XXXI Presenting Purse to the Pandian

(உணவாக்கியூர் அருளிப் பதை)

While the Brahmins were away in other provinces there was a deficiency of sacrifices and by consequence no rain, but the king distributed money liberally among the poor who were sufferers until there was at length no more money. On which deficiency occurring the king went and applied to the god; but receiving no answer he became troubled, and remained fasting and prostrate all night in the temple. During the night the Lord appeared in the form of religious devotee, and said, "You have neglected the Brahmins so that they have ceased to offer sacrifices, which is the cause of a want of rain; but for the future you must take care to honor the Brahmins; and if you want money, take this purse, from which you may draw as much as you please." The Pandian on receiving the gift placed it on his throne, on honoring it as the God's donation, drew from it large supplies of money without exhausting the contents. With this money he ornamented the temple; gave large presents to the Brahmins, and had sacrifices duly performed. After which there was abundance of rain; distress was removed and public affairs were prosperous.

XXXII. Sale of Bracelets

(கடைபயல் விற்றல் பதை)

The wives of nobles, to the amount of eight thousand, were condemned to be born at Madura owing to the cause of their husbands for previous fault, in which Siva was concerned,

He at that time collected a large quantity of bracelets from them, which he now came to sell in the streets of Ma-dura and all the women crowded to get a pair of these arm-rings, which however immediately fell off again as they had done on a former occasion. Hence the traffic was discovered to be a sacred amusement of the Lord.

XXXIII. The Eight Great Meditations

(அட்டமரபித்தி உபதேசித்தல் பதை)

When Siva was seated under shade of a banyan tree, in Kalasa, instructing the rishis, the six nurses of the six-headed muburnam of Siva (Kartkeya or Subramanya came and implored to be taught the eight forms of prayer. Siva told them to reverence Parvati, and then they would learn the prayers well. But while He was teaching them they did not pay proper attention in consequence of which the Lord, denounced as a malediction. "That they should become large stones under banyan trees (ficus religiosa) near Madura, for a thousands years." On this they fell down before Him and besought His mercy. He replied, "After a thousand years I will come to Madura and restore you to your proper shape." Accordingly they suffered the punishment and after the thousand years were past, the Lord came in the shape of a religious devotee restored the petri fictions to the human form, and taught them the eight great meditations or prayers, after which they prospered.

AHIMSA WEEK

49th Year

Sir.

I wish to bring to the kind notice of your readers that the Ahimsa Week movement organised by me on a minute scale on May 1, 1925 has made gradual progress during the last 48 years and has spread to 45 countries.

Main objects are to propagate the observance of the Ahimsa Week during the first week of May every year all over the world and to get cattle slaughter in Sri Lanka banned.

I kindly request all nations to observe the Ahimsa Week for the 49th time. The following three precepts have to be observed during the week:

- 1 To refrain from killing
- 2 To take only Vegetarian diet
- 3 To give rest to animals from 11.30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and to refrain from travelling in vehicles drawn by animals during that time.

In order to fight hunger throughout the world and to reduce the killing of innocent animals for man's food, I launched the World-Wide Fruit Growing Campaign in 1967. I appeal to all nations to plant as many fruit trees as possible on May 1st every year commencing at 6-30 in the morning. I kindly request the authorities of all the temples, churches and mosques to announce the time by the pealing of bells.

It is my fervent hope that the success of this humanitarian project will bring about Unity and Goodwill among all the nations and eventually World Peace.

Yours faithfully
W. S. Fernando

MESSAGE OF CONDOLENCE

By Mr. T. Somasundaram, Advocate
President, Saiva Paripalana Sabai

A Great National Leader—a great democrat is lost to the Nation,

The passing away of Mr. Dudley Senanayake has created a great void in the national, political, social and religious life of this country. With his death, the future of Prohibition in this country is in the balance. Mr. Dudley Senanayake was the leader of the Prohibition Movement.

Mr. Dudley Senanayake was an honest and sincere political leader. He was respected even by those who opposed him vehemently in politics.

