EDITED AND TRANSLATED BY DR. W. H. D. ROUSE, HEADMASTER OF THE PERSE SCHOOL, CAMBRIDGE

NOTE.—This recension is based on the following materials, for all which I have to thank the generosity of Mr. Donald Ferguson, late of Colombo.

(1) A Singhalese MS., denoted by C^a, containing text and commentary. It commonly confuses cerebrals with dentals, and generally writes the nasal with ° (anuswāra) before all consonants alike.

(2) An edition in Singhalese characters (C^b), published in Colombo in 1886, which has enabled me to correct nearly all the mistakes of the MS.

(3) A rough transcript in Roman characters, and a draft of translation, both which I have found useful in doubtful points.

W. H. D. ROUSE.

CAMBRIDGE,
May 16, 1905.

NOTE ON MEDHAṆKARA

There are at least four Medhaṅkaras famous in the literary history of Ceylon. The first flourished about 1200 A.D., and was the author of the 'Vinayārthasamuccaya' in Siṅhalese. The second was the Ārañña Medhaṅkara, who presided over the Council held by Parākrama Bāhu III. about 1250 A.D. The third was the scholar to whose care Parākrama Bāhu the IVth entrusted his translation of the Jātaka book into Siṅhalese 'that it might be preserved in the line of the succession of his pupils' ('Mahāvāṅsa,' chap. xl., ver. 86). The fourth was our author, Vanaratana Medhaṅkara (who was also the author of the 'Payoyasiddhi,' also in Pali), and who flourished under Bhuvaneka Bāhu the Ist (1277-1288 A.D.).

Sanḅharāja Medhaṅkara, author of the 'Lokappadīpakasāra' (Journal of the P.T.S., 1882, p. 126; 1896, p. 43), was different from all the above, and wrote in Burma ('Gandha Vāṅsa,' p. 67). He is called Nava Medhaṅkara (ibid., p. 64).

Medhaṅkara is mentioned as the author of the 'Jina Carita' in the 'Saddhamma-saṅgaha,' ix., 22 (Journal of the P.T.S., 1890, p. 63), and in the 'Gandha Vāṅsa,' pp. 62, 72 (Journal of the P.T.S., 1886).

[C^a = MS.; C^t = printed text. Mistakes of the MS. which are corrected in the Commentary I have not noted. Nasals, often written with the symbol equivalent to anusvāra, I have assimilated to following consonants, where this was done in the printed text; on the same authority, I have corrected confusions of n and ṇ, which are very common.]

GLORY TO THE BLESSED, THE HOLY, THE ALL-WISE BUDDHA.

- 1 Worshipping with obeisance of the head, the supreme lotus on the foot of the Great Being, which provides Nirvāna for the good as honey for bees,
 - 2 the Sun of the Law, dispelling the great darkness of ignorance in the world, the great light shown forth on the mountain of the King of the Law,
 - 3 the lotus of brightness ever growing in the lake of the heart of man, and the moon of the Order, emitting the great shining ray of Precept,
 - 4 I will recite in brief the Life of the Conqueror, a blessing distributed far and wide, desiring ever to keep it in memory.
 - 5 Sweet to those who remember, but hard is the path of bliss; yet what saying is hard in the gaining of wealth?
 - 6 Therefore is this my discourse set out in fair verse, good, honey-sweet, pure, delightful to the listening ear.
 - 7 Listen well, as one drawing water in a pitcher, and for ever enjoy, O ye righteous, who desire never to wax old or die.
- 8 A hundred thousand æons and four ago, there was a city the abode of innumerable beings, who always did good deeds,
 - 9 provided with all manner of treasures, full of all manner of people, crowded with gay shops, adorned with arches and festoons,
 - 10 echoing to the ten sounds, like the city of the King of the gods, called Amara, the Immortal, fair and grand.
 - 11 There once was born of a Brahmin stock, respected through all the world, most merciful, most wise, handsome, beloved,

- 12 a prince called by name Sumedha, who had traversed the ocean of the Veda. This nascent Buddha, on the death of his parents,
- 13 Having beheld the great wealth piled up in hundreds of chambers by the treasurer,
- 14 piled up the treasures, and cried: 'See, my father and the rest of my kin have gone to the world of gods without taking one small coin with them!'
- 15 The Mine of Mercy grew sad at this, and thought:
'Although I have received all this store of wealth, I too must go.'
- 16 He sat down in solitude, in his own beautiful house, examining the blemishes in his body, and thus admonishing himself:
- 17 'Painful is the breaking-up of the body, painful also is its beginning; I am subject to birth, to old age, to disease.'
- 18 With these and like reflections, having seen in many ways the blemishes in his body, he sent the drum beating about the city and sent word to the King.
- 19 At the sound of the drums the beggars flocked together, as bees to a sweet scent, and for seven days he gratified them with the flood of the filaments of alms.
- 20 When he saw that although the precious gifts fell like a shower of snowflakes, the lotus-plantation of treasures was not exhausted,
- 21 amidst the tears of his kinsfolk, as a royal elephant flees from a forest blazing with fire, the great hero departed from his delightful house,
- 22 and came to the mighty Himalaya, perfumed with scents of yellow sandal, camphor, and aloes,
- 23 adorned with blossoming champak and asoka, trumpet-flower and tilak, areca-nut and punnāga, ironwood, and other trees,
- 24 filled with lions, tigers, hyænas, with elephants,
cheetahs, and apes, with horses and other beasts,
- 25 full of the notes of maynahs and sunswans, of swans, herons, and parrots, of pigeons and cuckoos and vultures,
- 26 haunted by goblins, demons, heavenly musicians, gods and fairies, beings full of accomplishment and knowledge,
- 27 shining with great ranges of beautiful mountains all vermilion and sapphire, mountains of silver and gold,
- 28 brilliant with many a tank, provided with steps and

- stages of jewels and gold, with many a nymph divine dallying there,
- 29 irradiated with the spray from hundreds of secret cool cascades, delightful nooks full of fays and Nāgas,
- 30 with flocks of dancing peacocks and festoons of creepers,
and garlands of white sand,
- 31 a treasure-mine of gold, jewels, and pearls, an abode of merit for those who desire it, as bees desire pollen.
- 32 Entered there, the brave one beheld in it the requisites for the ascetic, produced by Him of the Thousand Eyes, fine leaf-huts ;
- 33 he adopted the ascetic garb, and he abode there for the space of seven days, stedfast in the Five Transcendent Faculties and the Eight Precepts.
- 34 In the joy of Attainment thus produced, the holy ascetic one day, passing through the air, saw some people
- 35 sweeping the road. Descending then from the air, he asked the people : ‘ Why do ye sweep the road ?’
- 36 ‘ O Sumedha, knowest thou not ? The Tathāgata Dīparikara has attained to Supreme Might, and has set rolling the Supreme Wheel of the Law ;
- 37 ‘ he makes the Canon of the Law for the world, and has reached the fair city Beautiful, and here dwells in Sudassana.
- 38 ‘ We have invited him with our alms, the ruler of the world, and his four hundred thousand Brethren pure.
- 39 ‘ For his coming, O thou of supernatural might, we sweep the path.’ Thus spoke these people, giving joy to his ear.
- 40 On hearing the word Buddha, the mind of virtues, highly delighted in mind, could not keep in his usual state,
- 41 and the hero, asking a portion of the road which the other had begun, was given a rough place and began to make it smooth.
- 42 Before that spot had been made ready by him, the one Lord of the world, worshipt by men and immortals alike, benefactor of the world, the great sage, entered upon the road with the pious ones.
- 43 Then as he saw there approaching the Tathāgata, blazing with six-coloured rays, happy in heart, he thought :
- 44 ‘ What if I make a bridge in the mud, and prostrate

- myself before this hero, the great sage, with his company?
- 45 For a long time it will suffice for my blessing and happiness.' With this thought, the nascent Conqueror fell down,
- 46 and raising his lovely lotus-eyes, he looked; and again, as he lay there, thus the courageous one thought:
- 47 'Should I wish, I could destroy the endless turmoil of existence, and become a novice of the Order, and enter the noble city.
- 48 'What use in disguise? By the extinction of sin, I having become a Buddha like this Buddha, supreme in the world,
- 49 will ferry the people in the ship of the Law across the ocean of existence, and bring them to the City of Nirvāna, my own happiness being extinguished.'
- 50 Thus thinking, prostrate there in the mud, he gleamed like a golden plantain stem,
- 51 beholding the beautiful form of the Buddha, shining with the six-coloured rays, the hero, jubilant with the joys that arose in him, longed for Buddhahood.
- 52 When he came to the place, and saw the sage prostrate in the dirt, he who had been the Bridge of the World, seeing the other made a bridge for him,
- 53 the hero, the Tathāgata Dīparikara, the one Bridge of the World, the World's one Eye, stood at his head, and spake:
- 54 'In time to come, this man shall be a supreme Buddha, Gotama by name,' and revealed his disciples, his native city, and so forth.
- 55 This said and done, with his Order the pious one did obeisance to him, moving about him rightwise, and offered to him eight handfuls of flowers.
- 56 Having done this, the ruler of the world with his company went to the city named Ramnaka, a place beautiful with monasteries and houses.
- 57 The other, hearing the Conqueror's speech, arose from the dust, delighted, and revered by the hosts of the gods with offerings of flowers and other things,
- 58 and crossing his legs, sat down on the couch of flowers, the most austere, the most wise, Sumedha, conqueror of sense.
- 59 The gods in ten thousand spheres, delighted, praised the hero seated on the flowery couch.
- 60 As he sat, he pondered on the qualities which make

- a Buddha: whether above or below, at the four cardinal or the four intermediate points.
- 61 Thus meditating, he apprehended all the elements of the Law, his own image, and first the Perfections of Giving;
- 62 seeking further and further the Perfections in wisdom, he beheld all the Perfections by his eye of understanding;
- 63 and passing through successive transmigrations, he endured great suffering, seeking Nirvāna in tranquillity by fulfilling the Perfections of Giving;
- 64 this chief of givers was like a magic tree, or a magic wishing-jewel, giving to the world all their desires, food or what not.
- 65 He tore out his beautiful eyes, like stars in the sky, and joyfully gave them to those who asked;
- 66 The flesh of his own body and his blood he gave, as much as the dust of the earth and the water of the sea,
- 67 heads adorned with diadems, great as Mount Sineru, he gave, shaking the earth, and sons and wives to boot.
- 68 He fulfilled the Precepts, the Separation, the Wisdom, all the Perfections, he attained the Vessantasa existence; and being born again from that place,
- 69 he came into being in the fair abode of the gods, the city of Tusita. There he dwelt for a long time, enjoying infinite happiness.
- 70 The gods in humble obeisance, made this request of the greatest of men: 'O mighty one, it is time for thee to become Buddha.'
- 71 He examined time and circumstances, and recognised that it was the time for Buddhahood, then giving his promise to the assembly of the gods, to the forest of Nandana,
- 72 he went with the hosts of the gods, and went to heaven, vanishing from this world amidst their praises, that wise one; vanishing thence, here,
- 73-5 in the picturesque city of Kapila, crowded with great coursers finely caparisoned, full of gaily-decked shops and wares, bright with beautiful tall lordly elephants, adorned with myriads of arches and banners, with spacious halls and watchtowers, with strong gates, the abode of fair women, laughing to scorn even the city of Purinda (India); to Suddhodana, lord of men, protector of the helpless, one of Okkāka's royal stock,

- the abode of many pure virtues, or lotus haunted by bees like jewels on Kings' heads,
- 76 the Most Wise showed in a dream a gold-coloured elephant like the pure moon, with a trunk like a pure white silver wreath, a noble festoon of white lotus ;
- 77-8 he entered the womb of the King's wife Māzā ; lips like bimba-fruit she had, eyes like the flowering blue lotus, her eyebrows like the rainbow an ever-increasing delight, her mouth like a beautiful pure full moon, her breasts like a pair of golden geeses, her feet like fair lotus shoots, the colour of her body shining like the colour of gold ; adorned was she with the ornaments of many a virtue and good custom.
- 79 At the instant of his conception, beings manifold were born, and thereupon protection was assumed by men and immortals.
- 80 Like an image of gold seated in the pericarp of a lovely red lotus, all golden-coloured the chief of men sat cross-legged in his mother's womb.
- 81 Like a red thread strung through a clear jewel, the Wise One is seen causing his mother's mind to blossom.
- 82 At the end of ten months, thus spake the Queen to the King : ' I desire, O King, to go to the home of my family.'
- 83 With the King's consent, she goes to her family with a large retinue, by a road which seemed to be divine.
- 84 Seeing a grove of sāl-trees adorned with a multitude of fragrant flowers, echoing with the sound of clusters of murmuring intoxicated bees, with a flock of bright-eyed birds, which seemed to invite her, the Lumbini Wood, a spacious place of delight,
- 85 she felt a very great desire for that fair spot. So with a charming step, like a divine maiden, she approached the root of a blossoming sāl-tree, and grasped a branch, which of itself bent low.
- 86 At that moment, the pangs of labour seized her ; then her people ran up and surrounded the lady with screens ; this done, they retired apart. Then
- 87 she stood firm, and clinging to the branch by her red hand, soft as cotton, with its row of shining red nails, adorned with fine bracelets and ornaments of gold, brought forth the Wise One ;
- 88 who, his body shining with a golden hue, fair to the eye, incomparable, his beautiful hands and feet fully

- extended, came forth from the womb of the incomparable mother, like a golden goose emerging from a lotus.
- 89 The Brahmas brought a beautiful priceless net of gold, and approaching, received him, and standing before her, said : ' Rejoice, O Queen ! of thee is born a most excellent son.'
- 90 Other men are born with their limbs smeared in filth ; but the excellent lord of men was born pure, like a jewel lovely and priceless laid in a piece of fine Benares cloth.
- 91 This done, down from the sky came two streams of water upon the body of the Beloved and on his mother's body, washing away the pollution to make all auspicious.
- 92 From their hand the delightful gods bringing a skin rug received the hero on a cushion of fine cloth, from their hand the best of men received that lion-king among men ;
- 93 From their hand, a beautiful and pure moon, he stood firm upon the earth, his great feet marked with circles, and gazed with lotus-eyes at the eastern quarter.
- 94 The hundreds of spheres became as one courtyard ; men and immortals together worshipping the Wise One with perfumes and like offerings, and thus they spake :
- 95 ' There is no man like unto thee, O wise one : how then can there be one superior ?' Thus the Lord of the World, seeing in this quarter not one like himself,
- 96 took seven paces towards the nook, and said : ' I am the chief of the world, choicest and best.'
- 97 At the words of this voice, incomparable and supreme, all did worship to the King of men—deities, Titans, and Brahmins, and the great company went to the fair-decorated city called Kapila.
- 98 At the instant of the birth of this noble one, the earth, although able to bear the exceeding great burden of trees, hills, and Mount Meru, and all the water of the ocean, could not bear the weight of his merits, and did quake ;
- 99 dogs sported with deer, crows with owls, in high delight, great serpents with mighty garula birds, and hosts of cats with rats,

- 100 deer consorted with lions as parents with children, and ships sped to their goal in all quarters of the world like the arrow of Sarabhasigasatthā.
- 101 The mighty ocean, and its lines of quiet waves, became adorned with shining lotus flowers of every hue, and its waters became quite sweet ;
- 102 the heavens were filled with festoons of full-blossoming lotuses, the birds left their flying in the sky, the river stood still and flowed not
- 103 by loving union with a sudden breeze, the earth-bride waxed most lovely, adorned withal by the ornament of many flowers scattered upon her by the gods ;
- 104 great trees were laden with festoons of blossoming garlands, and the four quarters, like fair women, shone brightly, clad in sweet-scented filaments ;
- 105 The whole heaven was pervaded with sweet incense most delightfully, gods and Titans, in festal garb, walked about singing together ;
- 106 all spoke kindly, and all the quarters of the earth were serene : elephants trumpeted, lions roared, the neighing of horses was heard ;
- 107 Flutes, and lutes, and celestial drums made each its own delightful sound in the sky ; the great world with its lofty mountains was pervaded by a full and lovely light ;
- 108 a cool breeze, soft and fragrant, wafted pleasure to all people, and those who were afflicted by all manner of pains were set free and at ease ;
- 109 the world was made pleasant by the bright waving of vast plummy fans ; water burst forth from the earth and flowed along ; the humpbacked were upright as they walked ;
- 110 The blind saw how the lame sported and danced ; the deaf enraptured heard the singing of the dumb ;
- 111 the very flames of hell became cool, straightway, the things born in water rejoiced, and became visible therein to sight ;
- 112 the ghosts, faint with hunger and thirst, found food,
and in the dense darkness of limbo there was light ;
- 113 numberless clusters of stars, of suns and moons, shone bright in the sky, and jewels upon the earth ;
- 114 great lotus flowers of all hues burst in full bloom from the earth one above another ;
- 115 ornamented drums, without beat or stroke, gave forth a sound exceeding sweet on the earth ;

- 116 everywhere doors and windows opened of their own accord, and men bound with fetters and chains were set free ;
- 117 then in the Heaven of the Thirty-Three, the company of the gods made merry in much joy, waving their scarves unceasingly and crying,
- 118 ' News ! in the city of Kapilavatha is born a son to Suddhodana ; he is seated upon the circle of the Bo-tree, and he will become Buddha.'
- 119 The mighty and most wise ascetic Kāladevala, the trusted adviser of the wise King Suddhodana,
- 120 after his meal had gone to the dwelling of the Thirty-Three, and there sat him down for the rest of the day.
- 121 He beheld them there sporting in festive costume, and asked them the reason of their joy, and they told him.
- 122 The sage, hearing this as it truly was, enraptured with joy, at once went to the dwelling of Suddhodana,
- 123 and entering, sat down upon a goodly seat, and said :
' They tell me, O great King, that a son is born to thee, incomparable, wise :
- 124 ' I wish to see him.' The King caused the boy to be sent for in his fine array, to salute the sage ;
- 125 But child though he was, by the power of his virtue his fair lotus-feet uprose and placed themselves upon the ascetic's head.
- 126 In that position of the chief of men, no one in the three worlds must be worshipt : if the head of the lord of the three worlds had been placed under the ascetic's feet,
- 127 the ascetic's head would assuredly have burst asunder. He therefore stood with his hands claspt in supplication to the wise Ocean of Virtues, because he had not thought fit to destroy him.
- 128 The lord of men seeing this marvel, done by his own son the god of gods, gladly adored his soft lotus-feet, marked with various devices.
- 129 When the King's great sowing festival came on, the city was adorned like a city of the gods ; and all the people in fair attire gathered at his noble dwelling-place.
- 130 Then the King, at the head of his people, thus fair adorned, took his son adorned with beauty, and with

- a hero's grace went out to the incomparable sowing festival.
- 131 All the nurses went away to look on at the festival, leaving the child alone at the foot of a rose-apple tree, covered by a canopy painted in many colours.
- 132 Seated beneath the canopy, bright with gold, and shining with golden stars, at the root of the rose-apple-tree, the wise one took the opportunity and fell into ecstatic meditation.
- 133 The nurses returning, beheld him seated like an image of gold, and his splendour; and they said to the King, 'Such and such a marvel has been done by thy son.'
- 134 When he heard this of the lotus-eyed one, whose mouth is like the bright moon, he said, 'A second time I must worship him,' and set his head at his son's feet.
- 135 Beside these, other marvels took place also in the world, shown forth by me in due course in the compass of the book, reluctant though I am :
- 136 where were quantities of houses, glorious with all manner of gems, glorious with canopies and couches in plenty, fair with long flights of stairs and wide storeys, made ready to suit the three seasons,
- 137 multitudes of fine houses with rows of pinnacles, one row as it were always defying another, forests of lotus like rays of sunlight, illuminating the lotus faces of the folk ;
- 138 by those walls inset with gems women adorn their bodies without even the reflexion of a mirror ;
- 139 where is seen a circuit painted with whitewash, fair to the eye like Mount Kelāsa,
- 140 where is always seen a moat covered with lotus, with a great circuit of sapphire, set with many gems ;
- 141 there he dwelt, the one all-seeing, until he came to maturity enjoying all delights. In going to the park for sport, upon the high-road
- 142 he saw successively the three states of existence—old age, disease, and death, and was disgusted; on a fourth occasion he saw with pleasure in the same place the welcome form of an ascetic.
- 143 The illustrious one went to the beautiful grove, lovely as the forest of Nandana, thick with multitudes of flowering trees, and echoing with the notes of flocks of peacocks and other birds.

