SAIVA PARIPALANA SABHA'S 76th SESSIONS' RESOLUTIONS

The steady work that has been done by the Sabha for the last seventy six years has to be maintained and continued particularly at this time when several changes in the political and educational spheres are taking place observed Sivanerikavalur Muttusamipillai when he was re-elected President for the ensuing year at the Annual Meeting.

"Our Sabha greatly rejoices the formation of a dom of worship to all religionists).

Our Sabha feels gratified that the Hon'ble the Minister for Education has thought it wise to reconsider the matter of the publication of text books under Government monopoly. Our Sabha which was founded in 1888 was incorporated under the provisions of Ordinance No 17 of 1931 and is therefore the oldest among all the Hindu Organisations in Ceylon. It has a claim to foster and protect the rights and privileges of the people who profess the Saiva faith. It may also be mentioned in this connection that it was this Sabha which founded the leading Hindu National Institution, the Jaffna Hindu College. Our Sabha was also publishing books on Saiva faith and Tamil Literature for the use of the Hindu students from its very inception.

Our Sabha therefore requests the Hon'ble the Minister for Education to

ELECTIONS AND AFTER

BY SOURI RAYAN

Now that the elections are over the question what next has to be faced. The lessons of the past have to be considered in the light of the present and the future shaped accordingly. The party that came to power on the crest of the wave of racial hatred has been dethroned by another which stands for a united Ceylon in which all races and religions will be treated alike. It is true it had succumbed to the wave of racialism once when this nasty monster raised its ugly head but providence kept the party free from power to inflict any harm on the victims of the party then in power. The immediate needs that Ceylon faces today are—security both external and internal, peace and good will among all sections of the inhabitants so that progress and prosperity may be achieved in the social and economic sphere in which the Tamil speaking people have a large part to play. The effects of discrimination against the Tamils are obvious and their leaders have a great responsibility in rehabilitating their fellow Tamils and ensuring them their Fundamental Rights that they have lost. In this the good will and reasonableness of the majority community are essential and no acts or words of provocation should be committed by the Tamil leaders. Their duty is to present the true realistic state of the Tamils and co-operate with the majority for the good government of the country and not

CHERA INSCRIPTIONS OF SANGAM AGE

By Iravatham Mahadevan

There are six short labels on the rock-cut beds on the floor of the caverns. Three comparatively longer inscriptions are found on the brow of the overhanging rock. I had expected to see illegible and 'mostly damaged' inscriptions. I was however pleasantly surprised to find that even though the rock is weather-beaten and some letters are damaged or missing here and there, it was not very difficult to make out the inscriptions which are written in bold and legible characters.

The language of the inscriptions is Tamil. The script used is Brami which can be assigned on palaeographical grounds to the end of the second century A. D. The short labels cut on the floor of the caverns mention the names of the Jain monks who occupied the rock-cut beds or the names of the donors. One of the labels mentioning a Ponvanikan Karu-ur deserves special notice

What however arrested my attention was the longer inscriptions cut on the brow of the overhanging rock. As I began to spell out the names like Atan; Irumporai Katunka and Ilanko, I realised with utter astonishment the almost incredible fact that I was indeed looking at the records of the ancient Chera Kings celebrated in the Partirru-pattu and other Sangam classics. The Tamil kings of the Sangam Age have at last come into the limelight of history and archaeology from the twilight of fables and ballads.

It may be of interest to describe the method adopted for copying the inscription. As the rock is weather-beaten and the inscription had worn thin, the conventional method of taking an estampage has not produced satisfactory results. A scaffold was erected and the inscription was traced out carefully on rolls of tracing paper from which the present facsimile was prepared.

The text of the inscription may be translated as follows: 'This is the abode (Uraiy) of the Jain monk (Amannan) Chenkasapan of Yarrur. The Prince (Ilanko) Katunko, the son of Perunkatunkon, the son of the King (Ko) Atan Chettra Irumporai ordered (these beds) to be cut. The second inscription is also of four lines and is very similar in contents to the first. However it appears to mention two Princes (Ilanko), with the names Katunkon and Ilankatunko.