During his 35 years of political career which he chose in preference to a legal career, the late Mr. Dudley Senanayake worked for the welfare of the people of this country especially for the peasants. As Minister of Agriculture and as Prime Minister four times, the agricultural development of this country received priority, and if we now are marching forward towards self sufficiency in rice, the greater part of the credit will certainly go to Mr. Dudley Senanayake.

Mr. Senanayake never looked at a problem from a communal angle. Everything he did was for the welfare of the people of Sri Lanka and he showed no discrimination whatsoever on the ground of caste, creed or religion. In him, we have lost a true patriot, a national leader and a democrat in its real sense. The Saiva Paripalana Sabai joins with the people of Sri Lanka in expressing its deep sorrow on his untimely demise. May his Soul rest in Peace.

Jaffna,
19th April, 1973.

1. Placing on record the Council's deep sense of sorrow at the death of Mr. Dudley Senanayake, one of the country's foremost leaders and one who had striven for National Unity and Inter-communal and Inter-religious harmony.
2. Co-operating in regard to steps to perpetuate his memory.

God is everywhere. If so, the question may be asked: why do all people not see Him? This is similar to blind people not seeing the sun (even in full daylight though the sun is present before them in all its glory). The Lord is of resplendent nature but is invisible to those who are spiritually blind. Just as the sun makes the matured lotus to bloom so does God bestow the eye of Ananam (knowledge) to the soul which is fit (to receive it) and appear as the Light within the light.

VISIT OF VERITABLE VALUE

The distinction in political achievements that is associated with the name of the Premier of India, Srimathi Indra Gandhi, is not the only criterion of her capacity to solve difficult problems. She had won world reputation for her superior statesmanship when her country was placed in peculiar plights owing to the intransigence of outside agencies. Hence the usefulness of Srimathi Indra Gandhi's state visit to this ancient Isle that is linked to Bharat by a long tradition of common cultural heritage. To become, twice successively, the beloved Premier of the biggest democratic country in the world hallowed by the patriotic achievements of Mahatma Gandhi, is a feat of sufficient significance. With such a fund of fertile and fruitful experience, Srimathi Indra Gandhi is visiting our country whose Premier Srimavo Bandaranaike has already significant achievements to her credit. It is, therefore, to be hoped that the talks between these two Premiers will bear fruit to the common advantage of both countries. Sri Lanka gracefully greets Srimathi Indra Gandhi on this great occasion.

COGENT CONCLUSIONS

The vast concourse of disciplined mourners that thronged the thoroughfares of the metropolitan City of Colombo on April 21 to see for the last time the remains of a revered leader, in effect reflected the true feelings of the people in their plight in the present environment of circumstances. The image of a sincere patriot was being portrayed in the minds of the millions who braved weather, thirst, hunger and physical inconvenience for several hours at a stretch as the 'ransvige' passed along in majestic mourning and as fire stricken out of sandalwood consumed the lifeless body of a laudable leader and left behind the traditionally little handful of ashes. Such was the solemnity of the silent homage, the orderliness of the highest order that had prevailed throughout the performance of the last rites.

Commendably competent was the capacity of the Police Force in tackling a situation of gigantic dimensions. The City Council rose to the occasion by planning and executing a successful system of ad hoc sanitary arrangements. First Aid facilities were efficient to the utmost.

Here-in lies a great lesson, a true indication of the teachings of death. The departed leader desired that the people should get united; that was his last wish. The unending processions of mourners signified that the sad event of the passing away of a distinguished patriot had made the people realize the need for goodwill and harmony. Shall we, even at this late hour of our political confusion, pause for a while and ponder what a wholesome remedy would a feeling of goodwill all over be for all our ills? The country is in economic difficulty. The cost of living appears to be a growing challenge to stable economy. Now is the time for all of us to think more of our country's needs, as had the departed leader felt, and gird our loins to combat the challenge of a worsening economy.