- 144 There the royal chief of men, with a hero's grace, enjoyed the delightful playing, singing, and dancing of fair women like goddesses.
- 145 Seating himself cross-legged on a fair seat, he thought that he would cause his person to be adorned.
- 146 The King of the Gods, perceiving his thought, said to Vissakamma, 'Do thou adorn Siddhattha.'
- 147 At his command, Vissakamma approached, and wrapt the shining head of the glorious one with ten thousand shawls,
- 148 and his shining body, glorious with its unequalled marks, he made beautiful with variegated robes and ornaments, and with the sweet perfume of fragrant blue lotus, sandal, and other such.
- 149 Adorned by him, himself also adorned, he sat on a spotless slab of stone, attended by fair women like goddesses, and shining like the King of the gods.
- 150 A glad message was sent by King Suddhodana: 'A son is born to thee, my son!' Hearing this, the chief of men
- 151 replied, 'To me this day a fether is born,' and forthwith amid all the joys of success he returned to the beautiful city.
- 152 Then Kisāgotamī, in the upper story of the palace, saw the King shining like the sun, and thus she spake:
- 153 'Whoever are the parents of this steadfast one, whosoever is the wife of the noble one, happy are they all, yea, always happy.'
- 154 When he heard this pleasant speech uttered by her, gladdened within with joy, he went to his house,
- 155 he loosed from his neck the great necklace, cool, pure, exquisitely beautiful, and sent it to her;
- 156 then mounting to the terrace, lovely as Veجازasta, he reclined upon his precious seat like the King of the gods.
- 157 A company of fair women, like goddesses, attending on him, performed all manner of dances and songs;
- 158 but the wise one, longing for the ascetic life, free from the fine desires, cared nought even for dances and songs so lovely as these,
- 159 but after lying there on the couch awhile to rest, the hero, the mighty King, sat up cross-legged,
- 160 and sitting there, he beheld the changes that had come over the sleeping girls. Frightened at the thought

- of mortal life, he said, 'I will go now!' and passed through the fair doorway.
- 161 Channa lay with his head on the fair threshold, for he thought, 'I shall hear my master's call'; and as he lay there, that most righteous friend and counsellor, giver of joy, bringer of good,
- 162 the prince called him and said, 'Make ready the thoroughbred horse Kantharika, and bring him hither.'
- 163 Channa listened to the order given to him, and went quickly and caparisoned the thoroughbred, and brought him.
- 164 The noble steed, thus made ready by him, knowing that his master was to leave the world, uttered a neigh:
- 165 that sound filled the whole city, but the gods one and all kept it from the hearing of any.
- 166 Then the delight of the virtuous thought, 'First I will go and see my own precious son, then I will become a Buddha.'
- 167 With this thought, he proceeded to his wife's apartments, and standing upon the threshold, thrust his head within.
- 168 He beheld his own son, lying like his mother upon a bed strewn with flowers, with the bed of the King of heaven;
- 169 seeing which the supreme ruler thought to himself: 'If I take my son from the Queen's arms,
- 170 'Yasodharā might awaken from her great love, and cause delay in my leaving the world.
- 171 'When I have become a Buddha, I will return and see my son.' Then the lord of men came down from the upper storey.
- 172 Yasodharā had lovely lotus-like face, hands, and feet, laughter like the foam, brows like shining wavelets, eyes like the blue lotus; she was like the moon; all eyes were attracted to her like so many bees:
- 173 Who that enjoyed possession of her body would renounce it, save this steadfast one, standing at the summit of perfection?
- 174 'I have brought the horse, sire: observe the time, lord of chariots!' so spake Channa to the glorious ruler of the earth.
- 175 The lord of the earth heard what Channa had spoken;

- down from the palace he came, and went to Kanthaka.
- 176 To him spoke thus he who delights to do good to all beings: 'Kanthaka, in this one night convey me over gods and men.
- 177 'I will become supreme Buddha, and escape from the world, from the ocean of existence, the terrors of decay, the multitude of monstrous growths.'
- 178 With these words he mounted his thoroughbred steed, white as a conch shell, and caused Channa to grasp its strong tail.
- 179 When he came to the great gate, he thought: 'If the gate will not open by any means,
- 180 'with Channa holding fast by his tail, I will press Kanthaka with my thighs, I will leap over the lofty shining wall, and begone.' So thought the mighty one.
- 181 Thus the strong one, and Channa, and the noble steed, each in his own heart thought of the way to get over the wall.
- 182 But the gods who inhabited the gate, perceiving his thought, and delighted at his happy going, then set the gate open.
- 183 Then Death thought, 'I will make this Siddhattha no Siddhattha'; and approaching, poised in air, he thus address him:
- 184 'Go not forth, O most wise! On the seventh day from now the divine treasure of the Wheel shall surely be made manifest.'
- 185 But the glorious one, thus address by Death, replied: 'Who art thou?' and Māra declared himself.
- 186 'Māra, I know that the divine Wheel will be made manifest. Go thou, and stand not here, for I have no desire for this kingdom.
- 187 'I shall become Buddha, sole ruler of the world, and all the ten thousand systems of the universe I will cause to resound.'
- 188 When the Great Being had thus uttered his supreme word, Māra, unable to entrap him, forthwith vanished away.
- 189 After this speech of the Sinner, Gotama at dawn renounced the glory of universal dominion, like a drop of spittle, and there remained.
- 190 Then the gods assembled immediately, bearing thousands of precious torches, to show reverence to him as he departed.

- 191 Behind him and before and on either side there went in reverence great serpents and garula birds ;
- 192 here great host of gods, showering from the sky like rain showers of lovely blossoms, coming from the ten thousand worlds, exult exceedingly over the tender-bodied one ;
- 193 on the bright and beautiful road, all sweet-scented goodly flowers, and aromatic powder, golden flags, where the noble royal steed as he went, entangled in flowers, could not go at speed,
- 194 thus he proceeded upon that lovely path of thirty leagues, amidst all this festivity, for the remainder of the night.
- 195 Reaching the bank of the river Anoma, he dismounted from his horse, upon a pure cool expanse of sound,
- 196 and having rested, thus he spoke : 'Go, Channa, to your own city, and take with you my ornaments and the horse.'
- 197 Standing there, the all-wise one with his sword exceeding sharp cut off his fragrant hair, and cast it up to the sky.
- 198 He of the thousand eyes received the hair-relic as it rose into the sky, in a fair golden casket, bowing his head in reverence,
- 199 and in the Thirty-Three he set up a crest-gem shrine, delightful to the eye, made of sapphire, a league in height.
- 200 The noble Eight Requisites were brought by Brahma, and cast down as it were from the air, and the goodly pair of robes :
- 201 taking these, great Brahma made in Brahma's world a beautiful robe-stupa twelve leagues in height.
- 202 The hero went to the mango-grove named Anupiya, and there spent seven days, in the bliss of retirement from the world.
- 203 One day he proceeded along the thirty-league road as far as Rājagaha, where he went about piously seeking alms.
- 204 Then the walls and gates, by his radiance, appeared as if made of gold and set with sapphires.
- 205 The crowds of people, full of excitement, when they saw him, asked again and again : 'Who is this? Is it Sakka, or Brahma, Māra or a Serpent?'
- 206 Having entered and obtained food enough for his

- living, he went along the high-road, looking before him no further than a yoke's length ;
- 207 and leaving the people there perplexed, as the sea is churned with the churning-stick of Mount Meru, he went to the Paṇḍava mountain,
- 208 where, seated under its shadow on a lovely spot, he began to eat the mingled food.
- 209 By contemplation, the wise and mighty one restrained the snake of his bowels from leaving the anthill of his body.
- 210 After eating, having been many times offered the kingdom by the great King Bimbisāra, the chief of men visited him.
- 211 He declined the kingdom ; but when the King prayed, 'When you have become supreme Buddha, declare the Lord to me,'
- 212 he gave his promise to the lord of mankind. The wise one then retired to the cloister, and there performed exceeding great marvels and wonders. Then considering a little,
- 213 after partaking of plentiful meat and drink, and growing stout of body, like a god he came to the foot of the Ajapāla banyan tree.
- 214 There he sat, the giver of light, facing the east ; and by the colour of his body, that banyan took on the colour of gold.
- 215 Then a fair woman named Sujātā, her prayer fulfilled, came to him, bearing upon her head a golden bowl full of rice and milk, and bowing before him, said :
- 216 'I present an oblation to the spirit which dwells in this tree.' Then, seeing this incomparable man,
- 217 and conceiving that he was a god, joyful at heart, she gave the bowl of food to the noble one, saying, 'As my prayer was fulfilled, so may thine be, my lord.'
- 218 With these words, the beautiful woman departed thence. And the sage taking the bowl of food,
- 219 went to the bank of the river Nerañjarā, and when he had eaten the choice food, cast her fair bowl against the current.
- 220 The noble being then proceeded to the incomparable grove, delightful as Sakka's grove of Nandana, adorned with clusters of full-flowering trees, which, like clusters of bees, captivated the onlooker's mind and eye.

- 221 There he abode for a day's rest; in the evening hour with the grace of a lion he went to the bo-tree.
- 222 Along the great road, beset with Brahmas, gods, and Titans, with serpents and roc-birds, bent the ruler of man. A highborn Brahmin, laden with grass, beholding him, gave him a handful of grass.
- 223 There the skies were flowering with lovely blue lotus and water lilies, birds thronging like rain-drops, as the chief of men passed by.
- 224 The skies were full of all manner of sweet scents, and the odour of sandal wood and fragrant powders, as the chief of men passed by.
- 225 The skies were full of fair jewelled sunshades and glorious golden banners as the chief of men passed by.
- 226 The skies were filled with gods also, sporting and waving thousands of shawls as the chief of men passed by.
- 227 The skies were filled with gods also, playing upon thousands of divine drums and instruments of musick, as the chief of men passed by.
- 228 The skies were filled with fair goddesses, singing all manner of songs, as the chief of men passed by.
- 229 Lovely fays and fairy maidens, lovely serpents and their mates, kept up their lovely dances and songs.
- 230 Thus, amidst all these festivities, like a flood, the glorious sole ruler of the three worlds, grass in hand, approached the bo-tree.
- 231 The chief of men made a circuit rightwise about the bo-tree, which was like a lofty hill of silver set on a black coral rock,
- 232 and stood facing the east, the wise one, on the firm plot of earth where sin was to be destroyed, and scattered the handfuls of grass.
- 233 Then this seat became fourteen cubits long. Then, seeing this wonder, the supremely wise one thought:
- 234 'Let my flesh, blood, and bones, sinews and skin, indeed be dried up, yet shall I not lose my power.'
- 235 The great hero and chief of men then seated himself in the invincible seat, and there remained facing the east.
- 236 Then Sakka brought to the God of gods a great conch, more than twenty cubits long, and stood there blowing into it.
- 237 Next the great Brahma Sahampati stood there in

- comely wise, upholding a white sunshade of three leagues in extent, like another full moon.
- 238 Suyāma, chief of gods, with a fair yak's-tail whisk three leagues long, stood there fanning him gently.
- 239 The god named Pañcasikha stood there playing upon a lute of vilva wood, capable of many melodies.
- 240 Kāla also, King of Serpents, stood there singing songs of praise, attended by dancers.
- 241 Two-and-thirty nymphs, with a golden shrine filled with flowers, stood in attitudes of devotion.
- 242 Whilst Indra and the companies of gods thus kept festivity, Māra the Sinner thought thus to himself :
- 243 'This prince desires to escape from my dominion : well, I will make Siddhattha no Siddhattha.'
- 244 He then created a thousand great and horrible arms, and with them seized all manner of gleaming weapons ; he mounted upon his magnificent and fierce elephant, a hundred and fifty leagues high, named Girimekhala.
- 245 He then, attended by an army provided with all manner of weapons ; having many mouths, with flame-coloured hair, and great round protruding red eyes, their mouths awful, snakes issuing from their breasts,
- 246 thither he came, roaring with a fearful sound : 'Seize you Siddhattha, and bind him !' Such was their command. At the sight, the assembly of gods was scattered, like flecks of cotton blown by a violent wind.
- 247 Then Death created a harsh sound like deep thunder, and a wind ; but he could not so much as move a corner of the fair robe of that blessed one.
- 248 Then he caused to descend a horrible and terrific rain, swift as that which falls at the destruction of an age ; but could not make one drop come near to the incomparable one. Seeing that wonder, the foul-mouthed one,
- 249 with a great and blazing conflagration of fire, showered down rocks, ashes and mud, weapons, and fiery coals, and sand ; but all these things,
- 250 by Māra's power precipitated from the sky, when they came nigh to him of transcendent merit, became like garlands of flowers. He then created a horrible black darkness, like that
- 251 of limbo ; but by the splendour of his beautiful body, the darkness of delusion was turned into lovely and

- glorious light, like the sun in his radiance. Seeing this, the Evil One,
- 252 his face inflamed with anger, his eyebrows twitching, his dress in hideous disorder, bearing the disc-weapon,
- 253 exceeding sharp, like a knife, which would cut through even the noble King Meru like a thick sprout. This he cast at the mine of virtue, but it could do him no harm; but in a moment, as it passed through the air, became a canopy over his head.
- 254 Rocky peaks, blazing with fire, thrown by the host, passing through the air became, as it were, a mass of garlands.
- 255 Seeing this also, the miserable creature approached the hero, and said: 'This invincible seat is mine;
- 256 rise up from this seat.' Thus answered the wise one: 'Who is
- 257 witness, Māra, that the seat is thine by reason of good deeds done?' The Sinful One replied, 'All these are witnesses,' stretching out his hand towards the host.
- 258 And the host, with horrid voice, exclaimed: 'I am witness! I am witness!' Having thus caused them to declare that they were witnesses, he went on:
- 259 'Who is thy witness, Siddhattha?' Then the incomparable replied: 'My witnesses, Māra, are not sentient beings.'
- 260 Thrusting out from his brilliant red robe his right hand, shining like golden lightning,
- 261 he pointed to the earth and said: 'Why didst thou cry out at the place of perfection, and art now silent?' Then from the earth
- 262 came forth hundreds of sounds like the sound of thunder. Claspings his clever and strong elephant close with his knees,
- 263 on seeing this, he thought, 'Now he will catch us! now he will catch us!' and like a serpent with broken fangs, crestfallen and subdued,
- 264 away he fled, with his host, even to the Cakkavāla Rock, leaving weapons, clothes, ornaments, and everything, all scattered about.
- 265 Then the company of the gods, seeing Māra's host in fear and misery fleeing away, exclaimed: 'Behold the defeat of Māra! Victory to Prince Siddhattha!'
- 266 Rejoicing, they worshipped the hero with oblations of sweet perfumes and scents, and returning, sang together in hymns of praise, clad in festal array.

- 267 Thus did the mighty hero, sitting upon the immovable seat, scatter the host of Māra while the sun was still high.
- 268 In the first watch, the supreme one obtained knowledge of former existences, in the middle watch divine insight,
- 269 and then in the last watch he went through the Chain of Causation, until he grasped that knowledge thoroughly.
- 270 At dawn, all the hundred systems of worlds shouted together. Becoming Buddha all-wise, he of the lotus-eyes, all wise,
- 271 he uttered this hymn of praise, moved with joy (sādiso?), 'I have traversed a succession of many births'; and so forth.
- 272 Then, perceiving the many virtues of that seat, he said: 'I shall not yet arise from this seat.'
- 273 The Teacher achieved the Attainment in millions of phases, sitting there for seven days on the unshaken seat.
- 274-5 There arose a doubt in the minds of certain gods, who thought: 'The glorious Siddhattha must have some other duty to perform, that is why he does not leave this seat.' Perceiving their thought, and desiring to set their minds at rest,
- 276 the Ruler uprose like a golden pheasant, gold-coloured, light-giving, and ascending into the air, he worked a wonder.
- 277 When by this means he had fully reassured the minds of the gods, for seven days he stood with unwinking lotus-eyes venerating the bo-tree and the seat of victory.
- 278 Then, walking up and down in the noble arcade, bright with gems, like a storehouse of precious things, the pure one investigated the pure doctrine.
- 279 Then beneath the noble ajapāla-tree he caused the pure lotus-faces of Māra's women to fade, and beneath the mucalinda-tree he caused the serpent-King's thoughts to expand like lotus-blossoms,
- 280 and beneath the rājāyatama-tree, the wise one, so fair in hue, gave himself up to the uninterrupted enjoyment of Attainment for nine-and-forty days.
- 281 He then used the water of Anotatta, a tooth-cleaner of betel-vine, and the goodly myrobolan drug brought by the King of the gods.

- 282 He received from the merchants a cake of strong honey, presented by the Kings in a leaf.
- 283 At the end of the repast, he went beneath the ajapāla-tree, and pondered on the profundity of the truth to which he had attained,
- 284 saying, 'This truth which I have attained to is profound and calm as the mass of water supporting the earth,' and so forth.
- 285 'This profundity of truth has been comprehended by me, the King of truth, through reasoning and exercise of memory.
- 286 'In the endeavour, I gave to a beggar's petition even my noble head adorned with a crown, which I cut off;
- 287 'my anointed eyes, which I plucked out; blood which I drew from my neck; my beautiful wife;
- 288 'my children, who are like a lamp to the family: no gift that I gave not, no observance that I did not fulfil.
- 289 'Thus in former births, as the Sarikhapāla, I sacrificed my very life for fear of some breach of observance.
- 290 'In the Khantivāda birth and others, no single perfection but has been attained by me in cutting off what was to be cut off.
- 291 'When I scattered the host of Māra the earth did not quake, nor when I remembered my former existence,
- 292 'nor in the middle watch, when I obtained divine insight; but quake it did in the last watch,
- 293 'when I obtained comprehension of the causes of existence; and it uttered a loud noise as it were giving approval.
- 294 'As a gourd full of rice gruel, as a chatty full of buttermilk, as a hand smeared over with salve, as a cloth washed in grease:
- 295 'so this world is a mine of ignorance, filled with a mass of sin, polluted, inflamed with lust, miserable with pain, infatuate with mighty delusion.
- 296 'What comprehends this doctrine? what use is there to teach it?' Thus the Lord became despondent about giving the immortal drink of doctrine to mankind.
- 297 Thereupon Brahma Sahampati uttered a great cry, saying: 'Alas! the world is perishing, truly the world is lost!'

- 298 Then from the hundreds of world-systems he assembled throngs of Brahmas and gods, and with them came before the Teacher.
- 299 He kneeled upon his knee in that place, and folded his hands upon his head, crying : ' Let the Blessed One declare the Law.'
- 300 At his request, the conqueror, omniscient, lotus-lipped, beheld with his divine eye the hundreds of world-systems,
- 301 and then, seeing how few mortals there were whose lusts were small, he divided them into two parts by the principle of good and evil :
- 302 rejecting the evil, he assembled the good by his wisdom, and said : ' Let each person now bring his own vessel of faith :
- 303 ' I will fill it with this immortal gift of gospel.' He sent forth upon the company of Brahma rays of words divine.
- 304 Then the bright one rose over the ajapāla-tree like the sun of wisdom rising in the sky over the eastern mountain, and shining bright like the light of jewels, emitted bright rays of wisdom.
- 305-7 Then, gladdening Upaka and others, the glorious ascetic passed along the road eighteen leagues in length, by the flowering trees, to the incomparable deerpark, filled continually with the humming of swarms of busy bees, and the murmurs of many a bird, perfumed with the scent of full-blown lotus ; then the Five Brahmins, seeing the god of gods, the ruler of the three existences, who sees to the ends of the world, the Blest One, the fair-limbed, the hero, the sage, the lion-king, devised this evil plot.
- 308 ' Friends, here comes this ascetic, golden-hued, perfect in shape, after a meal of rich food and drink. Let us make no kind of salutation to him ;
- 309 ' but this honourable personage, born of a high stock, like a banner upon the earth, is worthy to receive a seat ; therefore let us prepare a seat for him.'
- 310 The Blessed One thus perceiving their design by his keen wisdom, by the power of his kindness conquered their arrogance, like a banner blown down by the wind.
- 311 Unable to resist his words, they did all obeisance to the wise Ruler of the World.
- 312 But the sages, not knowing that this Prince of Sages

- was Buddha, addrest him simply by the name of 'Friend.'
- 313 Then the Ruler of the World, who knows the world, said unto them, 'Call not the Teacher simply by the name of Friend ;
- 314 'For, Brethren, the Tathāgata is the Saint, the Buddha
 All-knowing.' When the Supreme One had made known to them that he was Buddha,
- 315 sitting upon the most noble seat which they had prepared, he adorned those Elders with the ornament of virtue with a voice like Brahma's voice,
- 316 and, attended by millions of Brahmas, set the Wheel of the Law in motion, and by the rays of his discourse
- 317 he also dispersed the pall of dark ignorance in the world, and by his lotus-like wisdom showed forth the lovely light of truth to those who could be converted ;
- 318 thus like a King of great might, the King of Truth most wise, in the field of victory called the Deer-forest,
- 319 grasping the goodly sword of preaching with the hand of wisdom, caused continued loss to the kindred of those ripe for conversion.
- 320 He destroyed sins, he beat the drums of victory, true religion, the flag of victory, true religion, hard to win ;
- 321 he uplifted, he planted the auspicious pillar of victory, true religion, and became sole King of the world, the source of bliss ;
- 322 he delivered the people from the mighty bond of transmigration, desiring to lead them to the city of Nirvāna, longing to do good to the world.
- 323 Reaching the road leading to Uruvela, like a road divine, fair to behold as a moving mountain of gold,
- 324 he gave to some thirty Bhaddavaggiya princes the excellent, immortal draught of the Three Paths ;
- 325 then, supreme in wisdom, having conferred the excellent gift of ordination, he sent them forth Brethren for the world's good, saying, 'Go on your pilgrimage.'
- 326 He proceeded to Uruvela, cutting off the matted hair of the ascetics without and within. Then, reaching the highroad, he, pre-eminent, as the moon is attended by stars,
- 327 so attended by these persons, free from sin, shining with six-coloured rays of light, he shed splendour

- upon those fair women the points of the compass, and delighted the eyes of birds.
- 328 Then he remembered the promise given to the glorious King Bimbisāra, like a banner to a noble royal lineage, abode of virtues; and desiring to fulfil it,
- 329 at the time of the peacocks' dance he went to the park called Latṭhivana, adorned with plantations of all manner of trees.
- 330 Bimbisāra, ruler of men, hearing of the coming of the great sage, adorned with the ornaments of joy and bliss,
- 331 entered that park, attended by his great councillors, made glorious with his hair the lotus-feet of the Teacher.
- 332-3 The other, sitting, bright with beauty, of excellent beauty, to whom the King of the gods did sing, worshipt by gods, Titans, and serpent Kings, glorious, (presented) Bimbisāra with the immortal draught of the true doctrine. Then to lovely Rājagaha he went, a city like that of the King of the gods,
- 334 and the mighty man was led by the King to the King's house. At the end of his repast, shaking the great earth,
- 335 he took the fair road to the lovely Veluvana Park, beautiful with lordly trees in full bloom,
- 336 and on a plot of earth beautified by being hidden under a quantity of white sand, filled with gentle waftings of fragrant flowers, adorned with tanks covered with all kinds of twining lotus, a wide clear place, a bower of creepers,
- 337 he whom gods and men ought to worship, he of the lovely lotus-feet and pure lotus-eyes, delightful jasmine teeth, ocean of precious virtues, protector of the destitute, king of sages, brilliant with golden rays, his face like a mild moon,
- 338 after performing a multitude of pure observances, up-lifting the brilliant sceptre of tranquillity, brandishing the excellent sharp arrow of a Buddha's knowledge, he dwelt at ease in the supreme hermitage.
- 339 Then King Suddhodana, having heard that his own son had attained to supreme knowledge, and had set rolling the wheel of the Law for the world's good,
- 340 and near Rājagaha was then dwelling in lovely Veluvana, desirous to see his son who had become Buddha,

- 341 nine times despatcht nine ambassadors to the great sage with nine thousand men.
- 342 These came and heard the incomparable preaching of the King of Truth, and obtaining the supreme good, did not send back so much as a message.
- 343 The King, not seeing a single one of them, sent for a great minister, the orator Kāludāyi, who ever delighted in asceticism.
- 344 To him he said: 'Bring me my son, my precious jewel, by any means, and make a salve for my sore eyes.'
- 345 Then with a thousand soldiers he sent him also, and he came with his company and heard the Master's beautiful preaching,
- 346 and entering upon the path to sainthood, he renounced the world, honouring the mighty man, the omniscient, by laying his folded hands on his head.
- 347 and 352 Then he said: 'Lord, it is time to go to the fine royal city named Kapila, filled with men of boundless wealth'; and he described the journey. 'Red shoots and creepers most beautiful grow in the springtime, trees with lovely branches and bright green leaves upon them,
- 348 'with all manner of excellent flowers bursting into bloom and exhaling sweet odours; there are goodly forests filled with the voices of hosts of birds and beasts,
- 349-50 'many delightful lakes of blue water for pleasure, with plenteous flocks of sweet-voiced Kādamba geese, adorned with fragrant blue lotus, and water-lilies white and red, bright with trees that grow on the banks, with festooning filaments and flowers, with white sand spread about pure as pearls;
- 351 'spaces of earth bespread with green grasses, as it were covered with beautiful lapis-lazuli, formed continually by breezes gentle and cool.'
- 353 The Happy One, on hearing this fine description, approved of the journey, and said: 'What say you, Udāyi?' Then Udāyi replied to the Giver of Happiness:
- 354 'Sir, your father desires to see you, Suddhadana the noble and glorious King: let the Tathāgata, the supreme protector who longs to do good to the world, do this favour to his kith and kin.'
- 355 When he who longs to do good to the world heard the sweet words of this man, he replied: 'Good, Udāyi; I will do this favour to my kith and kin.'

