JAFFNA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4. 1902

THE CORONATION CELEBRATION IN JAFFNA.

Elsewhere we publish an earnest appeal, for funds towards the Coronation celebration in Jaffna by the Rev. Mr. W. T. Garrett, the Hon. Treasurer. We hope the required amount will be easily collected before the time of the celebrations. The maximum amount demanded from each subscriber is Rs. 10, which is within the means several people in Jaffna to pay. The payment of this amount carries with it the privilege of having, free of charge, "4 tickets to the Agricultural Show and 2 tickets to the Pandal where can best be viewed the sports, the fireworks and the play, and two tickets to the concert." The contribution of lesser amounts also carry similar privileges, although proportionately to a lesser extent. The persons, therefore, who contribute towards this Fund, not only help to carry out the celebration of the Coronation of His Majesty King Edward VII, which in common with His Majestys loyal subjects in all parts of the world we are bound to celebrate, but also partly receive the worth of their contribution in those tickets for which otherwise they will have to pay, if they desire to witness the different forms in which the local celebrations are to be carried on.

The Golden and Diamond Jubilees of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria were celebrated here in 1887 and 1897 respectively with very great pomp and enthusiasm, and the amounts expended on local celebrations were much larger than the Coronation festivities are now estimated to cost. The Coronation is the most important event in the career of a sovereign—more important than the Jubilees. What the wedding of a couple in private life is to Silver and Golden Weddings, the Coronation is to the Golden and Diamond Jubilees. We are, therefore, bound to celebrate the Coronation of our Sovereign in Jaffna in a fitting manner, not only as a demonstration of our loyalty but also as an expression of our joy at this important event. We should like to see the whole of Jaffna—not only the town but also the whole Peninsula—"enfete" that day.

We are aware that the people of Jaffna were recently put to great expenses and over-reached themselves in according an enthusiastic reception to His Excellency the Governor when he visited here in March last to open the first section of the Northern Railway and have also subscribed largely towards the Permanent Memorial fund. It is, we believe, owing to this circumstance that the Coronation Committee have curtailed the expenditure connected with local festivities to Rs 1500 and have fixed the maximum subscription at Rs 10.

We have in this connection to observe that till recently the burden of finding ways and means for the reception of Governors and the celebration of the Jubilees of the late Sovereign fell mainly, if not solely, on the Headmen and Government officers in Jaffna. But taking advantage of the association of the general public in these matters, the headmen are not now so prompt in the payment of their subscriptions as they were some years back. Except in the Districts of Point Pedro, Chavakachcheri, and the Islands, the Headmen of the other Divisions of this Peninsula did not contribute their full share towards the Funds for the recent reception of the Governor and the Permanent Memorial. Unless the Head of the Province takes some interest in these matters, the Headmen will continue to be indifferent. If the Coronation celebration in Jaffna is to be a success, and especially if the Agricultural Show and Industrial Exhibition which is to be an important feature of this celebration is to prove a benefit to the people, the Headmen must be made to take some interest and collect exhibits for the Show, and this can be done only by some influence being brought to bear on them through the Government Agent. Otherwise, we make bold to predict, the Exhibition will prove a miserable failure, considering also the short time allowed for its organization and preparation.

PEACE AT LAST.

News of the conclusion of Peace in South Africa reached here on Monday the 2nd Instant. Need we say how welcome and joyful the news was to the people of Jaffna. Every British subject has reason to feel joy at the termination of the Boer war which has raged for about thirty two months, costing immensely in men and money on the British side and causing untold misery and loss to the Boers. The details and conditions of peace which has now been concluded after protracted negotiations are not yet to hand; but of one thing we may be certain: that British supremacy has been established in South Africa and that the Boers of the late Republics of the Transvaal and Orange Free State have become British subjects owing allegiance to King Edward VII. The Boers have undoubtedly won the admiration of the world by the heroic stand they have made against fearful odds and by keeping at bay, even after their number had been reduced to seven or eight thousand men, the well-equipped and disciplined British army of 250 000 men, which is without a parallel in the history of the world. But they had to yield to the inevitable and make the best of the circumstance. Of all the prophecies made in regard to this war the one made by Mr. Kruger has been fulfilled. He said, at the commencement of hostilities, that the price which the British would have to pay before subduing the two little Republics would shudder humanity. How well this has been verified! This war has already cost the British about 200 million pounds sterling and several thousands of human lives, not to speak of the expenses the peace conditions will entail. In the estimation of the vast majority of the British public the establishment of British supremacy in Africa is worth this sacrifice; and it remains to be seen whether this question of supremacy has been settled once for all.

Balance available for war charges.....£59,968,000

Revenue freed by suspension of Sinking Fund.....	£13,861,000
Total.....	£73,836,000
Total war expenditure, as above	£228,984,000
Raised from taxes.....	£ 73,836 000

Debt incurred.....£155,148,000

To meet this debt the Government has borrowed by means of War Loans, Treasury Bills, and exchequer Bonds, a sum of £159,000,000, of which the cash proceeds are £152,415,000. It would appear from the above figures that, had there been no war, the Government at the end of the financial year 1902-3 would have been faced with a deficit of £16,057,000, and, therefore of the £76,025,000, raised by supplementary taxation, only £59,968,000, is available for war purposes.

