is a SINE QUA NON for recommendation to succeed.

The statement of having liberated 90% of lands " is without any proof or supported by evidence as still 4000 acres of land are under occupation by the security forces with more seizures is currently underway. The recent seizure of land at Kadduvan - Myliddy road by the Army on January 18, 2022 belies this statement.

The agonizing issue of the missing persons, most of them disappeared after surrendering or arrested by the security personnel have been casually and lightly dismissed by the President by hinting that this is normal and can happen anywhere. No one can deny that justice for the relatives of the disappeared has been shutout for 15 years or more and any hope for justice in the future is like chasing a mirage in the desert as water.

The President stated that "He rejected racism" is welcome but it is more than welcome if he applies this in practice. The President's earlier statement that he is a Sinhala Buddhist President belies his assertion and saying that he will work to fulfill the aspirations of the majority Sinhalese.

His recent honouring a Sinhalese girl Yohani Diloka de Silva who won the singing contest in India has been accorded with official welcome and rewards with gifts of land and cash while a Tamil girl from Vavuniya Indugadevi Ganesh who won GOLD MEDAL in the Boxing competition has is yet to be congratulated officially. Thus, the government has demonstrated its policy of racism with this incident.

The statement that "He is preparing to make several Amendments to the Prevention of Terrorism Act [PTA] of 1978" is a decade old promise by earlier Presidents to suit the occasion and audience without any deep and sincere commitments with political determination to carry out same. Hope this will materialize soon this time.

The President has promised to respond positively to the observations made by the International Community, but without promising any response to the commitments made by Sri Lanka in the UNHRC Resolutions which it has rejected as interference to the sovereignty and national security, a hollow defence to shut out the UN and UNHRC's involvements in the human rights violations of Sri Lanka.

The President conclusion that the North and East people wanted economic security is another flagrant lie as the people in the North and East in fact have been waging violent and non violent struggles to ensure their existence, safety and security which was always threatened by the Security Forces and the threat is still existing.

Political security is a pre-requisite for the full enjoyment of economic security and they are not prepared to embrace and accept impunity for the security forces who allegedly committed genocidal crimes against the Tamil people.

The President believes that reconciliation will succeed if and when "Facilities for roads, houses and other infra-fractions are provided to the people." However, without curing the ills of majoritarianism, racism and communalism coupled with the wounds of war inflicted on them during the last 20 years, reconciliation will remain on paper without winning the hearts and minds of the people in the North and East.

By. Thambu Kanagasabai - LLM [London] Former Lecturer in Law, University of Colombo.

The President's speech has ominously omitted the burning unsolved 72 years old issues of Tamils and failed to outline any recommendations, proposals, like meaningful devolution, release of all political prisoners including the holding of long delayed Provincial Council Elections.

President's commitments and his statements including promises reveal his proposed plan of action but, sadly to say they are simply calls without any deep political commitments, determination and credibility to rely on as the blotted past dark records and decisions would show and prove the opposite.

In this respect, statements of James Baldwin are worth quoting "I cannot believe what you say because, I see what you do and the defence of security does not hold water because the world is interconnected." It is to be noted that Sri Lanka deliberately ignored and avoided signing the Rome Treaty of 1992 which deals with the state's liability for war crimes, crimes against humanity etc. and the obligations of the state to prosecute the offenders.

Tips to help you tackle your debt

(NC) The pandemic has taught us that life can be unpredictable. Economic uncertainty about the future means it's more important than ever to have the right tools to respond and adapt to changes in your financial situation, while still taking steps to manage your finances and Debt.

Having a budget is key to feeling in control of your money. A budget helps you know how much money is coming in, going out and being saved. Budgeting helps balance your income and expenses, so you get a clear idea of what you can afford. Before you start, it's important that you take some time to identify your needs and wants. These can differ greatly from one person to another.

Next, create your budget. Use the Financial Consumer Agency of Canada's free online budget planner to help you figure out your priorities and where to cut expenses. It's also great for comparing your budget against Canadians in similar life situations. To make it easier to pay back your debt, it's always a good idea to have a realistic plan. Here are steps to get you started:

Identify what you owe

Make a list and for each debt, list the total amount you owe, your minimum monthly payment and the interest rate.