- 356 Clad in a cloak of red, the Buddha, like a moving Mount Meru of gold, like a pure full moon surrounded by stars,
- 357 he moved twenty thousand souls, all peace at heart like himself, full of bliss, and along his journey of sixty leagues
- 358 day by day he halted, the conqueror, league by league, and in two months reached the noble city of his birth.
- 359 The Buddha, with bright and pure lotus-face, shining like the rays of the new-risen sun, his wide feet marked with discs, the abode of good doing, sole refuge of the three worlds, with body supreme and unconquered,
- 360 was worshipt by Suddhadana and other royal personages with golden vessels filled with wreaths of sweet perfume, with drums, lutes, and tabors, with goodly canopies, whisks, and fans.
- 361-3 Reaching the fair-adorned city, the chief of sages entered the noble, pre-eminent Nigrodha monastery, provided with beautiful cloisters, terraces, and bowers of creepers, resplendent with lakes of wholesome water covered with blossoming lotus, enlivened by the sporting of flocks of peacocks, the earth one mass of fragrant flowers.
- 364 The Sākiya, with minds full of stubbornness, thought,
'This Siddhattha is our son, our grandson,'
- 365 and thus they spake to the younger princes one by one: 'Do you greet Siddhattha; no greeting give we.'
- 366 This said, they sat down, putting the younger ones forward. Then the one eye of the three worlds, the tranquil subduer of the untranquil,
- 367 knowing their thought, said: 'My kinsfolk give me no greeting: very well, I shall make them greet me.'
Immediately
- 368 entering upon the transcendent meditation of supernatural knowledge, and arising from his trance like a golden goose, the Illuminator
- 369-70 rose into the air; and there the supreme sage performed a glorious unparalleled miracle, unrivalled by others, like the miracle done beneath the gaṇḍambatree.
- 371 When the King saw this miracle, Suddhadana the mighty, sole ruler of the Sākiya race, filled with joy and bliss, he made all his bright hair beautiful by placing upon it the Teacher's lotus-feet ; and all the Sākiyas did likewise.

- 372-4 The wise one, after a shower of rain, showered down the rain of the Truth, washing away the great ignorance from men's hearts ; then on the following day, with his company, he entered the excellent city to beg from house to house.
- 375 Wherever he stept, lotus flowers sprang up, and received his lotus-feet pace by pace.
- 376 and 378 Then Yasodharā, standing on a fine terrace of the delightful palace, full of love, saw from a window gates and pinnacles, houses and watch-towers, all yellow by the rays from his body, and
- 377 beheld the hero walking for alms in the street, wise, calm, giving light, enlightener of the world ;
- 379 and addressing the noble Rāhula, adorned and glittering with jewelled rays, said to him : ' That is thy father,' pointing him out.
- 380 She went to the house of the noble Suddhodana, attended by many waiting-women, and said, with respectful greeting ;
- 381 ' Sire, thy son, who formerly walked this city with the grace of a King of gods, now walks from house to house seeking alms.'
- 382 This said, she went to her own house, her large eyes filled with abundance of the water of joy.
- 383 Then the King of all other Kings, adorned like Indra, trembling, went in haste to meet the Conqueror, saying :
- 384 ' O chief of the Sākyas, this is not the custom of thy family ; walk not, walk not ; O my son, never before has a King of our family trudged for alms.'
- 385 When the lord of men had thus said, the great sage replied, the chaplet of virtues : ' This is thy family, O great King ; mine is the family of the Buddha.'
- 386 Thus he declared the Buddha's family, and standing in the same spot, declared the gospel,
- 387 uttering this supreme and beautiful verse, which brought happiness to the hearers : ' One should not neglect the law . . .,' etc.
- 388 Then the supreme one, after satisfying him by the gift of the choice flower of doctrine, at his request went on to his house.
- 389 The Lord of the Earth and twenty thousand like-minded

- with him, having satisfied the chief of men with the well of sweetness,
- 390 greeted him with other royal personages with rays of crested gems and folded yellow hands, sat down by the Conqueror.
- 391 Hundreds of fair royal women also, by permission of the lord of man, sat down there also.
- 392 The Conqueror, the tilaka-spot of the three worlds, after preaching the sweet doctrine, thought: 'If this day I do not go to the house of Bimbā
- 393 her heart will break with sorrow.' Thus thinking, the abode of compassion went with his father to the house, taking a couple of the chief disciples.
- 394 Entering, the Buddha sat down upon the Buddha's seat, shining like the sun with the glory of the six-coloured rays.
- 395 Bimbā approached the Teacher, bright with rays which shone from her body like vermilion powder, with lips like bimbā fruit, trembling like a golden creeper.
- 396 The Teacher, by the touch of his foot, extinguished the great grief in her heart, as extinguishing a fire on the hearth by excellent cool water.
- 397 The King told the Teacher the great excellence of Bimbā, and the chief of sages related the Candakishnara Birth.
- 398 Then the three festivals of Prince Nanda having come, marriage, ceremonial sprinkling, and entering on the house,
- 399 the Illuminator ordained him even before the festivals, having brought him, though unwilling, to the beautiful monastery;
- 400 and when his own son, Prince Rāhala, followed him for the sake of an inheritance, shining with princely splendour,
- 401 and crying in a pleasant voice, 'Grateful is thy shadow to save,' and 'Give me an inheritance, give me an inheritance,'
- 402 him also he ordained, and brought him to the incomparable monastery. Thus the Wise One gave him an inheritance, by giving him the treasure of pure religion.
- 403 Thence departing, Sagata, the Sun, with the rays of pure religion, causing men in this place and that to blossom like the lotus, arrived at Rājagaha. Moreover,
- 404 Sargata dwells in fair Sītavana, having spacious

- cloisters adorned with white sand, and parks of beautiful trees laden with flowers, and multitudes of lakes shining with blue lotus.
- 405 Then the famous merchant named Sudatta, taking carts laden with much goods, came from Sāvatti to beautiful Rājagaha, to the house of the rich merchant Sahāya.
- 406 This kindly person told him that the Buddha was born in the world, lord of men; and in the delight and joy of his heart he thought, 'The night has become light.'
- 407 Departing thence, the darkness being dispelled on the highroad by the power of the gods, he proceeded to lovely Sītavana.
- 408 When he beheld the Great Sage, shining like the full moon, giving out light like a blazing tree, rejoicing the eyes, he touched with his head the fair colour of the Buddha's foot.
- 409 Then, wise with hearing the doctrine, profound, abstruse, glorious, pure, he attained the fruit of the First Path, beautiful a thousand fold.
- 410 Having invited the Supreme Buddha and his company, ruler of the world, he offered a gift full of happiness, endowed with colour, scent, and taste.
- 411 He obtained the Teacher's promise to come to the noble city of Sāvatti; and departing, on the way,
- 412 league by league, he bestowed great wealth, and caused to be made goodly monasteries resplendent with paintings.
- 413 Reaching Sāvatti again, with its hundreds of palaces, fair with garlanded arches, walls, and gates,
- 414 which seemed even to rival the very city of the King of gods, full of all prosperity, merry with dancing and song,
- 415 he looked about him on all sides for a site worthy of a monastery, wherein should dwell the Blessed One, lord of the earth.
- 416 He espied a spot of ground where was shade, and water, and all else desirable, a park of Prince Jeta like to Nandana.
- 417 The glorious one bought this for a crore of gold pieces, for the Teacher's sake alone. There in that noble place, charming the minds of men and gods,
- 418 he caused to be made a large and noble perfumed chamber, painted, like a crown of the earth, fair with all flowers, beauteous with variegated canopies, its roofs adorned with strings of pearls and all sorts of jewels, surmounted with peaklike pinnacles, ever alive with rows of bells, all tinkling.

- 419-21 For the Conqueror's children also the merchant had made a spacious abode, the fair and noble monastery called Jetavana, furnished with canopies and beds, adorned with bowers and cloisters, ever charming the mind and eyes, ornamented with blossoming trees of many a kind, having tanks filled with most cool and wholesome water, and covered with sweet-scented water-lilies and lotus, having beautiful wide terraces supplied with benches, and soft pure white sand.
- 422 Like the wide mountain Kelāsa, protected by the excellent and beautiful rampart of the Serpent King, helpful to all believers, this monastery shines, a very magic gem.
- 423 Then Anāthapiṇḍika sent a message to the chief of sages that he might come. The Teacher, on hearing the messenger's words,
- 424 with a large company of Brethren, set forth, and in due time came to Sāvatti the incomparable.
- 425 A number of handsome princes bearing flags went before the Teacher, like gods.
- 426 Behind them came lovely young women, like virgins divine, bearing full pitchers, and in like manner,
- 427 bearing a full bowl, the merchant's wife, adorned with many ornaments.
- 428 The great merchant himself, with hundreds of rich merchants, approached the Lord, the great hero, to whom they did homage in various ways.
- 429 So Sagata the beautiful, chief of sages, was brought to the golden-coloured city, shining with the delightful six-coloured rays, and entered the monastery of Jetavana.
- 430 'I give this monastery to the Supreme Buddha with the œcumenical order,' said the merchant, as upon the Teacher's lovely lotus-hands
- 431 he poured from a golden pitcher choice scented water, and so he presented the beautiful picturesque monastery.
- 432-3 Having accepted the lovely and noble monastery, the King of Kings, the one eye of the three worlds, the glorious Teacher, the benevolent sage, sitting on the priceless decorated seat, preached to the merchant called Sudatta, to that lord (?) the great benefit, delightful, bringing joy to the three worlds, in the giving of monasteries, and of gifts to the helpless.

434 What man, save the all-wise one, the sole protector of the three worlds, even though he have thousands of mouths, is able to declare the great benefit which there is in the giving of monasteries?

435 Thus the far-famed one, having discoursed to him, gladdening at the same time the hearts of all men, spent his days going here and there, beating the great drum of the Law with an exceeding sweet sound.

436 I shall now recite the list of places frequented by he who gives happiness to the three worlds, the all-compassionate, supreme in the worlds, worshipt by gods, Titans, great Serpents, demons, and other creatures.

437 In the first season, the noble Conqueror, like a sun, causing believers to unfold like lotus flowers under the shining rays of religion, dwelt in the Deer Park in Benares City.

438 In the second, third, and fourth season the Protector dwelt in most lovely Veluvana, in the fair, noble city called Rājagaha, with its rows of streets containing many a precious shop.

439 In the fifth season the Lion Sakyamuni made his abode in the great wood near the lovely city, well-known under the name of Vesāli, brilliant with the jewelled aigrettes of kings.

440 In the sixth season, the Buddha, store of infinite virtues, dwelt on the great mountain of Manikala, illuminating it with delicate golden light, his lovely eyes like blue lotus flowers bursting into bloom.

441 In the seventh season, the incomparable sage, living an auspicious life, made his abode in the cool and spacious rocky seat of the King of the gods, preaching to the gods his doctrine, sweet, profound, and difficult to comprehend.

442 In the eighth season, the supreme Conqueror of Māra, the abode of good conduct, whose feet were as the full-blown lotus, made his abode in the delightful wood of Bhesakalā, on the mountain named Hill Suṃsumāra.

443 In the ninth season, the royal Conqueror of garula birds, the tilaka-mark of the three worlds, having

- destroyed many a heresy, and the pride of heretics and serpents, made his abode in the Kosambī silk-cotton wood, most beautiful and fair to see.
- 444 In the tenth season, the noble sage, to pacify the bitter quarrel of the priests by means of the noble elephant, made his abode in goodly Pāraleyya, the spacious pine-grove filled with flowers.
- 445 In the eleventh season, the chief of sages, the infinitely wise, whose pure teeth captivated the eyes, who leads people to freedom from decay and death with the ambrosia of the gospel, made his abode in the noble Brahmin village called Nāla.
- 446 In the twelfth season, Sakyamuni the all-wise made his abode in a monastery, delightful with fragrant flowers and fruits, under a noble nimb-tree near the Brahmin village of Verañja.
- 447 In the thirteenth season, the wise Teacher of the three worlds, whose mouth was like a lotus full-blown, the goodly sun shining for the right conduct of the people of this world, the abode of mercy, made his abode on the beautiful Cābiya Mountain.
- 448 In the fourteenth season, the steadfast and majestic sage, devoted to the good of all beings, the lord of the gospel, whose hands and feet were like beautiful bandhūka flowers, made his abode in fair and lovely Jetavana.
- 449 In the fifteenth year, the sage, the lion-King, having destroyed lust in the kindred of those fit for salvation, like an elephant in a forest, made his abode in the picturesque jewelled cave of the great Nigrodha monastery on Mount Kapilavatha.
- 450 In the sixteenth season, the leader of multitudes in the paths of bliss, having reduced a most cruel goblin to a state of submission, made his abode in the exceeding fair city called Alāvaka.
- 451 In the seventeenth season, the great sage, the incomparable, whose fame is spread abroad throughout all the three worlds, made his abode in noble Rājagaha, fair to the eye, with its walls, gates, towers, and arches.
- 452 In the eighteenth season, Aṅgīrasa, having destroyed the dirt of horrible lust in the world with the sweet, wholesome medicine of religion, made his abode on the great Mount Cāliya.
- 453 In the nineteenth season, he made his abode there again, the excellent King of the Law, the sweet speaker, lord of the world, having with the sword of the Law destroyed ignorance, the great foe of the kinsfolk of those fit for salvation.

- 454 In the twentieth season, the chief of sages, the abode of purity, the tree of fortune, the magic jewel, the noble and auspicious vessel, good for the right conduct of all people, abode in noble and beauteous Rājagaha.
- 455-6 Thus the Blessed One, blood-kin to all the world, revered by the three worlds, pleased with the world's prosperity, full of good fortune, the sage all-wise, having from the time he became Buddha made no fixed abode, but making pilgrimage, his body shining with six-coloured rays, for the rest of the time, five-and-twenty years, made his abode in Sāvattī and Jetavana, noble and beautiful, incomparably fair, and adorned like an abode of the gods.
- 457 Thus this sage abode for forty-and-five years, in his immeasurable compassion quenching like a cloud, with waters most sweet, the lust which arose in men's minds like a body of fire in a forest. May he bring bliss to the world!
- 458 May that fair maiden Wisdom, in the house of my mind, increase day by day, delighting all men.
- 459 By the merit of my compiling this meritorious Life of the Conqueror, may I attain to the Tusitā heaven,
- 460 hearing the discourse of Metteyya, ruler of the world, enjoying with him great bliss for a long time.
- 461 When the Great Being is born, as Buddha in the lovely city, the banner of the earth, may I be born of the royal stock, obtaining the threefold fortune,
- 462 and give to that noble sage large, precious, and goodly robes, alms-food, a dwelling-place, and medicine.
- 463 Becoming an ascetic in the religion, may I be possess of supernatural power, a great being, glorifying that incomparable one, keeping well in mind the three Pitakas.
- 464 May he predict, 'This man will become Buddha,' and may I in the future again and again give to the Buddhas alms which bring happiness.
- 465 As I go through my transmigrations, may I, like a tree of fortune, give excellent, sweet, and noble water, and all that could be wished;
- 466 giving my flesh, blood, and eyes, with a calm mind, fulfilling all the Perfections and Virtues, all self-abnegation and wisdom;

467 attaining to the highest perfection, may I become Buddha incomparable, and having preached sweet doctrine, bringing happiness to man, 468 and freed all the world and the gods from the great bond of transmigration, may I reach the noble city of peace and bliss.

469-72 By King Vijayabāhu, of Bhupāla's royal line, the ornament of Ceylon, done in his own name. (?)
 The book was compiled by an Elder, wise, the abode of compassion, named Medhaṅkara, well-behaved, living in in a fair and goodly cell, goodly with cisterns, walls, and gates. May it always be pored over by the good! Here there are 473 stanzas, and according to the text 555.

ON THE ABHIDHARMA LITERATURE

THE SARVĀSTIVĀDINS.

1. INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

THE Sarvāstivāda school is one of the oldest among the eighteen schools of Buddhism. This enumeration of Buddhist schools as eighteen is historical as well as official. It has been handed down in the tradition of many schools since at least as early as the fourth century A.D., when we find it in the Dīpavaṃsa. Professor Rhys Davids has collected the earlier evidence in a paper in the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society for 1891; and has there come to the conclusion that already in the time of Asoka only seven schools had retained any practical importance, and of these seven only three or four were still vigorous and flourishing. But the eighteen still continued to be mentioned. In the fifth century first Buddhaghosa and then the Mahāvamsa refer to them. Later references are as follows:—

(a) King Guhasena of Valabhī (A.D. 559) mentions (in a grant to a monastery founded by a royal princess, Duḍḍā) the eighteen Buddhist schools represented in the monastery. This is in conformity with Hiuen-tsang's statement that the Hīnayāna doctrines were chiefly studied in the monasteries in Valabhī.¹

(b) Paramārtha (A.D. 499–569) represents Aśvaghoṣa and Vasubandhu as being well versed in the doctrines of the eighteen schools.¹

(c) The treatise Aṣṭadaśanikāya (eighteen schools), which is also called the “Samayabhedoparacanacakra” (transl. A.D. 557 and 662),² and the corresponding Tibetan work by Dharmākara,³ enumerate the schools as definitely eighteen, and give an account of their separation. One of the Chinese texts, though it is called the “Aṣṭadaśanikāya,” gives twenty schools, recognizing as separate from the eighteen the two original schools, Theravāda and Mahāsaṃghika (which, however, appear under other names).⁴

(d) Hiuen-tsang (A.D. 629–645) often mentions the Buddhist schools in existence as ‘eighteen,’ but the schools, the texts of which were actually obtained by him, are only seven in number.⁵

(e) I-tsing (A.D. 671–695) groups the eighteen schools under the four heads, Mahāsaṃghikas, Sthaviras, Sarvāstivādins, and Sammitīyas, giving a geographical extension of each.⁶

Of these eighteen schools, the Sarvāstivādins are of particular interest, as the question from which their name is derived had arisen, according to our traditions, already in the time of the Buddha himself.⁷ They were closely allied with the Theravāda school, from which they separated, probably, before the Buddhist Council held during King

Asoka's reign.¹ The school is otherwise called the Hetuvāda (Causationalist), a very appropriate name, in contradistinction to the orthodox Theravādins, who, according to the Tibetan and Chinese authorities, were known as the Haimavantas.²

The principal seat of the Sarvāstivādins was Kaśmīra, where their doctrine was taught in its purity and developed into an elaborate system known as the Vaibhāṣika. The great commentary on Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna, compiled at, or probably after, the Buddhist Council under King Kaniṣka, was called the "Mahāvibhāṣā," from which the name 'Vaibhāṣika' as that of a body of philosophers was derived.³ Kaśmīra was to them what Ceylon was to the Theravādins. The great Kaśmīrian commentary, Vibhāṣā

¹ According to the Tibetan and Chinese translations of the Samayabhedo-paracanacakra (supra, c) the Sarvāstivādins separated themselves from the Theravādins in the third century after the Buddha's death. In the Dīpavaṃsa, v. 47, the Mahimsāsakas (not the Sabbatthivādins) separated themselves first from the Theravādins, and from the Mahimsāsakas, the Sabbatthivādins, and the Dhammaguttas. In any case the separation seems to have taken place before King Asoka's council, because some three questions in the Kathāvatthu compiled by Moggalliputta Tissa at the close of the council (circa B.C. 250) are directed (if we may trust the commentator) against the Sabbatthivādins:—(1) Parihāyati Arahā Arahātā ti (Can an Arahāt fall from Arahātship?); (2) Sabbam atthīti (Do all things exist?); (3) Citta-santati Samādhīti (Is continuation of thought Samādhī?). To these the Sabbatthivādins would answer affirmatively against the doctrines of the orthodox Theras. These three points, or two at least, are, I think, clearly indicated as opinions of the Sarvāstivādins in the Samayabhedo-paracanacakra above referred to, in its Chinese translations (一切有性; 阿羅漢退法). It is, however, difficult to discuss these points without having an accurate translation of the Tibetan, and also of the Chinese versions, of this important text. Cf. Rhys Davids, J.R.A.S., 1892, p. 8 et seq.; Kathāvatthu, i, 2, 6; xi, 6, in Taylor's edition; also my "I-tsing's Record," p. xxi.