The third inscription is of two lines. It is damaged and appears to mention Irumporai who is described as the son-in-law (Muraimakan) of one Avi.

All the three inscriptions together yield a firm geneological table of the Chera royal line for three generations. The ruling king was Atan Cheral Irumporai. His son was

HUMAN HARMONY

The New Year Visuva-vasu that has just appeared seems to be ushering in, true to its name, a period of hope and goodwill. The first week of the month of Chithirai by a happy coincidence was the occasion for every religion in this country to celebrate a significant event pertaining to that faith. This auspicious augury is very much in the fitness of things at a time when the need for national unity, communal harmony and general goodwill is most felt. The Year Kurotha (1964) was critically severe on the people at all levels; so much so that the agonized nation was patiently waiting for a change that would eliminate the dreaded state of tension.

In this context it is heartening to note that a movement has been inaugurated in a most unostentatious way to hold inter-religious conferences in the cause of dedication to human harmony. The first meeting that was held in the metropolis of Colombo provided the necessary inspiration for a second conference to be organised in the Northern Capital.

Knowledge of the self is of the utmost importance in avoiding evil. Religious practice requires that the devotee must know himself. Hence where every individual becomes a true devotee to his Faith practising his religion and progressively detaching himself from material attractions, the common factor that is essential for creating harmony will be found. Man should therefore develop his spiritual life in order to create the congenial environment for human harmony to be established. This is our New Year message.

Inter-Religious Conference in Jaffna

Organised single handed by Mr. V. F. Gunaratna, Retired Public Trustee, a conference in which leading and distinguished Hindus, Buddhists, Christians and Muslims participated was held at the Vaidheswara Vidyalyaya Hall, Vannarponnai yesterday at 6 p. m, presided over by Sivaneri Kavalar P. Mottuamipillai, President of the Jaffna Saiva Paripalana Sabha.

Mr. V. F. Gunaratna, Sir Kandiah Vaithianathan, Mr. S. Nesiab, M. A., and Mr. M. M. Yoosuf Principal, Osmania College, spoke respectively on Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam and Christianity.

Sir Kandiah Vaithianathan praised the laudable efforts of a well-known worker in the cause of religious and racial harmony, Mr. V. F. Gunaratna, and wished the movement all success.

The Chairman wholeheartedly welcomed the noble service of Mr. Gunaratna and declared that the basic ideals of all religions had certain common features such as toleration, love and helpfulness and that therefore any sincere effort in the direction of harmony was bound to bear fruit.

Mr. A. E. Tamber and Mr. R. N. Sivapirakasam also spoke.

Debate on Address of Thanks

Member after Member from the Opposition Benches had tried to belittle the responsive co-operation that has been effected between the U. N. P. on the one hand and the F. P., T. C., M. E. P., S. L. S. S. P., on the other. The spokesmen on the Front Benches effectively met the unfounded allegations of the Opposition. Mr. A. Amirathaling M. P. for Vaddukoddai challenged the S. L. F. P. to deny whether that Party had not wooed the F. P. to form a Coalition Government. Mr. T. Sivasithamparam M. P., Vavuniya dwelt on the change of tune of the Leftists. The debate will end today.

Total Prohibition Urged

include the Sabhai nominees in the bodies which he may appoint for the publication of text books on Saivism and Tamil Literature.

Our Sabhai owns a well established and well equipped Printing Press which is utilised for the publication of Saiva religious books and Tamil books and has earned a long standing reputation for the same. Therefore our Sabhai requests the Hon'ble the Minister for Education to grant it permission to print those books as usual.

Our Sabhai requests the Hon'ble the Minister for Education to be good enough to give preference to the following items when he introduces any change in the existing system of Education.

(a) To appoint efficient teachers to teach Saiva Religion and (b) to create a Saiva atmosphere in the schools where Saiva children are in a majority.

(b) In most of the schools in the Northern region more than 90% of the children are Hindus. Therefore it is fair that a proportionate representation is given to Hindus on the Advisory Boards that may be formed for the administration of these schools including nominees of our Sabhai.