Decide on a strategy Create your plan — choose a timeframe that's reasonable and affordable. Decide which debts to pay off first, depending on the type and considering things like interest rates. Work directly with your bank and creditors to discuss your financial situation.

Consolidate your debts

You may consider applying for a loan or line of credit to pay off multiple debts with high interest rates. Consolidating your debts means you'll only have to make one monthly payment rather than paying each one individually, and the interest rate could potentially be lower. Contact a financial institution to discuss whether this is an option. Managing money and debt in uncertain times isn't always easy, but there are resources to help you. Find more information at canada.ca/money.

4 tips to enhance your financial fitness

(NC) Like physical fitness, financial fitness can be a lifestyle shift that takes time and discipline. Forming healthy new habits doesn't happen overnight. To help you make realistic changes and build financial confidence, try following these tips.

1. Start small

In the spirit of continuous improvement, focus on the sprints instead of the marathon. If your ultimate goal is to save more money, make a plan that includes shorter-term, attainable goals along the way, such as sticking to a weekly budget. Remember to reward yourself for those short-term wins. Buy that fancy coffee on Saturday after making your own at home throughout the week.

2. Find a workout buddy

You're more likely to stick to your physical fitness routine if you have a workout buddy. Why? A partner keeps you accountable, helps to create a positive and motivating environment, and just makes things more fun. So, challenge a partner, friend or family member to improve their financial fitness along with you.

3. Don't sweat the small stuff

If a sprained ankle kept you from jogging for a week, that's no reason to give up your fitness goals. Maybe you'd try a Pilates video instead of going for a jog.

Likewise, if an unexpected expense like an emergency vet bill or parking ticket means you don't meet your budget one week, it's not the end of your budgeting; maybe it's an opportunity to think about incorporating some emergency savings into your weekly regimen.

4. Use technology to stay on track

The Financial Consumer Agency of Canada offers free online tools such as a budget planner and a financial goal calculator that can make it easier to achieve your goals. While there are other resources out there, be aware that if you provide your banking information to a financial app, it could violate the account agreement with your bank or credit card company and you could be held responsible if there's an unauthorized transaction.

WILL RUSSIA INVADE UKRAINE?

By Charles Devasagayam

The most talked about issue in the world now is the friction between Russia and Ukraine. Russia has been involved in war games at the Russia - Ukraine border and has amassed over 100,000 troops. Actions of Russian President Putin and American President Biden will determine the fate of not only Ukraine, but also the Europe. Tripple effects of a war will be felt throughout the world. The question now is will Russia invade Ukraine?

This is a good chance for Joe Biden to prove that his foreign policy works. He has been repeatedly mocked by his opponents that every single of his foreign policy move has failed in the past, not to mention his haphazardly executed withdrawal from Afghanistan late last year.

His approval rating is only 28 % at the completion of his first year in office. Not only the American people but the European leaders, especially the Members of NATO has appalled by the way the withdrawal from Afghanistan took place. Biden has been repeatedly portrayed as a weak leader and media has reported that America's stance and or image in the world stage has been diminished due to his actions in Afghanistan.

America's two adversaries, namely China and Russia think that this is the best opportunity to test the might of U.S.A. China is waiting to see how U.S will react to Putin in this Ukraine issue. If Biden fails it will be a big blow to his administration and his personal image. If Biden fails, surely it will encourage China to try and annex Taiwan sooner than later. Even China has been telling USA to take its hands off Taiwan just like Putin is telling Biden to leave Ukraine alone.

President Biden has said in the past that he believes Russia's "Putin is a killer with no soul." Whether its true or not when a high profile person from USA openly branding Putin as a killer it affects his image no matter what. Putin may hold that grudge and probably Ukraine is a good arena to teach Biden a lesson. Biden has predicted on January 19 th that "Putin will move in to Ukraine" but again said that " Minor incursion" may prompt discussion over consequences. "Its one thing if it's a minor incursion and we end up having to fight about what to do and not do," Biden has told reporters. "But if they actually do what they are capable of doing with the forces amassed on the border, its going to be a disaster for Russia, if they further invade Ukraine.