and rejoiced, In obedience to the injunction he set out on horse back, unaccompanied and after passing hills and forests, came to the northern bank of the river Vygai, which river was then very full and impassable. While halting on the northern bank the Lord appeared in the night put on the Chera King's forehead the Saiva mark and carrying him over the river, opened the north gate and showed him every part of the temple. On returning and dismissing the king, the Lord put on the gate a seal having the impression of the bullock, the vahanam of Siva, and left all carefully closed. In the morning when the guards came they were astonished to find the seal changed during the night and going to the other gates found that there the seals which had been applied were not altered. A report being made to the Pandian king, he came to inquire into the circumstances and with a view to discovering how this wonder had been accomplished, he gave himself to fasting and prayer, with prostration on the ground in the temple. The Lord appeared to him in vision, and explained to the king that He Himself had admitted the Chera king, and sealed the gate with the bullock seal. The king made this miracle known everywhere, and after living sometime happily, he associated with himself his son named Rajendra Pandian, causing him to be crowned; and he himself then obtained a place of note in the Swarga-Logam (or heaven of Indra); that is he died.

some mutual regulations of peace and good faith were made by the two kings. The Chera king designed to give his daughter in marriage to the Pandian, which the younger brother of the latter named Raj-Manjam understanding, went to Kanchi and surreptitiously by craft effected that marriage for himself. In consequence the Chera king conceived an idea of installing his son in law on the Pandians throne; and with this object sent with his son-in-law his own uncle and a large army. When the army had arrived within two yojana (or twenty miles) of Madura the king learned the object of the invasion, went to the temple and said, "this Chera king, Your devotee with whom good faith was plighted, is now coming to dethrone me, what ought I to do?" While he thus prayed a celestial voice was heard saying, "Go out tomorrow with all your army and I will give you the victory". The next morning the king accordingly left the fort, with an army which resembled a continuous river running into the sea. The two armies joined battle, and there was a severe combat for the space of fifteen Indian (or six English) hours. The people of both armies were fainting for thirst, where in the midst of the Pandian's troops a water booth became visible, and the Lord within, in the shape of a Brahmin, caused Ganges in His crown of hair to pour forth the streams which he received in his hands, and however numerous were the people that came for water they were all instantly supplied.

DUDLEY SENANAYAKE

(FOUR TIMES PREMIER OF SRI LANKA)

IN MEMORIAM

Seven and thirty years of his life did he give to his country men,
In the Service of Sri Lanka, her children, but then,
Fate has deemed otherwise, he has now laid down the pen,
That wrote his political scriptures, till, his very end.

The flags fly at half mast, the drums, beat low,
Dudley's life has ended, he breathes no more,
Fate has intervened and death's inevitable blow,
Has shattered his life, O' his from is no mere.

His body lies still in a state of calm repose,
Knowing not around it who comes and goes,
Seeing it's mortal remains, the grief from the heart that flows,
With Love and sympathy thinking it knows not and yet, knows,

Past Premier of Sri Lanka, his was a heart of gold,
That spoke for itself, the future to unfold,
With it's democratic spirit, Lanka's people to mould,
With a spirit of selflessness, faith and courage bold.

Stalwart of the Opposition, his presence was felt by all,
Never did he flinch for a moment to answer duty's call,
To uphold the spirit, of Democracy, lest disaster befall,
O' it's pillars of justice tolerance and equality for all.

His was a spirit of compassion and love towards fellow beings,
Who knew him for what he was, and sincerity was the sheen,
That emanated from within his heart, to many this was seen,
O' True Son of Sri Lanka, her soul was his very being.

Who is he? from where did he come? to where doth his spirit blow?
What is life? how did it come in and to no where go;
This is man's mystery, yet those who this secret know,
Smile, when the soul from it's cage doth in happiness go.

Released from mortal bondage to the realms of light it flies,
There, looking from above freedom's lap it lies,
It's earthly kingship over, in vain doth man then cry,
Gazing at it's house of clay when the tenant elsewhere lies.

Death is then but a mere lifting of the veil,
Of life's mystery from thence the spirit will sail,
Across the ocean of light, there the Truth, will prevail,
Of life after death, O' then why must we weep and wail?

All perisheth save the Truth, the One the Eternal light,
That gives life to all creation, accelerating the mortal's flight,
Back to it's Source of Origin, and dispelling darkness into Light,
Goes it's immortal being, ever glorious, resplendent and bright,

Then weep not ye O' mortals, for death is certain for man
Though ye realize not this truth, light from darkness to scan,
Hence pamper not thy bodies, for brief is it's life span,
As what dies not in thee, is the Divine spark in man,