² 'Hetuvāda' is 'In-shuo' (因說, 'cause-speaking') in Chinese. A similar meaning in Tibetan; Wassilief, "Buddhismus," Beiträge ii, p. 230 (Russ.), gives 'Hetuvāda.' 'Haimavanta' is in Chinese the 'snow-mountain school' (雪山部).

by name, though lost in its original form and only recovered in part, seems, so far as we are able to judge from what we have now of it, to have been by no means inferior in its compass and merit to its 'counterpart in Ceylon, the Atthakathā (circa A.D. 420). The Sarvāstivādins appear, from this work, to have been, after their first deviation from the original school, the upholders of a well-organized philosophical system. This is fully borne out by subsequent writers, especially Vasubandhu (circa 420–500), who often refers to and criticizes the opinions of the 'Kāsmīra-vaibhāṣikas' as a body of thinkers.¹ According to Paramārtha (A.D. 499–569) the Vibhāṣā was a principal subject of philosophical discussion during the fifth century, when there was also a grave controversy between Buddhist and Sāṃkhya philosophers.²

Further, the Sarvāstivādins are referred to by Śaṅkarācārya (eighth century),³ while the Vaibhāṣika system is reviewed as one of the four Buddhist schools by Mādhavācārya (fourteenth century).⁴ Thus the existence of the Sarvāstivādins, known later as the Vaibhāṣikas, can be traced during at least fifteen centuries of the history of Indian Buddhism.

The geographical extension of our school seems, at one time, to have been much greater than any of the schools of which we have any record. Fa-hien (A.D. 399–414) says that this school was followed in Pāṭalipuṭra as well as in China at his time.¹ According to Hiuen-tsang (A.D. 629–645) the Sarvāstivādins were found chiefly in Kaśgar, Udyāna, and several other places on the northern frontier; in Matipura, Kanoj, and a place near Rājagrha in N. India; and also in Persia in the west.²

¹ Vasubandhu's Abhidharmakośa (No. 1267), Saṅghabhadra's Nyāyānusāra (No. 1265), and Samayapradīpikā (No. 1266) often quote the Kāsmīra-vaibhāṣika teachers (Ka-shi-mi-la-pi-p'o-sha-shi). There is an instance of Yaśomitra's explanation of this name in the Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā, ch. iii (MS. Burnouf, 469a, 5): "Kiṃ eṣa eva Śāstrābhidharmo Jñānaprasthānādilakṣaṇo deśito 'ta idam ucyate; Kāsmīravaibhāṣikanāṭisiddha itī vistaraha. Kāsmīre bhavāḥ Kāsmīrah; Vibhāṣayā divyanti vaibhāṣikā itī vyākhyātam etat: santi Kāsmīrā na vaibhāṣikāḥ . . . ; santi vaibhāṣikā na Kāsmīrah . . . ; teṣāṃ nityā yah siddho 'bhidharmaḥ sa prāyeṇaha mayā deśitaḥ. Arthād uktaṃ bhavati anyanāṭi-siddho 'pi deśita itī. Yad durgrhītaṃ Kāsmīravaibhāṣikanayena anyanayena vā . . ." (quoted in Professor de la Vallée Poussin, "Dogmatique Bouddhique," i, p. 65).

² See my translation of Paramārtha's Life of Vasubandhu (Tong-pao, July, 1904), pp. 279, 287, 289; 281; and my "Date of Vasubandhu" (J.R.A.S., Jan., 1905), p. 47 (p. 15).

I-tsing (A.D. 671–695) further gives a fairly minute description of this school, he himself being one of its adherents, and the places enumerated by him as belonging to it are the following:—Magadha (where it chiefly flourished), Lāṭa (Gujarat), Sindhu, S. India (where it had a few followers), E. India (where it existed side by side with other schools), Sumatra, Java (where it largely prevailed), Champā (Lin-yi) in Cochin-China (where it had a few followers), south, west, and east provinces of China and Central Asia (where the minor sects of the school chiefly flourished).³

This widespread school was, according to the same author, in possession of a Tripiṭaka amounting to 300,000 ślokas. Whether this statement be trustworthy or not, an examination of the vast Buddhist literature which has come down to us in Chinese shows sufficiently clearly that this school had a separate Vinaya-piṭaka⁴ and a separate Abhidharma-piṭaka. An analysis of the latter is the object of the present paper.

Before we proceed, it will be necessary for us to clear up a doubt that hangs over the name of the school, as the authenticity of the Sanskrit form is somewhat open to question.

² Hiuen-tsang mentions some thirteen places as belonging to this school, but the number of its adherents in India proper was not so great as in the cases of the other schools. See Rhys Davids, J.R.A.S., 1891, p. 420.

³ See my "I-tsing's Record," pp. xxii-xxiv.

⁴ The list of 19 works in 189 Chinese volumes of the Vinaya of the Sarvāstivādins is given in my "I-tsing's Record," p. xxxvii. The Tibetan Vinaya is said to belong exclusively to this school (Wassilief, "Buddhismus," p. 96). A separate Vinaya or a portion of it, in one case, belonging to each of the subdivisions of the Sarvāstivāda school, namely, the Dharmaguptas, the Mahīśāsakas, and the Kāśyapīyas, is also extant in Chinese (cf. Nos. 1117, 1122, 1111).

2. THE NAME 'SARVĀSTIVĀDINAS.'

The earlier Chinese name used for this school is invariably 'Sā-p'ō-to' (Jap. 'Sat-ba-ta'),¹ as seen, for example, in the books of the Three Chin dynasty (A.D. 350-431)² and of the earlier Sung dynasty (A.D. 445).³ This name was adopted by Fa-hien (A.D. 399-414), Paramārtha (A.D. 499-569), occasionally by Hiuen-tsang (A.D. 629-645), and also by I-tsing (A.D. 671-695). 'Sā-p'ō-to' is supposed to represent an original sound, not necessarily Sanskrit. The original may have been something like 'Sarvata,' as Mr. Watters conjectures, who so uses it in his new work on Hiuen-tsang. But since we have no evidence at all for the existence of such a word, we prefer the more probable conjecture that it represents the Pāli 'Sabbatthi (-vāda)' or a similar word in some other Indian dialect. It is most unlikely, judging from the phonetic value of the Chinese characters, that 'Sā-p'ō-to' is intended for the Sanskrit 'Sarvāsti(-vāda).'⁴ As a representation of the Sanskrit it would be inaccurate, and although Hiuen-tsang and I-tsing, who usually refer to every name in its Sanskrit form, occasionally adopt this name, they do so as a concession to the preceding translators, who represented an earlier and different period of Buddhist literature.

The name which these two travellers have used the most in their translations is 'Shuo-yi-chieh-yu-pu,' the 'school (which) asserts (that) all things exist.'⁵ One of them, I-tsing, however, gives the name in a pompous form which clearly points to Sanskrit—'A-li-ya Mu-la Sā-p'ō-a-ssū-ti p'ō-t'ō Ni-Chia-ya' ('Ārya-Mūla-Sarvāsti-vāda-nikāya'), translating it himself, as I have given it in my English version of his "Record," the 'Noble fundamental school (which) affirms the existence of all (things).'¹

We have no reason whatever to doubt the accuracy of the name given by I-tsing, for the existence of three Buddhist schools is spoken of by Śaṅkarācārya in his commentary on Bādarāyaṇa's Vedānta Sūtras, the first of the three being the 'Sarvāsti-tva-vādinās.'² Vācaspatimiśra's Bhāmatī also gives us the form 'Sarvāsti-tva-vāda.'³ These are practically the same as our 'Sarvāstivādinās' or 'Sarvāstivāda.' The Mahāvvyutpatti, § 275, again, gives two forms of the name, Āryasarvāstivāda and Mūlasarvāstivāda, in conformity with the names given by I-tsing, namely, Ārya-mūla-sarvāstivāda as the chief school and Mūla-sarvāstivāda as one of its subdivisions. We are thus perfectly justified in using the Sanskrit form of the name of the school.

3. THE SEVEN ABHIDHARMA WORKS PECULIAR TO THIS SCHOOL.

The Sarvāstivādins had seven Abhidharma books, just as the Theravādins had. The names of the books, moreover, of the two schools bear, curiously enough, a striking resemblance in most cases. This was a puzzle to us for a considerable time, but in my note on the Abhidharma literature in the J.R.A.S.⁴ I have shown that the two sets have no real connection. The mutual relations of the seven books of the one set seem to have differed from those of the other set, for in the case of the Sarvāstivādins they recognize one as the principal book and the rest as its supplements, while in the case of the Theravādins there seems to have been no such subordination.

The principal work of the Sarvāstivādin Hīnayāna school¹ is Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna, to which there are six supplements called 'pāda' (foot), the latter standing to the former in some such relation as that of the six Vedāṅgas to the Veda.²

The seven Abhidharma works are as follows (see accompanying list) :—

I have given in full the several lists of the seven Abhidharma books in order to show, on the one hand, that the tradition of the existence of seven books was universal among the Hīnayānists, and, on the other hand, to do justice to the Chinese and Tibetan authorities, who have reproduced the Sanskrit names fairly correctly, for I thought that many scholars would suspect the accuracy of the Sanskrit titles given by them. Here an explanation will be necessary as regards the sources from which I have derived the above information.

I. First as to the Sanskrit. The earliest information ever given about the existence of the seven Abhidharmas and the names of their authors was by Burnouf, who furnished a French translation of one passage from Yaśomitra's Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā in his "Introduction à l'Histoire du Bouddhisme indien."³ As the Vyākhyā just named is now being carefully studied by M. Sylvain Lévi, I referred to him at once to satisfy myself as to the actual text. He has kindly furnished me the whole text of Yośomitra, and it is from this original that I have reproduced here the Sanskrit titles of the seven Abhidharmas.¹ The existence of the "Jñānaprasthāna and the rest" is spoken of again in another part of the same work.²

II. Turning to Tibetan authorities, we find in Tāranātha's "History of Buddhism" a reference to the seven Abhidharmas of the Sarvāstivādins.³ Wassilief adds in his note their Sanskrit names on the authority of Bu-ston, a great Tibetan writer who flourished at the beginning of the fourteenth century.⁴ Dr. Fedor H. Stcherbatskoi, of St. Petersburg, who is at present engaged in an edition of Bu-ston's work, was kind enough to furnish me the actual passages of Bu-ston, in an English translation. This is practically the sole authority for my Tibetan list, because

neither Tāranātha nor his translators give the Tibetan names of the seven Abhidharmas.¹

¹ Bu-ston, folio 21 :—“ We must distinguish between the śāstras dealing with the meaning of the Buddha’s words in general, and those which deal with the meaning of some special teaching of the Buddha.

“ I. Grammar, which elucidates the verbal side of the scripture in general, and logic, which elucidates the meaning of it, are said to be the two śāstras appertaining to the whole of the scripture in general, without difference of school or teaching. But I myself hold a different opinion on this topic (namely, that these śāstras are altogether not Buddhistic, but profane sciences).

“ II. Among those śāstras which deal with special teachings of the Buddha, we must distinguish three categories corresponding to the three Dharmacakra-pravartanas. We are going to make known the first category. There, again, among the śāstras dealing with the meaning of the Buddha’s teaching in its first period, we must distinguish between those which elucidate his theoretical views and those which elucidate the practical side of his religion. The first are the seven Abhidharmas, namely :—

1. Dharmaskandha (ཚོས་ཀྱི་ལུང་པོ་), by Śāriputra.
2. Prajñapti śāstra (གདགས་པའི་བསྟན་བཅོས་), by Maudgalyāyana.
3. Dhātukāya (ཁམས་ཀྱི་ཚོགས་), by Pūrṇa.
4. Vijñānakāya (རྣམ་ཤེས་ཚོགས་), by Devakṣema.
5. Jñānaprasthāna (ཡེ་ཤེས་འཇུག་), by Kātyāyana.
6. Prakaraṇa (རབ་ཏུ་བྱེད་པ་), by Vasumitra.
7. Saṃgatiparyāya (ཡང་དག་འགྲོ་བའི་རྣམ་གྲངས་), by Mahā-kausthila (གསུམ་པོ་ཆེ་ཡིས་བྱས་) .

To this I conform. But the Vaibhāṣikas of Kashmir maintain that these seven are the word of the Buddha.

“ What the Master has fragmentarily taught at different places and times to different men has been collected by the Arhats of the Śrāvakas, just as the Udānavarga (ཆེད་དུ་བརྗོད་པའི་ཚོམས་, Ched-du-brjod-paḥi-tsoms) has been. Were it not so, then the number of three piṭakas in the scriptures would be incomplete, because the Abhidharma is, generally speaking, included in the sūtra and the vinaya, since it is occasionally taught in them. The compendium of the meaning of these seven Abhidharmas is styled the Mahāvibhāṣā. An abridged exposition of its teaching is contained in the Abhidharmakośa and similar works.

“ (Vasubandhu says himself in the Abhidharmakośa that this kośa is an exposition of the views of the Kashmirian vaibhāṣikas.) ”

III and IV. Next as to the Chinese authorities who give the tradition concerning the existence of the seven books.

Bu-ston, folio 173 :—“ 1. Lokaprajñapti in 7 chapters.

(འཇིག་རྟེན་གདགས་པ་བམ་པོ་བདུན་)

(Hjig-rten-gdags-pa bam-po-bdun.)

2. Kāraṇaprajñapti in 7 chapters.

(རྒྱ་གདགས་པ་བམ་པོ་བདུན་)

(Rgyu-gdags-pa bam-po-bdun.)

3. Karmaprajñapti in 5 chapters.

(ལས་གདགས་པ་བམ་པོ་ལྔ་)

(Las-gdags-pa bam-po-lña.)

“ These three works are translated by Prajñāsenā. The Vaibhāṣikas maintain that they belong to the scriptures.

“ And although they appear to be mentioned as such in the Great Index (དཀར་ཆག་ཆེན་པོ་, Dkar-chag-chen-po), still there is no doubt that they, conformably to the meaning of the Sautrāntikas and the remaining schools, must be reckoned as śāstras.”

Dr. Stcherbatskoi writes to Mr. Thomas, of the India Office, through whom I obtained the above information, to the following effect :— “ The three prajñaptis translated by Prajñāsenā must be parts of the second Abhidharma, i.e. Prajñapti śāstra. If it be so, then it will result that a part of the seven Abhidharmas was known to the Tibetans, as these three are to be found in the Tanjur Mdo, lxii, 1-107; 107-191; 191-257.”

With the kind help of Mr. Thomas I have compared the Chinese Lokaprajñapti (Nanjio's, 1297; below appendix) with the Tibetan. Both treat of similar subjects, though they seem to differ much in details from each other. In the Chinese Prajñapti śāstra itself (No. 1317) the title Lokaprajñapti is given, but its contents are missing, while the Kāraṇaprajñapti practically forms the whole text. The Tibetan version of the latter has been examined by Mr. Thomas, who furnished me an analysis of it. It gives, like the Chinese text, the lakṣaṇas and ratnas of a Mahāsattva, and raises all sorts of questions as to a Cakravartin, a Bodhisattva, and their surroundings. Thus the two versions, Chinese and Tibetan, treat of one and the same subject, though the latter is much more minute than the former.

The Karmaprajñapti does not exist in Chinese. From the above comparisons, though imperfect owing to the fragmentary condition of the Chinese text, we may assume that Dr. Stcherbatskoi is right in taking the three prajñaptis above referred to, to be parts of the second Abhidharma (i.e. Prajñapti śāstra). The quotations from the Prajñapti śāstra found in the Mahāvibhāṣā (e.g. fasciuli 136, 176) also seem to be of similar nature.

Mr. Thomas took great trouble in looking through the list of the Tibetan works, but failed to find any other of the seven Abhidharmas; we can now safely state with Wassilief that the Sarvāstivādin Abhidharmas do not exist in Tibetan, except the Prajñapti śāstra. The Tibetan Dharmaskandha (Mdo, xx, 3; Wa. 39-46), to which Professor Walleser refers (Phil. Grundl., p. 18), proved, on comparison, to be an entirely different text from the Chinese one, and consequently not one of the seven Abhidharmas in question.

The earliest of all is an interesting note at the end of vol. xxiii (book vi) of the Chinese translation of the Jñānaprasthāna itself (A.D. 379). In this it is said that the 'Aṣṭa-grantha' (= Jñānaprasthāna) is the 'body' (kāya), and there are besides six 'feet' (pāda), amounting to 1,000,000 syllables in all.¹ The next earliest notice of the seven books is found in Nāgārjuna's commentary on the Mahāprajñāpāramitā sūtra (translated A.D. 402-405). This work mentions the "Aṣṭa-grantha-Abhidharma and the six-divisioned Abhidharma."² There is no doubt whatever that this 'Aṣṭa-grantha' of Nāgārjuna refers to Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna, as is proved by evidence from several sources.³ The 'six-divisioned Abhidharma,' however, is not quite clear, the six not being mentioned by name. But as it occurs with the mention of the chief work, Jñānaprasthāna, it is very likely that it refers to the six supplementary works called 'feet' (pāda). For accurate information concerning them it is necessary, as in other cases, to have recourse to Hiuen-tsang (A.D. 629-645), who has translated most of the seven works. His "Record of the Western Kingdom," however, does not mention these seven as one body of Abhidharma literature. His statements that this or that one of the seven had been composed in some particular locality or hermitage shows that some of them, if not all, were at that time very famous among Indian Buddhist scholars.¹

It is his disciple, Fu-kuang (A.D. 645–664, with Hiuen-tsang), who gives in his “Notes on the Abhidharmakośa” a tradition concerning the seven Abhidharmas, one chief text and the six pāda supplements, mentioning them by name.² K’uei-chi (died 682), another disciple of Hiuen-tsang, refers to this division in a colophon to the Chinese Dhātukāya.³ I need not add here that these two obtained this information directly from Hiuen-tsang, who may in turn have been informed by his teachers in Nālandā or may himself have been acquainted with a commentary, like Yaśomitra’s, on the Abhidharmakośa. The official order of the works in Chinese differs from that given in either the Sanskrit or the Tibetan authorities.

The Mahāvibhāṣā, which is itself a commentary on Kātyāyanīputra’s Jñānaprasthāna, and is anterior to Vasubandhu’s Abhidharmakośa, quotes now and again these pāda works, which fact shows again that these supplementary works were held to be of great value for a successful

² 普光. He is known as ‘Ta-shêng-kuang’ (大乘光). The most of Hiuen-tsang’s translations (75 texts altogether) have been dictated to Fu-kuang. His notes taken from Hiuen-tsang’s lecture on the Abhidharmakośa of Vasubandhu have been preserved in Japan, and are known as the “Notes of Fu-kuang” (generally ‘Kō-ki,’ 光記). This is not included in the official collection of the Buddhist works. I regret, however, that this and another important “Notes on the Abhidharma-kośa,” by Fa-pao (法寶), pupil of Hiuen-tsang and I-tsing, have not been consulted in detail, for they are not accessible to me here in England.

exposition of the principal Abhidharma text.¹ Thus the seven books must have existed prior to the compilation of the Mahāvibhāṣā by 500 Arhats, at a time, 400 years according to one account, or 500 years according to the other, after the Buddha's death.²

The names of the seven books quoted in these works are, without exception, given in the Chinese form (see the list IV above).

The Chinese transliterations (the list III above) have been taken from the Catalogue of the Tripiṭaka of the Yuen dynasty called the "Chi-yuen-fa-pao-chien-t'ung-tsung-lu"³ (or generally "Chi-yuen-lu" simply), i.e. "A General Catalogue of the Sacred Texts in the 'Chi-yuen' period" (A.D. 1264–1294). The "Chi-yuen-lu" is based on a comparison of the Chinese Buddhist books with the Tibetan Kanjur, and was compiled by command of Kubilai Khan. Preparatory to the translation of the Tripiṭaka into Mongolian the Emperor Kubilai convened his priestly and lay subordinates and constituted them a committee to examine the contents of the Buddhist works (1,440 in number) then extant in China and Tibet. This committee consisted of some twenty-eight scholars of several countries, China, Tibet, India, Turfan, Wuigur, and Mongolia.

The Chinese texts were compared one by one with their counterparts in Tibetan, where such existed, and in cases where none such existed the fact was carefully noted.

¹ E.g., Nanjio's No. 1263, the Mahāvibhāṣā, 17 (Jap. 収 1, fol. 74b), quotes the Prakaraṇapāda (品類), Vijñānakāya (識身), and Prajñaptipāda (方色設); the same, 23 (収 1, fol. 99b), cites the Saṅgītiparyāya (集異) and Dharmaskandha (法蘊). The Dhātukāya (界身) may be found quoted somewhere. For this information and for note 2, p. 78, I am indebted to Mr. U. Wogihara.

³ 至元法寶勘同總錄, vol. ix, Nanjio, No. 1612.

As to the contents of each work, they were satisfied to state simply whether the two, Chinese and Tibetan, agreed with each other or not. Almost all the Chinese titles were restored by them to their Sanskrit forms, which, though not always correctly given, were arrived at by a fairly accurate system of transliteration, the Chinese sounds then current being used for the purpose.

The work of this commission resulted, as I have said above, in the catalogue under notice, which has been used by Stanislas Julien and Bunyiu Nanjio as their principal guide for the restoration of Sanskrit names.¹ This catalogue I designate elsewhere in this paper as the "Tibeto-Chinese Catalogue."

As for the names of the seven Abhidharmas, great credit is due to the compilers of the Catalogue, inasmuch as they have preserved the correct Sanskrit forms of the names, thus affording us a clue to the identification of the Sanskrit works with the Chinese. The list III is made entirely from this source.

In this Catalogue it is stated that the seven Abhidharmas, one and all, agree with the corresponding Tibetan works, though in reality they do not seem to exist in the Kanjur or Tanjur with the exception of one.²

The evidence we have adduced from Sanskrit, Tibetan, and Chinese sources not being conflicting, we are fairly justified in assuming that at an early period of their separate history the Sarvāstivādins were in possession of an Abhidharma literature consisting of seven books, one principal and six supplementary, as we have seen above; and that these works had been widely studied in Kaśmīra, the seat of this school; and we can say further that the tradition concerning them is comparatively trustworthy, since it has been preserved in practically the same form in India, Tibet, China, and Japan.

Hitherto we have merely dwelt on the traditions concerning the Abhidharma works; let us now proceed to examine the actual texts preserved in China and Japan.

4. AN ANALYSIS OF THE SEVEN ABHIDHARMA WORKS OF THE SARVĀSTIVĀDINS.

I. JÑĀNAPRASTHĀNA,

BY ĀRYA KĀTYĀYANĪPUTRA.

(Skt. 1; Tib. 5; Tib.-Chin. 1; Chin. 1.)