More than two thirds of the war expenditure has accordingly been raised by loan, of which thirteen millions (Treasury Bills and War Loan) will have to be paid in 1902-3; ten millions in Exchequer Bonds on August 7, 1903; fourteen millions on December 7 1903; thirty millions on April 5, 1910, and ninety-two millions will be redeemable after April 5, 1923.

That is to say that at the end of twenty years, we shall still have £92,000,000 of debt on account of the war to pay off, the interest on which at 2 1-2 per cent., will be £2,800,000 per annum which will have to come out of the taxes.

The total interest on war debt up to March 31, 1903, is set down as £9,367,000.

The supplementary taxes for war purposes are expected to yield the following sums for the four years:—

Tea 2d per lb.....	6,158,000
Tobacco 4d per lb.....	3,929,000
Spirits 6d per gallon.....	650,000
Sugar 4s 2d per cwt.....	11,200,000
Coal 1s per ton exported.....	3,405,000
Corn and flour 3d & 5d per cwt respectively.....	2,650,000
Beer s. per barrel.....	5,351,000
Spirits 6d per gallon.....	2,655,000
Income tax 2d more in 1901 2 1d more in 1902-3	39,377,000
Glucose.....	150,000
Stamps 1d additional on cheques.....	500,000
Total.....	£76,025,000

MR. T. PONNAMBALAM PILLAI.

United India says: Happy is the State which is served by patriotic and capable servants; and Travancore seems to be particularly happy in this respect. Mr. T. Ponnambalam Pillai's enlightened zeal in the cause of industrial development, as Conservator of Forests, is well-known. His recent lecture on the Forest produce of that State has been noticed in almost all important papers in India. In that lecture he brought to public notice the enormous natural wealth of that State in its extensive forests, and drew pointed attention to the fact that abundant raw material for the manufacture of paper was to be found in local forests. The fibre of the bamboo, the wild sugar-cane, the refuse of sugar-cane mills, the aloe, the plantain, also a number of plams and cycads, which are now allowed to rot on the roadsides or burnt, could be utilised in paper-making. The common dhobie's earth is to be had in abundance, and from it could be obtained the caustic soda so essential in paper-making. Thus, there were in the country, said Mr. Ponnambalam Pillai, the two most important materials required for paper manufacture. The lecture has apparently borne fruit by stimulating the industrial awakening of Travancore. Mr. K. Narayana Iyer, B.A., the Superintendent of the School of Arts in Trivandrum, is, we are informed, making a very interesting experiment in weaving into cloth the thin and silk-like fibre that can be obtained from the stem of plantain trees which are very abundant in Travancore. If the experiment succeeds, Ma. Narayana Iyer will confer a valuable blessing on the poorer classes of Travancore. We hope that Mr. Narayana Iyer and Mr. Ponnambalam Pillai will make it the joint mission of their lives to lead to abundant practical fruition the industrial awakening which, in Travancore, as in other parts of India, is casting glimpses of dawn.

A MAHARAJAH'S VOYAGE TO ENGLAND.

For more than one reason we have to single out for notice the departure of His Highness the Maharajah of Jeypore to attend the Coronation in London. His Highness sailed in a specially chartered steamer. The vessel was thoroughly overhauled and purified according to Hindu rites. Ganges water was taken on board. Special kitchens were constructed. The family idols were carried. In short, every arrangement that could be thought of or devised was made to carry the Maharajah and his numerous suits to London in the most orthodox style. We learn that by special stipulations entered into with the owners of the vessel, every facility has been provided for the observance of rigid Hinduism in its truest sense. All this means lavish expenditure, and concerns most the Maharajah and the shipowners. It may indirectly affect the subjects of Jeypore when so large a sum as the Maharajah has now proposed to spend over his visit is diverted from normal uses towards something which is not going to benefit them in the least. But the example of the Maharajah is bound to be of far-reaching consequence to the Hindu Society. Though many are amused at the extravagance of his outfit and his curious preparations in the style of Noah, who built an ark to escape the deluge, few can fail to realise the important concession which a highly influential member of society and a devoted adherent of orthodoxy as the Maharajah, is making to the cause of the sea-voyage question among the Hindus. Everybody is not going to have the costly luxury of the Maharajah when he undertakes a similar voyage, but it is a great thing that, helped by the Maharajah's example, he will have the shastric difficulty considerably reduced, and social obstacles too removed, though of necessity he will have to make the voyage in his own humble way. It is said that at Apollo Bunder, the sea was propitiated prior to embarkation and that the occasion was marked by the present of a number of books written in Sanskrit and Hindi handsomely bound, which proved the legality of sea-voyage. This affords the cue to the seemingly strange conduct of the Maharajah, and now that he has shown by his examples and personal sacrifice that sea-voyage is not contrary to the teachings of the shastras, we hope the good cause will be greatly helped and advanced in future.
