Language of Flowers.

GOD'S BLESSING IN THE FLOWERS.

Relics ye are in Eden's bowers,
 As pure, as fragrant, and as fair,
 As when ye crown'd the sunshine hours,
 Of happy wanderers there;
 Ye dwell beside our paths and homes,
 Our paths of sin, and homes of sorrow,
 And guilty man where'er he roams,
 Your innocent mirth may borrow.

The house she dwelt in was a sainted shrine
 Her chamber window did surpass in glory
 The portals of the dawn; all paradise
 Could, by the simple opening of a door,
 Let itself in upon him; pathways, walks,
 Swarm'd with enchantment, till his spirit sank,
 Surcharged, within him, overblest to move
 Beneath a sun that wakes a weary world
 To its dull round of ordinary cares;
 A man too happy for mortality. WORDSWORTH.

Yes, this is Love, the steadfast and the true,
 Th' immortal glory which hath never set;
 The best, the brightest boon the heart e'er knew
 Of all life's sweets the very sweetest yet!
 O, who can but recall the eve they met
 To breathe, in some green walk, their first young vow,
 While Summer flowers with moonlight dews were wet,

Let me not to the marriage of true minds

Admit impediments : love is not love,
Which alters when it alteration finds,

Or bends with the remover to remove :
O, no ! it is an ever fixed mark,

That looks on tempests, and is never shaken
It is the star to every wandering bark,

Whose worth's unknown, although his height be taken
Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks

Within his bending sickle's compass come :
Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
But bears it out even in the edge of doom.

The ancients attributed marvellous properties to many of the precious stones, and particular gems have been marked by their own distinguishing fables. The same notions have more or less continued down to times not long past. We give in tabular form the different months and the stones sacred to them with their respective legendary meaning. # TEA.

HOW few in the present day know what it is to enjoy a cup of really fine tea. As paste is to diamond, so is the miserable, flavourless rubbish, which finds its way into the majority of British teapots, compared with the grand old "brews," the pride of our grandmothers 30 years ago. And why is this? Why is one so often compelled in the drawing-room of otherwise decently conducted households, to swallow unpalatable stuff that would have disgraced our grandmothers kitchen? The reason is not far to seek. We have of late years been so deluged with puffing advertisements, vying with each other to lower the public taste, that a large portion of the public believe they can obtain the finest tea at a price for which absolutely only the most inferior quality can be purchased.

China has long since ceased to send us her finest teas, and we now, to a great extent, depend upon India and Ceylon for our quality. The development of the cultivation of tea in Ceylon, during the last five or six years, has been enormous, and we now obtain from that island a certain proportion of tea that rivals the fine old China teas.

It has rested with the Mazawattee Ceylon Tea Co. to take advantage of this new production of fine tea from Ceylon, and to supply a want long felt. By skilful selection and blending of the finest Ceylon growths, they have given fresh life to the taste for fine tea, which had so nearly become extinct in this country.

The rapid growth in the demand for these Mazawattee Blends is wholly without parallel in the history of the tea trade. Established rather more than three years, the outturn of these teas is over 100,000 packets per week, representing an annual output of nearly 6 million packets. They have more than 3,000 Agents throughout the United Kingdom, and there is now no excuse for people to drink rubbish themselves, or to give their friends such a wretched apology for tea, as should bring a blush to the face of every right-minded matron.

The two higher qualities 3/- and 2/6, are composed entirely of Ceylon Tea, the lower qualities 2/2 and 2/- are blended with Indian and other growths, which supply the briskness and pungency that are lacking in the lower qualities of Ceylon Teas.

MEDICAL & ANALYTICAL REPORT.

I certify that I have analysed samples of Ceylon Tea submitted to me by the Mazawattee Ceylon Tea Co., Eastcheap Buildings, London.

A detailed analysis is appended.

I find that the theine upon which the refreshing properties of tea depend, is quite equal to that in the finest teas imported, whilst the tannin, which, from its astringency makes ordinary tea disagree with many constitutions, is in very much smaller quantities in the Mazawattee Ceylon Tea.

The volatile oil in this tea gives a peculiarly agreeable aroma, and many Dyspeptics who are obliged to avoid ordinary tea, find they can drink this with great relish, and feel no nervousness or distress after its use.