There exist in Chinese two different translations of this text, made in the fourth and in the seventh century. The two bear different names, the one "Aṣṭa-grantha" (or Aṭṭha-gantho), the other "Jñānaprasthāna," thus confirming the statement by Paramārtha (A.D. 499-569), who, in his Life of Vasubandhu, alludes to this work as having two names.¹

A-p'i-t'an-pa-chien-tu-lun.²
Abhidharmāṣṭa-grantha(-śāstra) (generally called the "Aṣṭagrantha").

Nanjio's Cat., No. 1273.

B.

A-p'i-ta-mo-fa-chi-lun.³
The Abhidharma śāstra—
"Opening of Knowledge" (generally called the "Jñānaprasthāna").

Nanjio's Cat., No. 1275.

¹ See my translation of Paramārtha's Life of Vasubandhu (Tong-pao, July, 1904), pp. 276-277, and compare my study of this life (J.R.A.S., Jan., 1905, p. 52).

² 阿毗曇八犍度論. The eight 'Chien-tu' is in Paramārtha, l.c., 'Kan-tu' (乾度), which he himself says is equivalent to Skt. Ka-lan-la (Grantha). M. Sylvain Lévi suggests that 'Kan-tu' or 'Chien-tu' represents more likely the Prākṛit form 'Gantho.'

³ 阿毗達磨發智論. 'Fa-chi' may mean 'production of knowledge.'

Amount: 8 chien-tu (gantho); 44 po-ch'ü (vaggo).¹ 30 chüan (fasciculi); 554 pages (ye). Author: Chia-chan-yen-tsu³ [Kātyāyanīputra]. Translators: Chü-t'an Sang-chie-ti-po⁵ [Gotama Saṅghadeva], from Ka-pin (Kaśmīra), A.D. 383; and Chu Fo-nien (a Chinese), A.D. 350-417.	Amount: 8 groups (yün; skandha); 44 sections (na-hsi; varga).² 20 chüan (fasciculi); 382 pages (ye). Author: The venerable Chia-to-yen-ni- tsü⁴ [Ārya Kātyāyanīputra]. Translator: Hiuen-tsang, A.D. 657-660.

A vaggo by T'an-mo-pi [Dham-mapiya] from Ka-pin (Kaśmīra).

These two are translations from one and the same text. Though the originals seem to have had variant readings here and there, the translations do not present any material difference in general scope. At the beginning of every ¹ Po-ch'ü (跋柴) is likely 'vaggo.' A does not seem to have been in Sanskrit.

N.B.—Generally speaking, 'sections' or 'chapters' are the divisions of the original text, whereas 'fasciculus' (chüan) is that made according to the convenience of the Chinese editors. In almost all instances these two methods of division, original and editorial, are adopted. One fasciculus (chüan) contains as a rule 18-21 Chinese pages (ye). In calculating we can take one Chinese page (it is really a folio in large print) as about equivalent to one page octavo.

² 八蘊四十四納息. 'Yün' is 'aggregate' (skandha) in Chinese. Hiuen-tsang's original seems to have had 'Skandha' instead of 'Grantha.' 'Na-hsi' is the translation of 'Varga,' and means 'interception of breath,' the sense of which is not quite clear to me. Perhaps as a class of consonants, which are generally pronounced by stopping breath, is called 'varga,' Hiuen-tsang may have used this translation, or one section may be understood by him to mean the resting of one's breath in reciting a text.

⁴ 迦多衍尼子. Kātyāyanīputra is said to have lived 300 years A.B.; see Watters, "Yuan-Chwang," i, p. 294.

chapter Kātyāyanīputra raises a series of questions which are subsequently to be answered by him, and then deals with them one by one. The list of questions (the mātikā) is generally left out by Hiuen-tsang, thus making his version much shorter than that of his predecessors. Unless the discovery of a Tibetan counterpart may be hoped for, the Chinese version in two recensions stands as the sole representative of the text.

Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna is, be it stated again, the fundamental and all-important work of the Sarvāstivāda school, and it seems to have occupied a prominent position in its literature, for it is to this, as we have seen above, that the six so-called 'feet' (pāda) stand in the relation of supplements, and it is on this again that the great commentary, Mahāvibhāṣā, has been drawn up. The original Indian text is said, in the earlier translation (A), to have consisted of 15,072 ślokas, or rather a corresponding number of syllables in prose, namely, 482,304 syllables.¹ In what language, however, the original text was composed we have no means of ascertaining. All we can say is that the text brought by Saṃghadeva and Dhammapiya from Kaśmīra seems to have been in a dialect akin to Pāli, whereas the text used by Hiuen-tsang, as in other cases, seems to have been in Sanskrit. But this supposition rests solely on the phonetic value of Chinese ideographs employed in these translations, and is not corroborated by any other evidence.

¹ A preface to the book written by Tao-an (died A.D. 385), a contemporary of the translators, gives the number of ślokas or syllables as follows: 梵本十五千七十二首盧, 四十八萬(一)千(五)百四言, 秦言十九萬五千二百五十言其人忘因緣一品云言數可與十門等也. (The characters in brackets seem to be misprints of (二) and (三) respectively.) "The Fan (Brāhmī) text consisted of 15,072 ślokas, or 482,304 syllables. In the Chin (Chinese) tongue, 195,250 words. This man (i.e. Saṃghadeva, the translator) forgot (and could not recite) a chapter on Causes (Bk. vi, 7 below), but said that the number of its syllables was equal to that of the 'Ten Gates.'" The 'Ten Gates' is Bk. ii, 4, which is said to have been in 1,600 ślokas, twelve letters (syllables) extra.

That this book belongs exclusively to the Sarvāstivādins may be taken as certain from the fact that at the end of each of eight fasciculi in Hiuen-tsang's translation it is distinctly stated, as seen from the analysis given below, that it belongs to this school.

Hiuen-tsang himself visited the monastery Tāmasāvana in Chīnapati in N. India, in which there were three hundred brethren of the Sarvāstivāda school, who were thorough students of the Hīnayāna. He records that this was the monastery in which, three hundred years after the Buddha's nirvāṇa, Ka-to-yen-na (Kātyāyana) composed his "Fa-chi-lun" (Jñānaprasthāna).¹ This statement of Hiuen-tsang also connects the book with this school, and again we have an indication to the same effect in the Tibeto-Chinese Catalogue above referred to, vol. ix. Under the heading of the Abhidharma literature the following statement occurs:— "The Abhidharma-piṭaka of the Śrāvakas (of the Hīnayāna) consists of 38 texts (pu), 708 fasciculi (chüan), and 73 cases (chih). The Abhidharma-piṭaka is not one and the same in all schools. Now according to (the method of) the Sarvāstivāda school we place the original work, 'body' (kāya), first, and the supplementary works, 'feet' (pāda), next. The branches thereof, the Vibhāṣā and the like, are placed last. Those of the other schools come next in order."²

Since this work is the key to all the subsequent philosophical literature of the Buddhists, I give here a somewhat detailed account of its contents.

CONTENTS OF THE JÑĀNAPRASTHĀNA.

A.

B.

GANTHO I: MISCELLANEOUS.

GROUP I: MISCELLANEOUS.

(雜 犍 度 第 一)

(雜 蘊 第 一)

1. Lokuttara-dhamma-vaggo.¹

Lokottara-dharma-varga.

(世 間 第 一 法 跋 渠 一)

(世 第 一 法 納 息 一)

What is the Lokuttara-dhamma?²—to what category does it belong?—why is it the highest in the world?—its definition—its bearings—its relation to 22 sakkāya-diṭṭhis³—the transcendental conditions compared with the other conditions, etc.

It is stated at the end of the first vaggo: “The original text of the vaggo consisted of 528 ślokas.”

2. Knowledge (ñāna)-vaggo.

Knowledge-section.

(智 跋 渠 二)

(智 納 息 二)

The cause of knowledge—memory—doubt—six causes of stupidity reproved by the Buddha—cessation of the causes, etc.

At the end: “The original second vaggo consisted of 230 ślokas, 20 letters (syllables) extra.”

¹ I have throughout attempted to restore the Indian words probably represented by the Chinese translations.' In doing so I have not thought it either necessary or even desirable to confine myself to the Sanskrit forms. It seems to me more than probable that the Jñānaprasthāna at least was written in some dialect: one thinks naturally of the dialect of Kaśmīra, but we really have no certainty that the Jñānaprasthāna was not composed in Kosala. I use the nominative form in the cases of Gantho and Vaggo because I think that the phonetic value of the Chinese requires it.

³ Compare Childers, s.v.: vīsativatthukā sakkāyaditṭhi attavādupadānaṃ.

3. Individuality (puggala)-vaggo. Pu-tu-chie-lo (pudgala)-section.

(人跋渠三)

(補特伽羅納息三)

How many of the 12 paṭiccasamuppādas do belong to the past, present, and future puggala?—final liberation, etc. Several passages from the Āgama quoted.

At the end: “The original vaggo consisted of 148 ślokas, 16 letters (syllables) extra.”

4. Vaggo on love and reverence. Section on love and reverence.

(愛恭敬跋渠四)

(愛敬納息四)

Respect out of love (pema)—respect out of honour (gārava)¹—two sorts of honour (gārava), with wealth (dhana) and with religion (dhamma)—strength of the body—Nirvāna the ultimate end, etc.

At the end: “The original text, 373 ślokas, 10 letters (syllables) extra.”

5. Ahirikānottappa-vaggo. Section on shamelessness (ahrīkatā).

(無慚愧跋渠五)

(無慚納息五)

Shamelessness (ahirikā)—fearlessness of sinning (anottappa)²—the increasing demerits (akusalamūla), etc.

At the end: “The original text of this vaggo consists of 220 ślokas.”

6. Form (rūpa)-vaggo. Section on characteristics (lakṣaṇa).

(色跋渠六)

(相納息六)

The rūpa-dhamma going through birth and death is impermanent—why can it be called a ‘form’?—impermanence (anitya), etc., etc.

² Mahāvīyutp., § 104 (49, 50), āhrīkyam, anapatrapyam; Dharmasaṅgraha, § 30, ahrīkatā, anapatrapā.

7. Objectlessness (anatta)-vaggo. Section on objectlessness.

(無義跋渠七)

(無義納息七)

All the practices of austerity are vain—things desired cannot be secured, etc.

At the end: “The original text, 97 ślokas.”

8. Thought (cetanā)-vaggo. Section on thought (cetanā).

(思跋渠八)

(思納息八)

Thinking — reflecting — awakening (vitakka) — observing (vicāra)—unsettled mind (uddhacca)¹—ignorance (avijjā)—arrogance (māna)—hardness of heart, etc.

At the end: “The original text, 326 ślokas, 18 letters (syllables) extra.”

(SĀMYOJANA).

(結使犍度二)

(結蘊二)

1. Vaggo on demerits (akusalamūla).

Section on 10 demerits (daśākusalamūla).

(不善跋渠一)

(十不善納息一)

3 saṃyojanas—5 views—9 saṃyojanas—98 anuśayas—their details, scopes, results, etc.

2. Vaggo on those who come but once (sakadāgāmin).¹ Section on those who come but once (sakṛdāgāmin).
 (一行跋渠二) (一行納息二)
 The germs of passions, etc., still left in the sakadāgāmins—9 forms of pahāna-pariññā,² etc.
 At the end: "The original text, 1,040 ślokas."
3. Vaggo on man. Section on sentient being (sattva).
 (人跋渠三) (有情納息三)
 Moral defilements arising from views—those arising from practices—4 fruits of sāmāñña—death and rebirth—regions having no rebirth, etc.
 At the end: "The original text, 467 ślokas."
4. Vaggo on 10 gates. Section on 10 gates.
 (十門跋渠四) (十門納息四)
 Causes of moral defilements (1)—single cause (2)—double cause (3)—order of various thoughts (4)—awakening thought (5)—thought connected with indriyas (6)—completion (7)—incompletion (8)—knowledge that can destroy the causes (prahāṇa-parijñā) (9)—realization of the destruction (nirodha-sākṣātkāra) (10).³
 At the end: "The original text, 1,600 ślokas, 12 letters (syllables) extra."

B.

GROUP III: KNOWLEDGE (JÑĀNA).
 (智蘊三)

¹ Mr. Wogihara thinks that the 'I-hsing,' meaning 'one-going,' is quite different from the 'I-lai,' i.e. 'one-coming,' which is the translation of 'sakadāgāmin.' He suggests that it may be 'ekatra-ga,' judging from an analogy of 'sarvatra-ga' (pien-hsing).

² See Childers, s.v. pariññā; Skt. prahāṇa-parijñā.

³ I put here Sanskrit on the authority of Mr. Wogihara.

1. Vaggo on 8 stages (sekha and asekha). Section on the branches of learning (śikṣāṅga).

(八道跋渠一)

(學支納息一)

Knowledge attained by the lower grades of sanctification—the state of an Arhat—views (diṭṭhi)—knowledge (ñāna)—wisdom (paññā)—views of those free from passion (anāsava-samādiṭṭhi),¹ etc.

At the end: “The original text, 430 ślokas.”

2. Vaggo on the 5 kinds (of views, right and wrong). Section on the 5 kinds.

(五種跋渠二)

(五種納息二)

Wrong views — right views — wrong knowledge — right knowledge—views of an asekha, etc.

At the end: “The original text, 200 ślokas, 14 letters extra.”

3. Vaggo on the knowledge of another's mind (paracittañāna).² Section on the knowledge of another's mind.

(知他心智跋渠三)

(他心智納息三)

What is the knowledge that discerns another's thought?—the knowledge of the past life (pubbenivāsānussatiñāna),³ etc.

At the end: “The original text, 132 ślokas.”

4. Vaggo on the cultivation of knowledge. Section on the cultivation of knowledge.

(修智跋渠四)

(修智納息四)

Cultivation of the eightfold knowledge—dharmajñāna—*anvaya*jñāna—*saṃvṛti*jñāna—*duḥkha*j.—*samudaya*j.—*nirodha*j.—*mārga*j.—*kṣaya*j.—*anupāda*j.⁴—its relation with the secular knowledge, etc.

- GANTHO IV: ACTION (KAMMA). GROUP IV: ACTION (KARMA).
 (行慥度四) (業蘊四)
1. Vaggo on wicked actions. Section on wicked actions.
 (惡行跋渠一) (惡行納息一)
 All details of sinful actions (3 duccharitas: kāya-, vacī-, mano-)—their results, etc.
 At the end: "The original text, 192 ślokas."
2. Vaggo on erroneous speech. Section on erroneous speech.
 (邪語跋渠二) (邪語納息二)
 All details of sins by speech (micchāvācā)—their results, etc.
 At the end: "The original, 245 ślokas."
3. Vaggo on injury to living beings (himsā). Section on injury to life (himsā).
 (害衆生三) (害生三)
 All details of sins of killing life—their results, etc.
 At the end: "The original, 309 ślokas." At the end: "This belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."
4. Vaggo on the demonstratable and undemonstratable. Section on the visible and invisible (vijñāpty-avijñāpti).
 (有教無教跋渠四) (表無表納息四)
 All good and bad actions (kusalākusala) relating to the past and future, etc.¹

5. Vaggo on actions bearing the selfsame results. Section on actions bearing the selfsame results.

(自行跋渠五)

(自業納息五)

Actions bearing the like fruits, etc. Here a curious allusion to speech is given. Speech is said to be in ten forms, i.e., Buddha-vāk, -jalpa, -vyāhāra, -girā, -bhāṣya, -nirukti, -vāk-svara, -vāk-patha, action by mouth (-vāk-karman), demonstration by mouth (-vāg-vijñapti).¹

At the end: "The original, 185 ślokas."

At the end: "This belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

THE GREAT SEEDS.

(四大犍度五)

(大種蘊五)

1. Vaggo on pure organs (indriya). Section on the products of the Great (mahābhūta).

(淨根跋渠一)

(大造納息一)

The four elements—product of a combination of the four—complete and incomplete products—their causes, etc.

At the end: "The original, 392 ślokas."

2. Vaggo on conditions (of the combination of elements). Section on conditions.

(緣跋渠二)

(緣納息二)

Conditions (pratyaḥ) —elements of the past—those of the future, etc.

At the end: "The original, 547 ślokas."

3. Vaggo on the visible truth. Section on the visible.

(見諦跋渠三)

(具見納息三)

Things belonging to the rūpa-dhātu are summarily explained.

¹ I follow mostly Mr. Wogihara's restoration of these words.

4. Vaggo on internal products. Section on the perception-elements.
(內造跋渠四) (執受納息四)
Sensations, feelings, ideas, etc., are discussed.
At the end: "The original, 210

vaggo. Thus the whole text of the Aṭṭha-gantho was complete. T'an-mo-pi (Dhamma-piya) said that the Aṭṭha-gantho is the 'body' (kāya) only, and there are besides six 'feet' (pāda), 1,000,000 syllables in all. T'an-mo-pi (Dhamma-piya) could recite only two of these 'feet,' and the whole could not be reproduced in translation. While saying this he deeply regretted. This note was added in the Ching-kuan monastery of Yang-chou on the 19th of the first month in the 19th year of the Chien-yuen period (A.D. 379) in the Chin Dynasty (A.D. 351-395)."¹

6. Gāthā-vaggo.

Gāthā-section.

(偈跋渠六)

(伽他納息六)

Unbelieving mind—36 wicked views—passions—Brāhmans, etc.—several parables. 21 verses in all.

The 12th Gāthā runs as follows :

“Ma-sha tu-sha sang-shi-ma sa-pi-ta-la-pi-pi-li-ta : this is the end of sorrow.” Here it is added that these are the words of the T’an-mi-la (Damiḷa, i.e. Tamil) language, and they are explained:— ‘Ma-sha,’ do not care or hope for evils ; ‘tu-sha,’ gladly adapt to the law ; ‘sang-shi-ma,’ check or control one’s self ; ‘sa-pi-ta-la-pi-pi-li-ta,’ escape completely from or abandon the state of being.¹

At the end : “The original text, 110 ślokaś.”

The Gāthā in this text is different, and goes as follows :

“Ei-ni mi-ni kiu-pu ta-ye-pu : do not care for (evils), (but) be satisfied, be subdued, escape fully from the borders of sorrow.” ‘Ei-ni,’ ‘mi-ni,’ ‘kiu-pu,’ ‘ta-ye-pu’ are said to be the words of the mu-li-sha (mleccha), and mean respectively ‘duḥkha,’ ‘samudaya,’ ‘nirodha,’ and ‘mārga,’—the four ārya-satyas being expressed by the Buddha in the barbarian dialect.²

² 醫泥, 及, 謎泥, 踰鋪, 達鞞鋪 ; 勿希, 應喜, 寂偏離苦邊 (懷戾車語). Mark that ‘ma-sha tu-sha sang-shi-ma sa-pi-ta-la-pi-pi-li-ta’ are said to be Damiḷa words, whereas ‘ei-ni mi-ni kiu-pu ta-ye-pu’ are Mleccha expressions. My friend the Rev. Monk Jones kindly took much trouble in trying to identify some of these words, which, however, are not to be recognized in modern Tamil. Mr. Wogihara ingeniously identifies the former with Sanskrit, while he considers the latter to be a Damiḷa or Mleccha version. His restoration into Sanskrit is as follows : “M’āśaya, tuśya, samśāmya, sarvatra vivīṅdhi (\sqrt{vic}).” This is partly confirmed by the Vibhāṣā-lun (No. 1279), in which these words are represented as follows : “Ma-sha, tu-sha, sang-sha-ma, sa-pa-ta pi-li-la.” A difficulty lies still in the last word ‘pi-pi-li-ta’ or ‘pi-li-la,’ both having ‘li’ (or ‘ri’) in the medial syllable. We may therefore suggest, for this original, ‘vi-vīṅdhi’ (\sqrt{vrj}) instead of ‘vi-vīṅdhi.’ For an example of Hiuen-tsang’s translating \sqrt{vrj} by Ch. 離, see next page, note on ‘vajjian.’

The other Gāthā in No. 1279 is somewhat different, and is as follows : “Yin-ning (duḥkha), mi-ning (samudaya), ta-pa (nirodha), ta-la-pa (mārga).” These words are there said to be Damiḷa.

II. SAṄGĪTI-PARYĀYA.

BY

MAHĀ-KAUṢṬHILA (according to Yaśomitra and Bu-ston).

ŚĀRIPUTRA (according to the Chinese authorities).

(Skt. 7; Tib. 7; Tib.-Chin. 3; Chin. 2.)

The Saṅgīti-paryāya is the first of the six pāda supplements to Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna. In form it is very much like the Puggala-paññatti, the Aṅguttara method of arranging materials according to their numerical order being followed in both cases. This outward arrangement was probably modelled on the Saṅgīti-sutta of the Dīghanikāya; hence the name Saṅgīti-paryāya. The contents, however, of the ones, twos, threes, etc., are usually different.

This book is ascribed by Yaśomitra to Mahā-kauşṭhila, and so also by Bu-ston, whereas in the Chinese translation the author is put down as Śāriputra. Both Śāriputra and Mahā-kauşṭhila are personal disciples of the Buddha. Whether it belongs to either of these disciples or not, it appears to be one of the old works in existence. Among the seven Abhidharma works it is posterior to none but the Dharma-skandha, which is frequently quoted in it, and must therefore be anterior to it. The quasi-historical section of this work tells us that Śāriputra, personally advised and inspired by the Buddha, thought it best to collect the more important Dharmas taught by the Master, because the Dharmas held by the Vajjian¹ Bhikṣus of Pāvā were not the true ones. He convened, it goes on, his friends, and rehearsed (saṅgīta) the laws according as they had been taught by the Master. This, he thought, would prevent any dissension in the future when there was no Buddha.

This story is repeated in a short form at the beginning of every chapter; and at the end of the whole work the Buddha praises Śāriputra with the word “Sādhu!” and is represented to have said that the Ekottara-dharmaparyāyas (Āṅuttara-dhammapariyāyas)¹ thus rehearsed and collected at the convocation of Bhikṣus should be preached often by him (Śāriputra) before the public. The Buddha further turns to the Saṅgha and advises the Bhikṣus to learn and recite the Saṅgīti-paryāya² propounded by Śāriputra.

The work was probably compiled by a Mahā-kauṣṭhila at a time after the council of Vaiśālī³ which was held chiefly for suppressing the ten theses of the Vajjian Bhikṣus, and later on it might have come to be ascribed to Śāriputra because he is the hero of the narrative throughout the work.