"Ukraine is a country in Eastern Europe. It is the second largest country by area (603,628 km2) in Europe after Russia, which borders to the East and North-East.

It has a population of 44.13 million according to 2020 world bank statistics.

In Ukraine 77.8 percent are Ukrainians and 17.3 percent are Russians. Religion wise 87.3 percent Ukrainians follow Christianity according to 2018 statistics.

Until 1991 August 24 th, Ukrainian was part of Soviet Russia. Although Ukraine is now a separate country, Russia wants to keep it under its influence.

When that attempt failed Russia forcibly annexed Crimea in March 2014. It should be noted that Ukraine is the poorest country in Europe. Therefore, in order to improve the economic condition of the country Ukraine in 2016 January applied for the Economic Component Of The 'Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Area' with the European Union.

Russia is telling the West to keep its hands off Ukraine. It has a point, says some observers. When Russia sent Missiles to Cuba, then the US President John F. Kennedy warned that those Missiles should be removed within a certain period of time from its region of influence and Nikita Khrushchev thus obliged and narrowly avoided nuclear war over Cuba, in 1962. So one can argue that there is nothing wrong when Russia demands the same in its region of influence.

Also, Russia expects that Ukraine shouldn't join NATO. According to NATO rules if any of its allies attacked by another country, namely Russia, then it has the responsibility defend that ally. At the same time western countries argue that a country should have the freedom to choose its destiny, in this case join the group of nations (NATO) if it wishes to.

This is the underlying issue that led to this standoff in the Eastern Europe. Basically, its also a power struggle between Russia and the USA and its allies in the Europe and sadly Ukraine has caught up in the Middle. In the meantime, Canadian special forces operators have been deployed to Ukraine amid rising tensions between the NATO military alliance and Russia. The Canadian special operations presence is part of an attempt by NATO allies to deter Russian aggression in Ukraine, and to identify ways to assist the Ukrainian government.

This forces will also help evacuate the Canadians and Diplomats in case Ukraine involved in a full-scale war. Canada's foreign minister, Mélanie Joly, departed Sunday (Jan 23) for a week-long visit to Kyiv, Ukraine's Capital and bilateral meetings to reaffirm Ottawa's support for Ukrainian sovereignty.

"The amassing of Russian troops and equipment in and around Ukraine jeopardizes security in the entire region," Joly said in a statement. "These aggressive actions must be deterred. Canada will work with its international partners to uphold the rules-based international order and preserve the human rights and dignity of Ukrainians." According to the Canadian government, Ottawa has committed roughly $700 million in assistance to Ukraine since Jan. 2014, including provision of non-lethal military equipment and sending rotations of 200 Canadian Armed Forces troops every six months to train Ukrainian security forces.

On Friday Jan. 21 st , Canada's deputy minister of foreign affairs, Marta Morgan, met with U.S. deputy secretary of state, Wendy Sherman, to pledge "continued close coordination to deter further Russian aggression against Ukraine." According to U.S. officials, Morgan also agreed that "further Russian invasion of Ukraine would result in massive consequences and severe costs including coordinated, restrictive economic measures for the Russian Federation." If at all Russia invades Ukraine that will bring chain reactions that will not only bring chaos in Europe but world will be affected in many ways especially in this pandemic time.

Tamil National Alliance in Sri Lanka ramps up support for anti-China campaign

P. T. Sampanthar

The Tamil National Alliance (TNA), Sri Lanka's main Tamil parliamentary party, is stepping up its involvement in the US-led anti-China campaign following a visit to Washington last November by a TNA delegation writes P.T. Sampanthar in WSW.S. Led by parliamentarian M. A. Sumanthiran, the delegation met with senior US State Department officials.

