To hold this outward-orging instinct as the only authentic and well-known as the 'lokayata' (wide-spread, popular) philosophy in this country. In recent times it passes as Positivism, Pragmatism, Existentialism and is widely favoured and appeals to the common mind. But the gross illogicalities that float on its surface are lightly skipped over. But the scientist also says that our senses do not reveal the exact nature of objects but present them as colured by the perceiving instruments and hence they appear diversely to different creatures according to their peculiar sensuous make-up. Indian philosophy barring the Charvaka system ever strove to keep steadily before the mind's eye the depths of the Infinite which yawn as we look beyond every step. Just a little analysis and we realise that to be shut in by the thick curtains of the obvious is to be cut off from all action. Negate memory and imagination, hope and trust inference and invention, past and future, the subtle and the remote and man becomes a cripple. The unapparent is the abiding postulate of man's dynamism, day's routine proceeds on butes of matter are the drafts on the long-term deposit of the unseen, by withdrawals from this unlimited trust property. Secularism or exclusive earthliness may charm for the nonce but as a solely valid way of life cannot stand scrutiny.

4) The outstanding mark of this age is explo siveness all round. Mastery of nuclear fission or atomic explosion has armed it with the power of total destruction. In arnibilating experts nestle close to time the Archkiller and Finisher of all. The explosion of population again puts the Race in imminent peril of famine and intensifies the strife for survival. Till recently Man seemed of all species to be possess-ed by the primal creative out. The times are hence beset with crises, bristle with fresh problems. And this temper naturally seizes the rising genera-tions. India and the East have ever recognized repression of self to lie at the root of social life and the duties of civility To-day under Western influence a bloated ego and a free rein given to impulse count as the perfection of self-growth.

Ordinarily it would be prudent to avoid com-menting on the alleged incident of 'attempted poisoning' to which ThavathiruKunrakud Aidigal had referred, as reported in some newspapers in Lanka and South India. But the fact that persistently much publicity has been given to this unfortunate affair demands a proper explanation of the whole incident. Now that the report of the Police has been published in the news papers it will be quite in order to make some useful comment on this subject.

And the investigation by vealed that there could not have been any attempted poisoning. If poison is administered to anybody be he ascetic or active politician or any other person, the act cannot be anything but criminal.
To make an allegation that such an attempt was made is therefore a very serious matter. Thavathiru Kunrakudiadigal has simply treated the country that invited him for a series of lectures during the Great Centenary Ctebrations with scorn and suspicion a reaction that should not have taken place during the Gandhi Centenary Celebration.

Thavathiru Kunrakudiadigal would have done better had he explained the life of Gandhiji first and foremost in the con-text of Mahatma's faith in Truth as his religion, in a full fledged politician was in evidence; a politician making the allega-Ascetic or politician, life cannot be blanced. That is the politician's putting a whole country into disrepute? These are some of the doubts that haunt the Siddhanthi when an ascetic has made a public complaint that poison was detected selected.

Ascetic or politician, life cannot be blanced. That is the politician's privilege. The result of this regrettable incident is the clearing of all the doubts about the role of Thavathiru Kunraku diadigal he is more a politician than an ascetio.

Let us eschew during the year violence for the solution of all problems of injustics, slavery and conflict. Let us keep this one year for the understanding Police, according to the and practice of Gandhian Veerakesari report, has re-non-violence. Let us denon-violence. The establishment of separate schools for Advan ced Level Classes is needed and these schools could in due course have G A Q & G S Q classes. This measure will be beneficial to students in very many ways. As science is advancing rapidly the syllabuses are revised again and again and the teaching staff of the Advanced Level classes should be competent enough to teach the revised syllabuses. such special staff should be scholarship examinations conducted by Cambridge and Oxford Universities have very talented and highly qualified staff to teach these students Our secondary schools cannot be compared to the Grammar Schools in England. It will take centuries for our schools to reach the standard of the Grammar school. Therefore establishing separate schools for Advanced level classes is the best at the moment to have quick results.

In the teaching of Science the fundamentals should be taught thoroughly. It is unsatisfactory to note that teachers drill the students to solve standaru type of problems and when there is a slight deviation in the type of questions the students get puzzled. The students are trying to build a tall tower on a ric-ketty foundation. While marking a bundle of scripts it is observed that many candidates make the 205 31