³ It may be soon after the council or may be centuries after it. At any rate, it is certain that it must be after the council just referred to, i.e. 100 years A.B., because it refers to the dissension of the Vajjian Bhikṣus, and moreover it must be later than the Saṅgīti-sutta of the Dīgha-nikāya or the Āṅuttara-nikāya, on which the book seems to have been modelled, or it may belong to the period in which the Āṅuttara form of compilation was prevalent.

4. Section on Tri-dharmas (三法品四).

3 akuśalamūlas (lobha, dveṣa, moha); 3 kuśalamūlas; 3 good and bad vitarkas; 3 duścaritas (kāya, vāk, manas); 3 dhātus; 3 pudgalas; 3 sthaviras (elders in age, in the world, in the law); 3 rāṣis; 3 āpattivutthānas (ways of finding fault with others, by seeing, hearing, or suspecting); 3 vedanās; 3 vidyās, and 25 more threes.

The Dharma-skandha (Fa-yun-lun) is quoted in chüan 3; at the end of chüan 3, 4, 5 it is stated: "This belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

5. Section on Catur-dharmas (四法品五).

4 āryasatyas; 4 śrāmaṇyaphalas; 4 pudgalas; 4 speeches; 4 samyakprahāṇas; 4 apramāṇas; 4 smṛtyupasthānas, and 14 more fours.

The Dharma-skandha (Fa-yun-lun) is quoted in chüan 7; at the end of chüan 6-10: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

¹ 一切有情依食而住. 'All beings live on food' put under 'Eka-dharma' may, to some, seem strange, but an instance of this is found in the Sāmaṇera-pañham of the Khuddaka-nikāya, where under the question "Eka nāma kiṃ?" the answer is given as "Sabbe sattā āhāraṭṭhitikā." See my "Pāli Chrestomathy," p. 243, and the authorities cited in the note, p. xv.

6. Section on Pañca-dharmas (五法品六).

5 skandhas; 5 upādānaskandhas; 5 sorts of attachment (to nativity, home, love, luxury, religion); 5 balas; 5 indriyas; 5 śuddhāvāsadevas; 5 gatis; 5 nivarāṇas, and 16 more fives.

At the end of chüan 11-14: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

7. Section on Ṣaḍ-dharmas (六法品七).

6 vijñānakāyas; 6 sparśakāyas; 6 saṃjñākāyas; 6 vedanākāyas; 6 dhātus; 6 abhijñās; 6 anuttaryadharmas, and 13 more sixes.

The Dharma-skandha (Fa-yun-lun) is quoted in chüan 15; at the end of chüan 15: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

8. Section on Sapta-dharmas (七法品八).

At the end of chüan 16, 17: "This belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

9. Section on Aṣṭa-dharmas (八法品九).

8 ārya-mārgas; 8 pudgalas; 8 dānas; 8 vimuktis; 8 abhibhvāyatanas; 8 lokadharmas, and 4 more eights.

The Dharma-skandha (Fa-yun-lun) is quoted in chüan 18; at the end of chüan 18: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

10. Section of Nava-dharmas (九法品十).

9 abodes of beings (sattvāvasas); 9 saṃyojanas.

11. Section on Daśa-dharmas (十法品十一).

12. Section on Admonition.

On the completion of the Saṅgīti collection the Buddha praises Śāriputra, and says: "Well done! Well done! Thou hast now come together with the Saṅgha of Pi-shus (Bhikṣus), and rehearsed - and - collected the 'Ekottara-dharmaparyāya' (增一法門) taught by the Ju-lai (Tathāgata). Thou shouldst, from this time onward, repeatedly propound this to the public." Then the Buddha turns to the Saṅgha of Pi-shu (Bhikṣus) and says: "Ye all should learn, hold, and recite the 'Saṅgīti-paryāya' (集異法門) propounded by Śāriputra."

At the end of chüan 20 it is said: "This belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

III. PRAKARAṆA-PĀDA.

BY STHAVIRA VASUMITRA.

(Skt. 2; Tib. 6; Tib.-Chin. 6; Chin. 3.)

This is the second of the six pāda works of the Sarvāstivādins according to the Chinese authorities. There exist in Chinese two translations of it which seem to have been made from one and the same recension of the text. Hiuen-tsang tells us that this work was composed by Vasumitra in a monastery at Puṣkaravatī (Peukelautis).¹ This shows that the book, or at any rate the name of it, was well-known among the Buddhist scholars at the Chinese traveller's time. The name must have been originally the "Abhidharma-prakarāṇa," and when it assumed a position among the supplementary treatises as a pāda work, it might have come to be called the "Prakarāṇa-pāda." 'Prakarāṇa' is understood by the Chinese authorities to mean 'classification' as seen from the titles in Chinese.

IV. VIJÑĀNA-KĀYA.

BY STHAVIRA DEVAŚARMĀ.

(Skt. 3; Tib. 4; Tib.-Chin. 4; Chin. 4.)

This work is the third of the six pāda treatises of the Sarvāstivāda school, according to the Chinese authorities. The title means, I think, the "body or group of (subjects connected with) consciousness," though the term 'vijñānakāya' in its technical sense seems to be used somewhat differently.¹ The Chinese authorities, especially the Tibeto-Chinese Catalogue, assigns an early date, i.e. 100 years after the Buddha's death, to the author Devaśarmā. There is, however, nothing in this work to indicate that it can claim a higher antiquity than the date of Kātyāyanīputra's Jñānaprasthāna, which is assigned by the same authorities to 300 years after the Buddha's death. Hiuen-tsang tells us that this work was compiled by Devaśarmā in P'i-sho-ka (Viśoka), near Śrāvastī.²

BY

PŪRṆA (according to Yaśomitra and Bu-ston).

VASUMITRA (according to the Chinese authorities),

300 years after the Buddha's death (accord. to the Tib.-Chin. Catal.).

(Skt. 6; Tib. 3; Tib.-Chin. 5; Chin. 5.)

This is the fourth of the six pāda works of the Sarvāstivādins. The original, probably Sanskrit, text seems to have existed in two or three versions. The larger text was, according to K'uei-chi, a disciple of Hiuen-tsang, of 6,000 ślokas in length, whereas the other, middle and smaller ones, were of 900 and 500 ślokas respectively. The text which was translated by Hiuen-tsang was of 830 ślokas and was apparently the middle one.¹

It treats of all mental faculties which this school assumes as separate elements called 'dhātu.'

Though Yaśomitra gives the title in his Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā as "Dhātukāya," I think it ought to be, as it is in the Tibeto-Chinese Catalogue, i.e. list iii above, "Ta-tu-chia-ya-fa-ta (Dhātu-kāya-pāda)," and then it would mean "The pāda treatise on the kāya (body or group) of Dhātus." Compare the title, Vijñānakāya, given above.²

Colophon by K'uei-chi (died A.D. 682), pupil of Hiuen-tsang: "The Dhātu-kāya is one of the six pādas on the Jñānaprasthāna, which belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school. My personal master, Hiuen-tsang, finished a Chinese translation of this text on the 4th day of the 6th moon in the 3rd year of the Lung-tse period of the Augustan T'ang dynasty, while staying at the Yu-hua palace. The larger text of this treatise consisted of 6,000 ślokas. Afterwards, as it was found too complicated, it was abridged by a scholar in two forms, one in 900 ślokas, the other in 500 ślokas. The present translation consists of 830 ślokas (and is the middle one).

BY

ĀRYA ŚĀRIPUTRA (according to Yaśomitra and Bu-ston).

MAHĀMAUDGALYĀYANA (according to the Chinese authorities).

(Skt. 4; Tib. 1; Tib.-Chin. 2; Chin. 6.)

This work is the fifth of the six pādas of the Sarvāstivāda school. Though it is now placed among the supplementary pādas it is not inferior in its matter and form to the principal work of this school, i.e. the Jñānaprasthāna. Perhaps it does not go so much into details of metaphysical questions as the latter does, but it treats of all important points of the fundamental principles of this school, and the importance of this work seems to have been recognized by the writers of the other pādas—for instance, the author of the Saṅgītiparyāya, who often quotes it. As to the authorship of this work, we have no means of ascertaining whether either, and if so, which of the two, Śāriputra and Maudgalyāyana, was the actual writer.

The Tibetan Dharmaskandha in the Kandjur Mdo, xx (fols. 39–46), hitherto supposed to be a version of our text, proved on comparison to be a quite different book.¹

Author: The venerable Ta-mu-ch'ien lien (Ārya Mahā-maudgalyāyana).

Translator: Hiuen-tsang, A.D. 659.

CONTENTS OF THE DHARMASKANDHA.

Section 1: Śikṣāpadas (學處品一).

Five precepts (śīla), etc.

Section 2: Srotaāpattyaṅga (預流支品二).

Srotaāpannas, their attainment, etc.

At the end of chüan 1 it is stated: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 3: Attainment of purity (avetyaprasāda) (證淨品三).

4 sorts of purity: As to Buddha, Dharma, Saṅgha, and śīla; stage of an ārya-pudgala, etc.

Section 4: Result of Śramaṇaship (沙門果品四).

² 阿毗達磨法蘊足論，尊者大目乾連造，玄奘譯。

Section 5 : Mental experience (abhijñāpratipad) (通行品五).

Regulation of feeling in face of suffering and joy, etc.¹

Section 6 : Noble race (聖種品六).

At the end of chüan 2 : "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 7 : Right victory (正勝品七).

4 forms of victory : suppression of bad that has been produced ; prevention of bad that may come in the future ; development of good that has been produced ; cultivation of good for the future.

Section 8 : Constituents of magic power (神足品八).

4 modes of obtaining Rddhipāda : meditation (samādhi) ; energy (vīrya) ; memory (smṛti) ; suppression of desire (achanda).²

At the end of chüan 3 : "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 9 : Smṛtyupsthānas (念住品九).

4 modes of the earnest meditation : on the (impurity of the) body (kāyānupaśyanā) ; on the (evils of the) sensations (vedanānupaśyanā) ; on the (evanescence of) thought (cittānupaśyanā) ; on the conditions (of existence) (dharmānupaśyanā).³

At the end of chüan 4 : "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 10 : Ārya-satyas (聖諦品十).

A short account is given of the preaching of the 4 noble truths by the Buddha at Benares, and the truths are explained.

Section 11: Meditation (dhyāna) (靜慮品十一).

At the end of chüan 5: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 12: The immeasurable (apramāṇa) (無量品十二).

At the end of chüan 6: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 13: The formless (arūpa) (無色品十三).

4 stages of the ārūpya-dhātu.

Section 14: Bhāvanā-samādhi (修定品十四).

Meditation for cultivating the reasoning faculty (bhāvanā-samādhi) is detailed.

Section 15: Branches of knowledge (Bodhyaṅga) (覺支品十五).

At the end of chüan 7: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 16: Miscellaneous matters¹ (雜事品十六).

Other mental faculties, passions, etc.

At the end of chüan 8: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Section 17: Indriyas (根品十七).

22 indriyas (see above, p. 93).

Section 18: Āyatanas (處品十八).

12 āyatanas (organs and objects of sense).²

Section 19: Skandhas (蘊品十九).

5 skandhas.

Section 20: Various principles (Nānādhātu) (多界品二十).

6 principles; 18 principles (dhātu); 62 principles in all.

¹ This is "Kṣudravastuka," and is quoted in Yaśomitra's Kośavyākhyā (Wogihara).

² See the analysis of the Prakaraṇapāda, 3 (p. 105).

Section 21: Pratītyasamutpādās (緣起品二十一).

At the end of chüan 10: "It belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school."

Colophon by Ching-mai (A.D. 664) is to the following effect: "The Fa-yün-tsu (Dharmaskandha) is the most important of the Abhidharma works, and the fountain-head of the Sarvāstivāda system. It is a work of Mo-ho Mu-ch'ien-lien (Mahā-maudgalyāyana). The Sarvāstivāda school, which is superior to all other schools, is in possession of a rich literature, such as the Jñānaprasthāna (發智) in the eight Ganthos, the Mahāvibhāṣā (廣說) by 500 Arhats, the Nyāyānusāra (順正理) that repels one's doubts, and the Samayapradīpikā (顯真宗) that corrects one's error. Hiuen-tsang, master of the Tripiṭaka, translated the Dharmaskandha on the 14th day of the 9th moon in the 4th year of the Hien-ching period of the August T'ang dynasty (A.D. 659), in the Kung-fa Garden of the Monastery Ta-tsu-an-ssu in Chang-an, Shi kuang (Fu-kuang, see p. 79, note 2, above) taking note, Ching-mai putting it into literary form, and Chi-tung making a final revision."¹

VII. PRAJÑĀPTI-ŚĀSTRA.

BY ĀRYA MAUDGALYĀYANA (according to Yośomitra and Bu-ston).

The author's name lost (according to Tib.-Chin. Catalogue).

This work is the sixth of the six pādas of the Sarvāstivāda school, according to the Chinese authorities. The text preserved among the Chinese books is of doubtful character. First of all, it was not translated until the eleventh century (A.D. 1004–1058), and the name of its author is said to have been lost.¹ In its contents the first section, called the “Loka-prajñāpti,” is missing, though the title is given there as seen from the analysis below. In a note it is stated that the first section, “Loka-prajñāpti,” exists in the commentary, but the text does not exist in the original (按釋論有此門梵本元闕). However, no such commentary seems to exist in the Chinese collection, so far as I am aware, and nothing can be ascertained as to the real state of the text.² There is no indication that this work belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school, as in the cases of the other pādas. Notwithstanding this, we have to regard this work at present as the authentic pāda of this school, since there is no other alternative that can be suggested.

Prajñāpti-śāstra.

Nanjio's Catalogue, No. 1317.

Amount: 14 sections (mên); 7 fasciculi (chüan); 55 pages (ye).

Author: No author's name is given.

Translators: Fa-hu (Dharmarakṣa or Dharmapāla), priest from Magadha (who came to China A.D. 1004), and others, A.D. 1004–1058.

³ 施設論, 宋西天三藏法護等譯. This book is usually quoted in the works peculiar to this school as 施設足論 (Prajñāpti-pāda).

CONTENTS OF THE PRAJÑAPTIŚĀSTRA.

1. Instruction about the world (Loka-prajñapti) belonging to the Abhidharma - mahāśāstra (對法大論世間施設門一).¹
This section Loka-prajñapti is practically missing; no word is given there except a note to the following effect: "In the commentary this section exists, but the text is wanting in the original (按釋論有此門梵本元闕)." We know nothing of the commentary referred to.²
2. Instruction about Causes (Kāraṇa-prajñapti) (因施設門二).
Out of the 7 ratnas of a Cakravartī king, strī, gṛhapati, and pariṇāyaka are spoken of.
3. The same.
The other ratnas: cakra, hastin, aśva, maṇi; longevity of the king; 32 signs; 1,000 sons, etc.
4. The same.
The Bodhisattva's birth in the Tuṣita heaven; conception and birth on earth; Ānanda, etc.
5. The same.
The Bodhisattva is the highest of all beings; Nirvāṇa, etc.
6. The same.
32 signs of Buddha and Cakravartī king; other superior qualities of the Bodhisattva, etc.
7. The same.
The Buddha's teaching of 3 moral defilements, rāga, dveṣa, moha; the extremity of these three, etc.
8. The same.
Trṣṇa (love), a great cause of life; difference of human body in life and death, etc.

¹ The name "Abhidharma-mahāśāstra" is a very curious title to be used for a supplementary pāda.

² The "Loka-prajñapti" must have been a section which treats of the world-system, positions of the mountain Sumeru and the great ocean, motions of the sun and the moon, etc., etc. There is a Chinese text which contains these subjects, i.e. No. 1297, "Li-shi a-p'i-t'an-lun," which Nanjio restores to "Loka-sthiti (?) - abhidharma-śāstra," but it is more probably "Loka-prajñapti abhidharma-śāstra," and the first section of our book must have been something like the text in question. An analysis of No. 1297 is given below.

9. The same.
Drowsiness, arrogance, wickedness, talkativeness, insufficiency in speech, inability in meditation; their causes, etc.
10. The same.
Sumeru, the highest mountain; different heights of mountains, etc.
11. The same.
Difference of mental faculties between the Buddha and his disciples, etc.
12. The same.
The ocean, etc.
13. The same.
Various qualities of living-beings, etc.
14. The same.
8 causes of rain; cause of a rainy season, etc.¹

5. SOME IMPORTANT PHILOSOPHICAL WORKS CONNECTED WITH THE SARVĀSTIVĀDA SCHOOL.

The seven Abhidharma works of the Sarvāstivādins do not represent one and the same period of Buddhist philosophy, nor do they agree with one another as regards the expositions of categories and nomenclatures in which all these books abound. They must have come into existence one after another in the course of several centuries before they began to be recognized as a body of literature. It will, however, be extremely hazardous, at the present state of our knowledge, to try to fix a date for any of these works. Even an arrangement according to the order of priority will be very difficult. But so much seems to be certain, that neither the Chinese, nor the Tibetan, nor even the Sanskrit order of these books is chronological.²

² Dharmaskandha, Saṅgītiparyāya, and Jñānaprasthāna are perhaps anterior to the rest. Vasumitra's works may be the latest, but this Vasumitra seems to be different from the one who is said to be the head of the 500 Arhats who compiled the Mahāvibhāṣā. The Tibeto-Chinese Catalogue says that the Mahāvibhāṣā was compiled 400 years A.B., while it assigns 300 years A.B. to the Vasumitra who is the author of Prakaraṇa-pāda and Dhātu-kāya.

Their division into one principal and six supplementary books,¹ for which we have the evidence of Dhammapiya,² A.D. 379, as the earliest, seems to be of comparatively late origin, and was probably adopted after the compilation of the Mahāvibhāṣā, which represents the climax of the Sarvāstivāda philosophy.

All the important principles contained in the seven Abhidharmas, nice points of metaphysical argument, and the heterogeneous elements of Buddhist tradition were reviewed, explained, and absorbed in the Mahāvibhāṣā of Kaśmīra. This in all probability happened after King Kaniṣka's time (c. 125 A.D.).³ Originally the Sarvāstivādin scholars seem to have formed themselves into two great groups, Kaśmīrian and Gandhārian, as they are often mentioned in the vibhāṣā, but after the compilation of the great commentary they have either united themselves or the one has been eclipsed by the other, for we hear only the name 'Kāśmīra-vaibhāṣikas' or simply 'Vaibhāṣikas.' This body of philosophers acknowledged, true to their old theory, the existence of all things (sarvāstivāda), the direct perception of external objects (vāhyārthapratyakṣatvavāda), and the like.

The Vaibhāṣika philosophy seems to have enjoyed some, probably three, centuries of peace, safely deposited in its Kaśmīrian home and maintained in its purity by the adherents of the school. Paramārtha tells us a legend according to which the system was also propagated in Mid-India by a man named Vasubhadra, who studied it in Kaśmīra, and by pretending to be mad got out of that country.⁴

⁴ See my translation of Paramārtha's Life of Vasubandhu (Tong-pao, July, 1904), pp. 279-281.

The latter half of the fifth century A.D. brings us to a period which we can well designate as Neo-Vibhāṣanism, which coincides with the rise of the Yogācārya system and the revival of the Brāhmanic, or, at any rate, Sāṃkhya philosophy. Vasubandhu, a Sarvāstivādin and a free-thinker, tried to interpret the philosophy according to his own views. He did not slavishly follow the Vaibhāṣika tenets, but here and there utilized the excellent points of other systems, e.g. the Sautrāntika, a system opposed to the Vaibhāṣika, and teaching that external objects merely exist as mental images, and are indirectly apprehended.

A powerful opponent, and an orthodox Sarvāstivādin, Saṅghabhadra by name, compiled two works, one as a right interpretation of the vibhāṣā, and the other as a refutation of rival philosophers, chiefly Vasubandhu (who, however, had not formally left the school, his Abhidharma-kośa being generally reckoned as one of the Sarvāstivāda books).

Saṅghabhadra is said to have died before Vasubandhu,¹ and the Neo-Vibhāṣanic period seems to close practically with the conversion of Vasubandhu to Mahāyānism.²

Yośomitra, the writer of the Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā, seems to be a Sautrāntika.³ I-tsing, who was a Sarvāstivādin, and brought home some nineteen works of Vinaya, does not seem to have come across a philosophical work of this school, though it was still followed in Nālanda and other places.⁴

In the fourteenth century tradition as regards the Vai-bhāṣikas seems to have been still alive, for Mādhavācārya reviews the system in his Sarvadarśana-saṅgraha, and says :
“ These Bauddhas discuss the highest end of man from four standpoints, celebrated under the designations of (1) the Mādhyamikas, who hold the doctrine of universal void [nihilism] ; (2) the Yogācāras, who hold the doctrine of an

² See my Vasubandhu's Life (Tong-pao, July, 1904), p. 291.

external void [subjective idealism]; (3) the Sautrāntikas, who assert the inferribility of external objects [representationalism]; and (4) the Vaibhāṣikas, who acknowledge the perceptibility of external objects [presentationalism].”¹

Of these the Mādhyamika is identical with the Sarvāśūnyatvavādin, the Yogācāra with the Vijñānāstitvamātravādin (or the Vijñānamātrāstitvavādin), and the Vaibhāṣika with the Sarvāstivādin of Śaṅkarācārya.² The Sautrāntika admits no direct perception of objects, but holds that external objects exist merely as images, and are indirectly apprehended, thus occupying the medium stage between the Vaibhāṣika, who acknowledges the direct perception of external objects, and the Yogācāra, who teaches the doctrine of an external void.

‘Vibhāṣā’ means originally ‘option.’ The idea seems to be that numerous opinions collected from the compilers (500 Arhats) were compared with one another, and the best of them was selected as the orthodox doctrines of the school. The Chinese explain this word either as ‘comprehensive exposition (廣解)’ or as ‘various opinions (種種說).’³ The Vaibhāṣika’s opinions, excellent as they are, reflect only those of later Abhidharma teachers, and are after all a scholiastic achievement. Against this tendency there arose probably the Sautrāntikas, who do not regard the seven Abhidharmas as authentic Buddhavacanas,⁴ and lay more stress on the Sūtrāntas of the Buddha. In their philosophical speculation they have progressed somewhat as compared with the Vaibhāṣikas.