The ostensible reason for the meeting was Washington's concern over "human rights" and "reconciliation" issues following the protracted communal war in Sri Lanka that ended in 2009. The real reason was to intensify US pressure on the Rajapakse government to break its relations with Beijing and fully back Washington's geostrategic interests.

The TNA's latest denunciations of China, which are being echoed by other Tamil parties and the media, were made in a lengthy January 8 interview with Sumanthiran on the Morning website. Asked about potential Chinese projects and investments in Sri Lanka, the TNA parliamentarian bluntly declared: "[T]he Chinese are not welcome in the North or the East."

Sumanthiran's comment were in response to a two-day visit by Chinese ambassador Qi Zhenhong to the northern Jaffna and Mannar districts in mid-December. The trip was to investigate possible Chinese investment. That the TNA parliamentarian reacted in such a provocative manner to what would generally be considered a routine event, underscores the rising geopolitical tensions in the region between the US and India, on the one hand, and China on the other. Sumanthiran said that he opposed China intervening in the North and East because the TNA's "political quest is based on human rights and democracy," concepts he said, that "are very alien to the Chinese." Chinese influence in the area "will hinder progress" for political rights, he declared.

The North and East are "not located in the South China Sea," he continued, but close to the Indian coast and therefore not "the legitimate defence concerns of China... [A]llowing Chinese space in the North and East" would be a "hostile act towards India." Sumanthiran's rhetoric is a repetition of Washington's and Delhi's aggressive propaganda against China. The US feigns concern over "democracy" and China's "human rights violations" while hypocritically concealing its own suppression of democratic rights, including its brutal repression of immigrants.

Sumanthiran's reference to the South China Sea echoes a key element of the US-led provocations against China. The US denounces Beijing for its "illegal" South China Sea claims and, on the pretext of "freedom of navigation," sends US warships into the waters around Chinese-controlled islets.

Sumanthiran ignores US war crimes and its escalating attacks on democratic rights along as well as the Modi government's violation of human rights in Kashmir and other states and its whipping up of anti-Muslim sentiments.

India's so-called defence concerns about China's presence in the North and East are part of its long-standing opposition to Chinese influence in what it regards as its backyard.

In order to pursue these ambitions, India has become a frontline state against China, joining the US-led quadrilateral military alliance (QUAD) with Australia and Japan. For its part, Beijing has sought to counter these moves by seeking to build its own relations with other South Asian countries.

The TNA's claim to be fighting "for political rights based on human rights" is a sham. The main concern of this bourgeois party is not the democratic rights of Tamil workers and the poor, but securing privileges for the Tamil elite which it hopes to obtain by slavishly embracing the US and India and their geopolitical agenda.

The US and India endorsed Colombo's 30-year war against the separatist Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) which saw the military kill hundreds of thousands of Tamil civilians. Washington only began raising concerns about war crimes and numerous human violations during the final months of the bloody conflict that ended in May 2009.

These concerns had nothing to do with human rights but the US used the issue to try and pressure President Mahinda Rajapakse's government to distance itself from Beijing.

To this end Washington sponsored several resolutions in the UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC). When this and other manoeuvres failed, it orchestrated a regime-change operation to oust Mahinda Rajapakse and install the pro-US Maithripala Sirisena as president in 2015.

After Mahinda Rajapakse's younger brother, Gotabhaya Rajapakse, became president in November 2019 and his cash-strapped government turned again to Beijing for financial assistance, the US, India and other major powers renewed its "human rights" campaign.

Washington backed another UNHRC resolution calling for a war crimes investigation which was passed at its March 2021 session. The TNA and other Tamil parties supported the US moves. In a December 27 interview with the Tamil Nadu-based Puthiya Thalaimurai television network, Sumanthiran declared, "If India is able to arrange the devolution of power in the North and East ... it can prevent the intervention of China in the region."

தமிழீழத் தாயக அழிப்புக்கு பின்னால் இருக்கும் இதயம் நோகவல்ல தமிழர் அரசியலும் மூளை சிவிரக்கும் சிங்கள அரசியலும்.

தி. திபாசுரன், M. A.