(a) Our Sabhai condemns the publication of books which contain views contrary to the tenets of the Saiva faith and always welcomes books which are of a high cultural standard. In order to assist the Sahithiya Mandalam in this responsible work the appointment of a nominee of our Sabhai as a member of this body is desirable.

Abolition of Tree Tax

1. "Crime has increased greatly in the Northern Province after the introduction of the Tree Tax System more than thirty years ago. Practically the spot were every tree from which toddy is tapped serves as a tavern and the number of people who drink toddy has enormously increased. A large percentage of students and women too have become addicted to this pernicious habit. When the last S. L. F. P. Government proposed to introduce the tree tax system in the South of Ceylon, it was vehemently opposed by the religious leaders and the laity. As a result, the proposal was abandoned and the country was saved from that course. That which is bad for the South is equally bad for the North too. The Authorities who have disallowed this pernicious system in the South would be amply justified in abandoning it in the North too as early as possible."

2. The Sabhai also requests the Hon'ble The Prime Minister to pass legislation to introduce total prohibition in the whole of Ceylon."

Chera Inscriptions

Perunkatunkon who had two sons with the names Katunkon and Ilankatunko, both described as Princes (Ilanko). It is interesting to compare these historical facts with the data gleaned from the Padikams of the Patirrupattu. These are relatively late compositions which have however preserved a genuine historical tradition at least with respect to the names. The generally accepted view is that there were two contemporary branches of the Chera royal family. As the names Irumporai and Katunko show our inscriptions belong to the Junior line (Ilaya Vazhi).

It is more difficult to reconcile the inscriptional genealogy with that recorded in the Padikams of the Patirrupattu. Atan Cheral Irumporai is perhaps the same as Antuvan Cheral Irumporai celebrated in Puram 13. Nothing is heard of Perunkatunkon as a Chera King in the Sangam works. As he is not given the title of koor or Ilanko in the inscription, he might have perhaps predeceased his father. Katunko is probably the same as Selvakkatungo Vali Atan (who died at Chikkarpalli) sung in the Seventh Decade of the Patirrupattu and in Arm 216, Puram 8 etc. These conclusions are quite tentative and would require further confirmation. The temptation to identify Ilanko as the author of the Silappadikaram should of course be resisted as Ilanko was the common appellation for all the Princes and as there are reasonable grounds to believe that the epic belongs to a later date.

It is indeed difficult to exaggerate the importance of these inscriptions in the study of Tamil history of the Sangam Age. We need no longer rely on the slender and insecure evidence of the Gajabahu synchronism, nor merely oppose the government merely because they the Tamil leaders are in the Opposition. The good of the Tamil community and of Ceylon as a whole should engage their attention. Freedom from want, freedom from ignorance, freedom from disease, freedom from fear and harm, freedom to practise one's own religion and freedom to think and express in private and public should be assured to every citizen. The rule of Law and order should be actively maintained and an independent judicial service that will mete out justice without fear or favour should be maintained; no room should be given for thuggery and hooliganism and people who rouse up the passions against any section of the community in terms of race or religion should be suppressed vigorously. People who incite violence should be dealt with by law, enforcers—Police should not be interfered with in the discharge of their lawful duties and made to feel their responsibility to the state. The Ministers of Religion and the Maha Sanga should be honoured and Language and Religion not dragged down into the mud of party politics. These and many more will have to be faced by our representatives in Parliament which is for all and every citizen and not for a few only.

on the circumstantial evidence of the Indo-Roman trade to fix the place the Sangam age in the Christian Era. The inscriptions are a spectacular confirmation of the sober view that the Sangam Age of the three Tamil Monasteries belongs to the first three centuries of the Christian Era. It is no longer possible to doubt the historical truth of the existence of the Tamil Kingdoms of the Sangam Age. The inscriptions also settle the question about the capital of the Cheras as at least one branch of the family ruled from Karur (Vanji). The other important facts emerging from the inscriptions are that the Brahmi was the Tamil script of the age and that Jainism had already reached the Tamil country and received royal patronage.