This seems to have attracted Vasubandhu, who occasionally adopted the doctrines of the Sautrāntikas.¹ His conversion to the Vijñānamātrika doctrine was no wonder at all, but was quite natural seeing that the soil had already been prepared by the Sautrāntika doctrine. His conversion was, therefore, not a miracle wrought from without by his brother Asaṅgha, but was a result of his speculative requirements from within. Thus he represents the three stages of Buddhist philosophy, and it is but reasonable that he is honoured in Japan as a patriarch of all Buddhist sects. In fact, his Abhidharmakośa and Vijñānamātrasiddhi are still studied by almost every Buddhist; and two sects based on these two treatises, named respectively "Kusha" and "Yuishiki" (Kośa and Vijñānamātra), still exist in Japan (though practically only as study). Two important commentaries on the Abhidharmakośa, called Kōki and Hōsho (Notes of Fu-kuan and Fa-pao),² written by two of the most distinguished pupils of Hiuen-tsang (A.D. 645-664), have been preserved in Japan. They are important for a study of the doctrines of the Vaibhāṣikas, the notes having been taken from the lectures of Hiuen-tsang.

As to the analysis of the Vaibhāṣika works I prepared a lengthy note, but decided, after reflection, to make it as short as possible, for these works really ought to be treated of in a special paper. Now let us proceed with the analysis.

I. ABHIDHARMA-VIBHĀṢĀ AND ABHIDHARMA-MAHĀVIBHĀṢĀ.

A COMMENTARY ON KĀTYĀYANĪPUTRA'S JÑĀNAPRASTHĀNA.

The interesting question of the date of the Vibhāṣās is carefully avoided in the present paper, for the more I study these texts the more I get puzzled, several fresh difficulties being confronted one after another. We may have to abandon the theory that the Vibhāṣās were compiled in the Buddhist Council under King Kanīṣka.¹ There may have existed several vibhāṣās before the compilation of the Mahāvibhāṣā, for the name 'vaibhāṣika' does not seem to be originated entirely from the Mahāvibhāṣā.² According to Paramārtha, Kātyāyanīputra himself compiled a vibhāṣā with the help of Aśvaghoṣa of Sāketa, whose part in the work was to put it into a literary form.³ This, again, may be true, seeing that two of the vibhāṣās found in Chinese are attributed to him, though perhaps wrongly. Hiuen-tsang tells us that in the Council under Kanīṣka the compilation of an upadeśa (on the sūtras) and of a vibhāṣā (on the Vinaya and Abhidharma) was the chief object. Though we have no evidence, in Chinese at least, of the existence of an upadeśa before Asaṅgha's time (c. 450 A.D.), yet in the vibhāṣā there is a mention of the name. The name of China occurs in the text as Chih-na (Cīna)¹ or Chên-tan (Cīna),² a name considered to have been originated from the Imperial Chin dynasty of China (B.C. 221–203).

² The Mahāvibhāṣā itself mentions 'Kāśmīra-vaibhāṣikā masters' (Chia-shu-mi-lo-p'i-p'o-sha shī). Whether this is the translator's chance mistake for 'Kāśmīra śāstrins' remains to be seen.

The number of ślokas, moreover, in the vibhāṣā is variously recorded as more than 100,000 by one,³ and as about 1,000,000 by Paramārtha.⁴ The date of its compilation, again, is said to have been “400 years after the Buddha’s death” by Hiuen-tsang,⁵ “500 years A.B.” (i.e. sixth century) by Paramārtha,⁶ and “more than 600 years A.B.” by Tao-yen.⁷

Vasumitra, whom we seem to connect always with the Council under Kanīṣka and with the compilation of the vibhāṣā, is a mystification to us. Watters in his new work mentions at least seven Vasumitras, all of more or less importance,⁸ though of these we are concerned with only two, i.e. the author of the Prakaraṇapāda and one of the compilers of the vibhāṣā.

All these points casually noticed in our authorities seem to be conflicting and confusing. They may, however, turn out to furnish, after a thorough investigation of the subject, some important clues to the actual state of history in that interesting period of Buddhism.

Now as to the Chinese translations of the texts the earliest is dated in A.D. 383, which serves as the terminus ad quem for the activity of the Vaibhāṣikas. A reference to the Abhidharma-vibhāṣā or simply the vibhāṣā is found in other works subsequently translated (A.D. 434, 557, etc.).

We have to distinguish the simple vibhāṣā from the Mahāvibhāṣā according to their contents, no matter what

The venerable Vasumitra is often mentioned, but this does not mean that he is quoted in the text. It seems to have been the case that when opinions differed during the compilation Vasumitra, Pārśva, or other elders were referred to, and their opinions were recorded, mentioning them by name.

Under the four satyas (section 32) the Buddha is said to have taught them also in Tamil: "In the language of the T'an-mi-lo (Damiḷa) land:—Yen-nei (suffering); mi-nei (the cause); ta-pa (destruction); ta-la-pa (the way):—thus he taught the end of suffering."¹ Then he is represented as having taught the same in the other barbarian language: "In the language of the Mi-li-cha (Mleccha) land:—Ma-sha, tu-sha, sang-sha-ma, s̄a-ba-ta, pi-li-la:—thus he taught the end of suffering."²

In a preface by Tao-yen¹ it is said: "At a time more than 600 years after the Buddha's death there were in N. India 500 Arhats . . . who compiled the vibhāṣā in order to suppress various opinions. A priest Tao-tai² went to the west of the Onion range, and obtained the Sanskrit text in 100,000 verses.

"A Śramaṇa of India, Feu-t'o-p'o-mo (Buddhavarmā), came to the territory of Liang (涼), and was ordered to translate the text in the middle of the 4th moon, A.D. 425 (乙丑), with the assistance of more than 300 men, Chi-sung, Tao-lang,³ and others.

"The work, which amounted to 100 fasciculi, was all finished in the 7th moon, A.D. 427. In the meantime Liang was destroyed and all the books were lost. Again copying the text they produced 60 fasciculi.

"After the death of the Buddha a Bhikṣu named Fa-shêng⁴ (Dharmottara) wrote a treatise called the 'Heart of the Abhidharma'⁵ in 4 volumes. Again, Chia-chan-yen-tsü (Kātyāyanīputra) compiled the Abhidharma in 8 Gantho, 44 sections in all. Afterwards 500 Arhats compiled the Vibhāṣā, explaining again the 8 Gantho. When it was translated, it consisted of 100 fasciculi in a larger form. The Emperor Tai-wu of Wei destroyed Su-ch'ü (涇渠), the capital of Liang, and the book was lost. However, 60 fasciculi were collected, and were divided by a later hand into 110 fasciculi.⁶ The fragment is of 3 Gantho, 5 other

At the end of every one of the 200 fasciculi it is stated that the text is a commentary on the Fa-chi-lun (Jñānaprasthāna) belonging to the Sarvāstivāda school.¹ This being a commentary, the contents are practically the same as those of the Jñānaprasthāna, and a detailed analysis is omitted here.

This great commentary was much studied by Watters, who remarked in his "Yuan-Chwang" (vol. i, p. 277) as follows: "The extent of the commentators' investigation is doubtless overstated (by Hiuen-tsang), but there is evidence of great study and research in the Vibhāṣā and in the Mahāvibhāṣā.² In these books we find an extraordinary acquaintance with Buddhist learning of various kinds, and also with Brahmanical learning, including the original Indian alphabets, the Vedas, and their Aṅgas."

The Vibhāṣā is, indeed, a great encyclopædia of Buddhist philosophy. All the opinions of several ancient and contemporary philosophers of various schools are carefully registered and discussed. Whether we have in this Aśvaghoṣa's share or not³ it is certainly a masterwork, unique in its merit and scope. During the period of its compilation there seem to have been several philosophers who are generally styled the 'Abhidharma-mahāśāstrins.'⁴ There were two bodies of such śāstrins, differing in their views from each other, and these are often referred to in the text, whenever differences occur as to their views, as 'Kāśmīra-śāstrins' and 'Gāndhāra-śāstrins.'¹ As for the Lokottara principles, the text cites the views of several schools and philosophers; among others I may mention here the following names: 'Vibhajyavādins,' 'Sautrāntikas,' 'Dharmaguptas,' 'Vatsīputrīyas,' 'Mahīśāsakas,' those who hold the difference of Cetanā from Citta; 'Dharmatāra (Dharmatrāta),' 'Buddhadeva,' 'Miao-yin (Ghoṣa),' 'Pārśva,' 'Vasumitra,' 'Kātyāyanīputra,'² etc. The books quoted in the text are also numerous, but I am rather afraid to state anything definitely until every page of the 200 fasciculi has been studied carefully.

I may here add that there is another work bearing the name Vibhāṣā, attributed to Dharmatāra (Dharmatrāta) above mentioned.

II. ABHIDHARMA-KOŚA AND THE KĀRIKĀ.

By VASUBANDHU.

The importance of the Abhidharma-kośa was fully recognized by Burnouf, Kern, and subsequent scholars through Yaśomitra's Abhidharma-kośa-vyākhyā-sphuṭārtha. This work has come down to us, in Chinese, in two forms, one containing verses (602 kārīkās) only, and the other being prose explanations of the verses. Paramārtha tells us that the prose text was compiled at the request of the Kāśmīra-vaibhāṣikas.¹ Of course the verse text is included in the prose one.

To the ordinals, 3, 4, 6, and 7, we can with perfect safety add the titles, respectively, 'Loka-nirdeśo nāma', Karma-nirdeśo nāma, Āryapudgala-nirdeśo nāma, and Jñāna-nirdeśo nāma. But the eighth and ninth offer some difficulties. According to Paramārtha the eighth appears to be something like 'Samāpatti,' but this may be a mistake arising from a similar sound. Mr. Wogihara holds that it ought to be 'Samādhi-nirdeśa' (8). The ninth is not given as a special chapter in the Abhidharmakośa-vyākhyā, but a passage corresponding to the ninth of the Chinese exists in the Sanskrit text, and it is, according to Mr. Wogihara, 'Ātmavāda-pratiśedha' (9).¹

At the end of each of the 30 fasciculi it is expressly stated that this work belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school.

The Kāśmīrian vaibhāṣikas are referred to or cited in this work, seven times as 'Chia-shu-mi-lo-p'i-p'o-sha Masters' (Kāśmīra-vaibhāṣikās), twice as 'Sāstra Masters of Kāśmīra' (Kāśmīra-śāstrinas), and ten times as 'P'i-p'o-sho Masters' (Vaibhāṣikās). Of quotations from other sources I have not noticed many. The Prajñapti-pāda is quoted once (chüan vi); the Yogācārya and the Vātsīputriya schools are referred to also once (chüan xxii, xxx). I may have missed several others in my cursory perusal.

III. ABHIDHARMA-NYĀYĀNUSĀRA AND ABHIDHARMA-SAMAYA-PRADĪPIKĀ.

By SAṂGHABHADRA.

Paramārtha tells us² that Saṅghabhadra, an opponent of Vasubandhu, compiled two śāstras in Ayodhyā, one, entitled the "Illustration of the Samaya,"¹ containing 10,000 ślokas, which merely explain the doctrines of the vibhāṣā, and the other bearing the name "Conformity to the Truth,"² in 120,000 ślokas. The latter, he continues, refutes the Kośa in favour of the vibhāṣā. Saṅghabhadra is said to have challenged Vasubandhu to a personal debate, which the latter did not accept.

Hiuen-tsang, too, relates this anecdote,³ and says that the Nyāyānusāra was first called the "Kośa-hailstone,"⁴ but the name was changed into "Nyāyānusāra," after the author's death, by Vasubandhu, out of respect to his opponent.⁵ Saṅghabhadra was, of course, not the teacher of Vasubandhu, as Tāranātha represents him. On the contrary, they do not seem, from the statements of Paramārtha and Hiuen-tsang, to have been even acquainted with each other.

The "Samaya-exposition," the author himself tells us, is a compendium of his earlier work "Nyāyānusāra," which is too elaborate and abstruse for general students. The only difference is that the shorter work is a simple exposition of the vibhāṣā tenets, while the larger text is devoted more to a detailed refutation of the tenets of other teachers. Vasubandhu's Kośa-kārikā itself, being a summary of the vaibhāṣika doctrines, was not objectionable to any followers of that system; the only objection being directed to the prose exposition of the kośa, in which some doctrines of the Sautrāntikas are found incorporated.⁶

views of his school. A comparison of the two rival philosophies of the Neo-vaibhāṣika period would be extremely interesting. But it is impossible for us to attempt anything of the sort in the present paper.

1. Introductory (序品一).

Preliminary remarks about the doctrine, in which Saṃghabhadra says: "I have already written a treatise and called it 'Shun-chéng-li,' 'Conformity to the Truth' (Nyāyānusāra). Those who are fond of philosophical speculation have to study it. With the phrases and sentences so detailed and elaborate, a research into it is a matter of difficulty. One will not be able to understand it unless one works hard. In order to make it easy to be understood by curtailing the elaborate composition, I again compiled an abridged treatise and called it 'Hsien-tsung,' 'Exposition of the Doctrine' (Samaya-pradīpikā). I embellished and preserved his verses (Vasubandhu's Kārikā), and regarded them as the source of reference.

⁵ This is, it will be noticed, the authority for Nanjio's restoration. If this were 'śāsanaprakaraṇa' it would be an appropriate title. But as Paramārtha gives the name 'san-mo-ye (samaya) exposition,' we have to reject the restoration of the Tib.-Chin. authorities.

"I cut short those extensive concluding arguments which are found in the 'Shun-li' (Nyāyānusāra), and set forth the right expositions against his proofs (Vasubandhu's śāstra) to illustrate the true excellent doctrines to which we adhere."¹

At the end of the text there is a verse which contains the following remark: "One should not only hold fast to what the Teaching (itself) is capable (of giving one), but also direct one's own mind toward the true principles. Therefore one should conform to the śāstra (that gives) the Truth propounded by the Buddha, and further conform to the A-kiu-mo (āgama, 'teaching') of the Truth."²

At the end of each of fasciculi 11–20 and 31–40 it is stated that this text belongs to the Sarvāstivāda school.

Among the authorities quoted there are Kāsmīra-vaibhāṣikas (fasc. 21, 36, 40), Kāsmīras, Vinaya-vaibhāṣikas, Yogācāryas; the Abhidharmakośa, Dharmaskandha, Prajñāptipāda, the larger text Nyāyānusāra itself, etc.

6. SOME OTHER BOOKS OF IMPORTANCE BELONGING TO THE SARVĀSTIVĀDIN SCHOOL (APPENDIX).

There are, beside the seven Abhidharmas and the philosophical books directly connected with them, some other works which are attributed to the Sarvāstivāda school.

Omitting all doubtful ones I may here give a short account of some of the Sarvāstivādin works which have been referred to by me in the present paper, or have been regarded as important by some other authorities.

There is nothing against our regarding this work as a Sarvāstivādin work.

There are two or three other works which belong or seem to belong to this school. I may add their names here without entering further into details.

7. CONCLUSION.

The above list practically comprises all the important works of the Sarvāstivādins which have come down to us in Chinese. In addition to these we are, as I have noticed elsewhere,² in possession of a complete set of the Vinaya works belonging to this school. Thus, having both the Abhidharma and the Vinaya of a school closely allied to the Theravādins, who have also preserved these branches of Buddhist literature, a comparative study of the two sets will, if carried out properly, contribute a great deal towards our knowledge of the history of development of Indian Buddhism.

The activity of this important philosophical school, as illustrated in its literature, covers at least not less than ten centuries of the intellectual life of India. Before they could begin their separate existence the Sarvāstivādins had to fight their way against the original Buddhist school, in consequence of which they are said to have retired from the valley of the Ganges to the new home of Kāśmīra.

Toward the closing period of their activity they had to confront the overwhelming influence of the so-called Mahāyānism. However, they remained a Hīnayāna throughout the struggle,³ true to their traditional doctrine of Sarvāstitva,¹ and served as a stepping-stone, as it were, between the original form of Buddhism and the later developed system of it.² When their literature, now presented in an analysed form, becomes completely accessible in a European language, several gaps in the history of Buddhist India will, I think, be filled up, and the growth and decay of religious ideas of the Buddhists be made more intelligible to us. With this hope for the future I may now be allowed to conclude my present paper, unworthy and imperfect though it is. My examination of the Abhidharma works is by no means exhaustive, nor is it uniform as regards the method of carrying it out. My perusal could only be cursory, and consequently my translations are often tentative. It would have been next to impossible for me to produce my paper, even in its present shape, had it not been for the valuable help of Mr. Wogihara, who is well versed in this field of Buddhist literature. His remarks, as seen in the notes, reflect a careful study of some important texts, the Bodhisattvabhūmi, the Abhidharmakośa, and the like.

I also express my sincere gratitude to Professor Rhys Davids, to whose suggestion and care the present paper owes its existence.

NOTES FOR AN EDITION OF THE 'PETAVATTHU'

(P.T.S., 1889)

By EDMUND HARDY

[THE late Professor Edmund Hardy showed me the following collation of a Paris MS. of the 'Petavatthu' with the published text. He had made it in the hope of eventually preparing a new edition of the text. On my suggesting that that was a far-off event, and that meanwhile the collation, which was very clearly and carefully written out, might be useful to others, he consented that it should appear in our Journal. Alas! this is the last time we shall see work from his honoured hand.—R.H. D.]

During a stay of a few weeks at Paris I collated the Pali MS. 123 iii. of the Bibliothèque Nationale (called P. in these notes), written on palm-leaves in Burmese characters, with the late Professor Minayeff's edition of the 'Petavatthu.'

You will see from the notes that out of the five manuscripts of the 'Petavatthu' used by Professor Minayeff for his edition, it is only the Burmese MS. of the Phayre Collection (B.) that shows any close affinity with P. Readings already noticed by Minayeff, when they are common to P. and B., are not repeated.

The gāthās are quoted by their numbers; a, b, and so on, being added to distinguish lines:

I. 1, P. adds to the title °paṭhamam.—I. 2, °dutiyaṃ.

I. 2, 2b, pesukiyena; at the end: °tatiyaṃ.

I. 4, 2c, P. has te c'eva.—3b, petānam (in the same verse, recurring in I. 5, 10b, it has petassa); ñātakā.—At the end: catuttham.

I. 5, 6a, etta (as the Ed. has, and against B.); b, hiraṇyāna kayākayaṃ.—11a, P. omits kho and reads saṅgha; at the end: °pañcamam.

I. 6, 1b, agrees with I. 7, 1b of the published text.—2a, petalokaṃ.—9a, sacetaṃ pakalaṃ; b, kammaṣṣa vipākaṃ (also in the repetition of this verse I. 7, 10b; cf. also II. 3, 3b), whereas, of course, kammaṣṣa alone, as in B, is wrong.—Again at the end: °chaṭṭham.

I. 7, 2a, bhaddante, which the metre seems to be in favour of, and so also reads the Ed. in I. 6, 2a (cf. II. 1, 2a, where the Ed. has bhante, against B. and P.).—6b, atimusissaṃ.—7a, sapattim mayham mādayi (aor. laus. of maddati, but Skr. mṛd is always used, as far as I know, in a hostile meaning).—8b, pubbalohitako.—9b, akāresi, which, however, spoils the metre.—°sattamam.

I. 8, 1b, gatasantaṃ.—2b, va (instead of ca); yathā aññāva.—3a, idaṃ (instead of imaṃ).—4b, tvam eva dummedho'ti.—5a, 'va (as the Ed.), and not vā (as B. has).—7b, kedāmi, but evidently a blunder.—°atṭhamam.

I. 9, 1b, sā sabbadā, but I would prefer yā sabb.° without ca.—2b, P. omits 'va.—3a, P. puts mam'esā after ahu.—3b, P. adds here ca after akk.°, and this appears to be more correct and in harmony with the metre.—4b, bhavantu.—°navamam.

I. 10, 1a, n'upani°; b, omits tvam.—3a, handvatariyaṃ dadāmi te idaṃ . . . nivāsiya; b, idaṃ dussaṃ . . . ehi.—4a, hattaṇa hattaṃ.—5a, ādisaṃ; b, tathāhaṃ.—6a, vilimpetvāna.—7a, °tarāvakhanauddiṭṭhe . . . udapajjatha; b, °cchādanaṃ paṇiyaṃ.—9a, pabhāsati (instead of ca°).—Khallātiyapetavatthudasamaṃ.

I. 11, 2a, tumhe pana mugga°.—3a, omits 'va; b adds 'va after so; jeṭṭho and datvā.—5b, Kaniṭṭhata.—6c, bhinno (varying from B.).—8b, pivitvā and nā ruccār°.—9a, adāyakā.—10b, dukkhindriyani; °phalāni, also ittaram (twice in this and in the next pāda), both cases differing from B.—°ekādasamaṃ.

I. 12, 2b, gato (as in the Ed., and not tato, as in B.).—3b inserts va between kā and parid.°—10b, etaṃ instead of evaṃ, but erroneously.

II. 1, 4, pitā ca.—5c, om. 'va, but the metre requires eleven syllables, and therefore also in the next line the reading mamedam, which B. and P. have, is better than mama yidaṃ, which Ed. prefers.—8b, °taram.—9a (cf. also

II. 3, 28, b) °cchādanam pān.°—12a, kiṃ makāsi, but in the same verse II. 3, 32a, akāsi.—13b, om. tvam.—18b, omits tam before and adds ca after parid°.—20a, ca after suppat.° has been struck out in P.—21a, akutobhayaṃ, lokā.—paṭṭhamam.

II. 2, 2a, aññāsu.—4a, ghānam sisacchinnāna (°kānañ, however, is proper to B alone).—9a, udap.°—P. inserts between v. 13 and the verse added by B. still four verses (14, 15, 16, 17 = II., 2, 2-5), beginning with Sāriputassa sāmātā, and having on the whole the same readings as those verses have the repetition of which they are, except 17a, where our MS. has bhakkissam, and 17b, where it adds ca after alenā. Here we find v. 16 = v. 4 quite in accordance with the Ed.—°dutiyaṃ.

II. 3, 1a, °sandhatā (cf. also 24a).—5b, °kuṭṭhitā in accordance with the Ed., but 8b P. has °kuṇṭhitā, as we read both here and before in B.—10b, (cf. also 12a; 15a; 17b) saccam.—11a, jāmamānāya.—13b sasāmini no ca kho, tam.—14a, tyājān.°—21a, usu°, as the Ed. has, and not with B.—22a, ceva, instead of āsum; °ṇāni ca.—22b, paricārenti.—23a, chiti, as the Ed.—25a, damhi ki vātha.—26a, puggale.—27a, °vātṭha.—29b, sapattim (and 33a, sapattī). The verses repeated here show the same readings as their pattern has.—33a, ahu.—°tatiyaṃ.

II. 44, 2 (cf. 17a), Nandisena.—5b, neyyāmi.—6b, suki-sāro.—8a, mama.—9a, om. tato; patisutvā; akari (C¹, a MS. of Minayeff's Collection, has ākari).—17a, aku.—18a, dinnena dānena.—19a, Khemaṃ (instead of ṭhānaṃ); b, datvā.—20b, anindito.—°catuttham.

II. 5, P. gives in full this piece, which is also to be found in the Paramatthadīpanī (Commentary on the Theragāthā) and in the Vimānavatthu (P.T.S., 1886, pp. 75 sqq.). Its readings vary sometimes much from those of the text of the latter, edited by Gooneratne, whose division of the verses I adhere to only for convenience's sake.—1a, Maṭṭhakuṇḍali; b, malyadhāri.—2c, tassā; d, om. dukkhena, and reads jahāmi jivitaṃ.—3b, lohamayaṃ; c, ācikkham etaṃ; d, cakkam yugaṃ paṭipādayāmi te.—4b, canda-sūriyā ubhayatta bhātaro; c, vehāyasamgamo suvaṇṇam ayoratho mama.—5a, 'si; b, yaṃ taṃ pattayasi; d, n'eva; om. tvam; °sūriye.—6a, gomanam pi padissati; b, vidhiyā; c, kālaṅkato.—7a, vadasi; c, gudaṃ; d, kālakatāsi paṭṭhayaṃ.—The following verses (8, 9, 10) repeat those of P. V., II. 6, 16-18, or vice versâ, but our MS. has just the same readings as Gooneratne's edition of the V.V., the last word of v. 10 being māṇava (instead of bhāsitaṃ in II. 6, 18 of the Ed. of the P.V.).—11, pūrindo.—12a, yañ ca rodasi yañ ca kandasi; c, karitvāna.—13a, dassāma; c, om. vā.—14c, tinnakaṅkhaṃ.—15a, pamud.^o; c, svāhaṃ.—16a, vajāmi; d, ^odiyassu.—17c, mā ca.—18a, ^omāsi twice; b, tvam asi.—19a, saraṇaṃ before buddhaṃ.

II. 6, 1a, Kaṇha; b, cakkhu vā.—2c, aṭṭito.—4a, rūpiyamayaṃ.—5a, aññāpi; b, ānāyissāmi.—6a, puthuvissitā.—7a, vijjahissati; b, icchāmi.—8a and b, P. agrees with the Ed., except in ajjāpi, where it goes with B.—10, also here P. has all common with the Ed.—12b, ete c'aññe ca jātiyā (differing from B.).—13b, pi vijj.^o—15a, pi arahanto.—17a, hadayaṃ ni.^o—18a, svāhaṃ; b, na soc.^o.—^ochatthamaṃ.

II. 7, 1a, sandhato.—4a, Dhaṇṇānaṃ.—6b, yācakānadadaṃ.—9c, yato (instead of tato).—10a, panavāniyaṃ.—13a, ^otiss' ahaṃ, not ^ossāhaṃ, as in B.—15b, phalupāpassa; ahaṃ bhūsaṃ.—17b, palāyataṃ.—18a, ^opacārikā.—19, om.—^opālasatthipetavatthusattamaṃ.

II. 8, 1b, tvam (instead of taṃ); ^onema.—2a, adhako ahu dinno.—3, sakiñcakkhahetu.—4b, parivisiyanti; ahaṃ.—5a, om. tava; P. also has hi, not pi (reading of B.).—7a, api; b, tvam (instead of taṃ).—8a, rājā; ca (instead of pi).—9b, ārocesi; adds tassa ca after tathāg^o; has dakkhiṇaṃ.—10b, attisamāsadisā.—11a, mahānubh^o; b, datvā; d, sāmī (instead of yāmi).—Cullasetthipetavatthu-aṭṭhamaṃ.

II. 9, 1b, nayāmasa.—3b, bhiñjeyya.—4a, chāchāya, but 5a and so on it has the correct reading.—6b, abbhūyya; tādiso.—7a, pi (instead of hi); as for the rest, it confirms the reading yattha of the Ed.—11a, om. vā after devena.—12b (cf. also 13a) Pūrindadaṃ.—16a, nives^o.—18a, in it P. also has tattha; gacchāma; bhaddante (instead bhaddam vo).—19a, bhaddo vo; b, padiyyati, and then P. continues: asayhassa nivesanaṃ vo na pāni kāmadaḍḍo.—22b, disita.—23b, Aseyho.—25b, om. taṃ.—26a, dassāmanāñ ca pañāñ ca.—31a, pūrisa; b, taṃ (instead of tvam).—37a, paridahissati; b, yojantu.—38b, P. has su with the Ed. (against 13), and at the end of the line; sudāpaṭava.—39b, Sinduka (cf. also 40b).—41a, ca (instead of ce).—42a, ca; b, sūriy'uggamaṃ.—43b, dadato ca me na; c, etaṃ.—44a, sampavacche; b, abhi^o.—46a, bhajeyyūṃ; b, ninnam; paripūr.^o—49a, pasādaye; b, yaññassa (instead of puññassa).—51a, om. jānā.—52b, pārenti.—55a, khattiyo; b adds va after sah.^o—56a adds ca after bah.^o—57 b, so hitvā manussam (cf. also 58b).—60b, adhipac.^o.—61, P. om. this couple of verses.—65b, om. ca; sambuddhassa.—66b, abravi (cf. also 68a; 12, 14c, and throughout).—67b, santike.—70b, om. na between vip.^o and phalam (cf. also 71b).—71b, nāpi (instead of na hi); dāyakam.—72a puts bījam after appam; b, samādhāriṃ; pavacchante; kassakam.—74b, dārakā.—75a, °ppasatṭham.—°navamam.

II. 10, 2a, P. has atudithā (or perhaps atudiyā) which appears to be a mere blunder; bhūmāval^o; 2b, abravi.—3b, pana pāṇiyam.—8b, pavacchasi.—9b, Uttaram.—9c, kam-massa vip.^o.—°dasamam.

II. 11, 1b, upasaṅkama, yācato.—2d, bahu-vittāni ca.—3c, punadeva (cf. also 5c); puñṇāni before kāh.^o (cf. also 5d); d, naye' yyaputta (cf. also 5d).—4c, ca ñāt^o; d, gat-vāna . . . karissati.—6b, om. punar eva.—°ekadasamam.

II. 12, 1a, °sandhatā; b, sogandhiyā.—4a, °dijakokiṇṇā.—6a, ābhanti.—8a, kadaliyas^o; b, tuvaṃ, as the Ed. has, not tvam as in B.—9a, te sampattā adḍha^o.—10b, om. ca.—11a, khādītā.—14b, tass' aham.—17a, ayaṃ me.—18a, sattevavass^o; b adds 'yaṃ after kaṇṇa^o.—19a, bahu-kāro.—20a, tāham; p' añj.^o.—°dvādasamam.

II. 13, 1b, om. tadā.—3a, °caraṇomuni; b, te ca tattha.—11a, atume, not ahu me, as in B.—17a, pabbajjitā santā; b, ābhavesi.—18b, Uruvelā.—°terasamam.—Here follows in P.: Udānam: paṇha (1), mātā ca (2), Tisā (sic), ca (3), Nandā (4), kuṇḍalino (5), Ghaṭo (6), dve seṭhi (sic, 7, 8), tumavāyo ca (9), vihāra (10), sutta (11), sopāṇa (12), Ubbarīti (13). Ubbarivaggo dutiyo.

III. 1, 2b, Bārāṇasiyam.—5a (cf. also 18a), °bhāri.—7a, petā (instead of eke); va (instead of ca).—8a, te ca; paṭisusamitā.—9a, gharāṇī kula^o.—10a, avakirati.—11b, piṇḍi^o; paribhāsītā.—13a, °karā; kappakā (instead of nahaminī).—15a, va (instead of ca).—17a, goṇakatthate.—18b, dhātiyo (instead of jātiyo).—20b, idh' eva ca.—°pathamam.

III. 2, 3a, sucikaṇḍā.—5a, taṃ manasikatvā.—7b, ottas-santā mahattāsā; dessanti.—12b, °tarā anud^o (cf. also 17a; 26a).—15a, nantākā (instead of tantake).—16a, mātu pitu.—17b, therassuddissayīya thunnam.—18a, P. omits the first three words.—19e, gehe.—21b, udapajjatha.—22a, nivesāna ca.—23a, sadisā.—24a, pāṇiyam.—26b, °rañṇā sumāpitā.—27a, setūdakā.—28a, nhatvā; adds ca after piv.^o.—30c, sukhino.—Sānavāsi °dutiyaṃ.

III. 3, 2a, kanaka sanni; d adds ca before tuyham.—

3 b, pahutamalyā.—4 a, ci me dassaniyā ; c, vaggu upanadanti.—6 c, icihāma taṃ and om. te.—7 b, natañ ca hotuṃ.—c, vedaniyaṃ (instead of modaniyaṃ).—8 b, sahived.°—Rathakāra° tatiyaṃ, bhānavāraṃ caṭhaṃ.

III. 4, 1 a, eko sāli punāpara.—2 c, vañcesi.—3 b, sabaku° ; c, parigūhāmi ; d, ito (instead of gehe) ; e, santin.—4 a, kamma vip.°—5 a, avañjāni.—°catutthaṃ.

III. 5, 1 cd, loko (instead of h'eke).—2 b, na podhayayum ; °puññaṃ k.° ; c, h'imassa.—5 a, viya pavedh.° ; b, jivithayāvasesaṃ ; c, devamanussehi pūj.° ; d, ca (instead of va).—7 a, om. bhikkhu.—8 a, om. paṭi before vinod.° ; b, °laddhaṃ ; d, om. so.—°pañcamāṃ.

III. 6, 1-3, have the same readings as II. 1, 1-3 in our MS. noticed before. 7 a (cf. also 10 a, 11 a), Hatthinipūraṃ.—8 a, om. ca before me.—9 a, uddisatu.—10 a, om. tassā ; gatvāna ; b puts tassā after avoca ; taṃ (instead of te).—12 a, tāya (instead of ettha), and tava (instead of mayā).—13 a, tassa ; dakkhiṇa pādisaṃ.—14 a, tadāsā sukh.° ; b, om. datvā.—°chaṭhaṃ.

III. 7, 3 a, °sattesu ; b, asaññato (cf. also 8, 4 b).—5 b, pacca ; viramā.—6 b, cīraṃ pāpā.°—7 b, saṃyadhamā.—8 a, hanitvā ; rattāhosi ; b, paricāremi.—10 a, satathān.°—°sattamaṃ.

III. 8, 1 a, kudātā ; °sattate.—2 a, sūriyuggamaṃ.—3 b, kamma vip.°—In the verses 6-10 no readings are to be met with differing from those we have pointed out above in III. 7, 4 b-10, besides mā instead of viramā, which is left out here (=7, 5 b), paṇiṇaṃ (=7, 8 a), ca (instead of 'va of the Ed., omitted, however, by B. and P. in 7, 9 b—viz., the verse with which that one in concern is identical), and saṃtathānuy.° (=7, 10 a).—miga-luddakapetavatthu-aṭhaṃ.

III. 9, 3 a, kākambukāyu°, but as P. does not omit tā before kāk.°, and other MSS. have kā instead of tā, our MS. seems to have combined the two readings.—4 d, ukacca, and not only in 4 a, where also B. has ukacca, unless the Ed. has omitted to put an asterisk at ukantvā in 4 d.—6 a, gatvā ; b, nirakatvā.—7 a, khādati attānaṃ.—8, P. inverts the order of b and c.—°navamaṃ.

III. 10, 1 a, P. has vāyasi, as we read in the Ed., and not vāyati, as in B.—2 b, okkantanti (instead of urena k.° ; c, khārena (also here not as B., which has cārena.—5 a adds ca after bhariyā.—6 b, upapaccatta°.—7 a, paccāhāpi niraye.—8 a, ne tato ; b, ārantiyo ; mālābhārī.—9 a, yasassiyo.—10 b, so hi nuna.—°dasamaṃ.—P. continues as follows: udānaṃ: abhijjamāno (1), koṇḍañño (sic! 2), rathākāri (3), bhūsenā ca (4), kumāro (5), gaṇako ca (6), dve luddhā (7, 8), pīṭhi (9), pūja (10), so vaggo tena pavuccati lūlavaggo tatiyo.

IV. 1, 2a, seyyā; c, °vattubhogo; d, pi imassa.—6c, tena.—7d, om. rāja.—8a, esa.—10d, kato; uparodho.—11a, añcīto; c, maṃ no ce; d, pucchāma taṃ (differs from the Ed. and B.).—12a, paṭiññāta me taṃ tadā ahu; b, ācikkh.°—13a, passāmi; c, va taṃ; d, niyassa.—14d, asutañ cāpi.—15a, sabbam pi.—16d, gahetvā.—19a, niccaṃ pas.°—22a, va (instead of ca).—25d, °hayye ca taṃ.—27a, kareyyuṃ.—29c, om. va; paricār.°; d, dvayaṃ taṃ.—30b, ādiseyo; d, °rācavutti.—31c, om. yatva; d, sonomi.—33b, ca (instead of cāpi).—35a, appaññāto; °bhūtā.—36c, parigg.°—37d, vinodayeyye me.—38c, P. has dhammakathaṃ (against B.).—40b, vā (instead of vo).—41a, ti (instead of hi).—42b, nhatvā ca.—45a has bhante (instead of subhāni).—47b, phāliyaṃti; c, pabbajita.—48d, asaṃvuto tuvaṃ.—53a, addhāhi.—54c, ca tāni cāsuṃ (instead of pattāni vāsu); d, passatha.—55a, °sāravilittam.—56b, ca (instead of 'va).—57c, deyyam.—58b agrees with the Ed. (against B.); c, disvā'ham (instead of svāham); ca (instead of 'va).—59a, va (instead of ca); b, devatā me.—65e, P. om. this verse.—68c, mācarissāmi.—69c, pajānāti.—71b, P. with the Ed. and against B.—72 shows the same readings as 67cd; 68ab, besides d luddha.°.—75b, sakkaccaṃ.—78d, hoti, not homi, as B. has.—79a, ariyaṃ before ath.° (cf. also 85a).—81 is somewhat in disorder in our MS. After ujubhūtesu it reads immediately sadā puññaṃ pavaḍḍhati, and then continues bhikkhū.—82a, dhammāni; b, sakaccaṃ; c, om. va before tamhā.—87c, adds ca after kārakaro; d, sakaccaṃ.—88a, sulāvutako ca; adds bkikkhuñ ca after upāgami; b, ajjhagū.—89c, aphussayi.—°paṭhamam.

IV. 2, P. does not omit this vatthu, but contains it in full. Therefore also here a comparison of P. with the Vimānavatthu (pp. 77 sqq.) will be of use in order to appreciate the different readings in one and the other text. (Of course, I quote according to the published text—viz., the verses as they are numbered there.)

1a, sunātha yakkhassa vāñijjānañ ca; c, yassa kataṃ; d, vācā (instead of tañ ca); sagge (instead of sabbe).—2a, om. ca; b, bhūmhāṇaṃ saḥabyataṃ gato; c, ca (instead of va).—3a, vaṅge; c, suduggamme vaṇṇapathassa; d, saṅkabbhayā.—4b, idha bhikkham; c, vālikāhi

IV. 3, 3 a, āmanteyi ; b, sovatthiko, as in the Ed.—
 5 a, soratṭham ; abravi (cf. also 7 b, 15 c, 17 b).—6 a, dis-sati (instead of padissati).—10 a, caturdisā ; b, rukkham before nigr.^o and om. ramaṇīyaṃ.—11 a, sirinnibham (cf. also 11 c, 12 b, 13 b).—12 a, om. so before nigr.^o—13 a, brahmā.—15 a, pāṇiyakaṇaṃ ; b adds ca after puriso.—17 b, adds arindamo tattha nhatvā pivitvā ca after khāditvā ; sorattho.—18 b, ājananta.—20 a, ahaṃ (instead of tuvam).—23 b, antarāya karom' ahaṃ.—25 a, °yikā ; b, phalaṃ.—26 b, labheyyaṃ.—27 b, om. pi.—28 a, chindate siraṃ.—29 b, yojanānaṃ.—30 b, ca (instead of pi) ; nibbedhenta.—31 b, ca (instead of pi).—32 b, ca (instead of pi).—37 a, tiṭṭhasi ; b, vassānaṃ satasahasāni suyyati (om. ghoso) ; e, °ditthi ca.—38 a, °vaḍḍhana (cf. also 44 a).—39 a, sile up.^o ; b, vitaṃ accharā.—40 a, sikkhāya.—41 a, bhikkhū ; b, okkhita^o.—42 b, pāṇiya.—43 a, kālaṅkato ; b, °tarā anuddiṭṭhe ; udap.^o.—44 a, kāme kāmāni ; vassavaṇṇo.—46 b and 48 a here quite conform with 45 b.—51 c, amajjapā ; d adds ca after dārena. (A marginal note in P. adds after 51 a repetition of vv. 49, 50, 51.)—52 a, siṅhagā^o ; b, viramāmi.—53 a, sovattḥo ; b, āruhīti.—°tatiyaṃ.

IV. 4, P. gives in full this piece, which I compare with the text of the V.V. just in the same manner as before. The first four lines, however (numbered v. 1 and v. 2 in the V.V., p. 49), are wanting in P.—3 b, apārutadvāre ; c, adds na before taṃ ; phunanti.—4 b, om. te ; brūhantā ; c, Revati ; d, °yisu.—6 a, °sāralittaṃ ; c, kiṃ dissanti sūriyazimāṇavaṇṇa.—7 b, vadañña ; c, tass' evaṃ ; d, sūriya raṃsi 'va jōta^o.—8 b, vimāna upasoyanti ; d, °pattā.—9 d, nirayaṃ dass.^o—10 a, eso te nirayo °dhammo ; c, nāsatho (instead of rosako) ; d, saggam agānaṃ.—12 a, nirayo (instead of gambhīro ; cf. also 15 a).—13 b inserts nirayo before gambhīro.—14 a, dāraññe.—15 b, °satasahasāni vūvaṃ paccati.—16 c, samacca ; d, saṅgamu.—18 a, paridevati ; b, °bhossati.—19 c, °daṇḍo sudad.^o.—20 a, macchari ros.^o—21 b, dāne.—22 a, dārāmāni ; duggahe ; b, udapādañ ca.—23 a, va (instead of ca) ; b, pātiḥāriyaṃ pakkhañ ca aṭṭhaṅgaṃ su^o.—25 a, vilappanti naṃ ; b, uddham pādaṃ avisiraṃ.—26 b, paribhāsikā ; d, gacchāmaṃ.—°petavatthum catutthaṃ.

IV. 5, 2 c, chinitukāmo, but appears to be a later emendation.—4 a, kilante ; d, ucchum pari^o.—5 d, vijana.—6 a, ucchum ; b, anvagacchi.—8 d, om. ca after udaggo.—°pañcamam.

IV. 6, 1 b, om. ca.—2 b, paccuppanna.—3 a, va (instead of ca); b has 'dha as the Ed., but omits na; dissantā.—4b, attānaṃ sotti kātuṃ parittaṃ.—5a, yaṃ no rājakulā cutā; b, vitivisayaṃ.—7b, issayamaḍaṃ.—°chaṭṭhaṃ.

IV. 7, 2b, parecaritvā.—4a, bravi.—7b, °gacchittha.—8b, pādā.—°sattamaṃ.

IV. 8, 1a, om. si.—4a, issukim.—5b, kammaṣṣa vip.—6b, pacca.—7b, parivis.—°paricāriko.—°aṭṭhamamaṃ.

IV. 9 is identical with IV. 8, with the exceptions of: 1a, gūthakūpako; kā nu dinā patitṭhasi; b, pāpakamanti; 2a, duggatā Yamalokikā.—3b, kammaṣṣa vip.—6a, mittarūpena.—°navamaṃ.

IV. 10, 1a, sandhatā; b, kisikā; na (instead of nu).—6a, ca no.—7a, °gedhino.—8a, saṃmucchitā; bhantā.—°dasamaṃ.

IV. 11, 2b, mama (instead of me).—3b, vā (instead of vāpi).—c, addasaṃ.—°ekādasamaṃ.

IV. 12, 1b, sutittā; c, saṃpupph.—°(cf. also 2c).—5, P. om. this verse.—°dvādasamaṃ.

IV. 13, 1b, puts dānaṃ after tarati and omits dānena.—°tarasamaṃ.

IV. 14, °cuddasamaṃ.

IV. 15, 3a, yesaṃ no na dadamhase.—4a, so 'ham nuna.—°pannarasamaṃ.

IV. 16, 1b, °kammanto; saddāyase.—4b, nigacchasi.—6a, 'ddasāsi.—7b, nigacchissaṃ.—°soḷasamaṃ. Then follows: Tass' udānaṃ: Ambasakkharo (1), Serisako (2), Pingalo (3), Revati (4), Uchubhadako (5), dve kumāra (6, 7), dve gudhabhojanā (8, 9), Paṭali-pokkharāṇi (11, 12), akkhahato (13), bhogasatā (14), setṭhiputtā (15), sālittakā saṭhisahassāni (16), vaggo tena puvuccatiti.

In the preceding notes no notice is taken

1°, of the innumerable cases where our MS. omits iti, as it were, with a certain regularity, or

2°, of those not less numerous cases where it prefers a simple consonant instead of a double one, or vice versâ, a dental instead of a lingual, or vice versâ, or

3°, of the transposition of a short vowel with a long one in the next syllable, or vice versâ, or

4°, of the carelessness in marking long vowels, or in the use of the niggahīta (the elision of the latter before a consonant, is, however, very constant).

ON THE PROBLEM OF NIRVĀṆA.

BY F. OTTO SCHRADER, PH.D.

THE problem of Nirvāṇa has hitherto been only half solved. Whereas there is no longer any dispute about the saupādisesa-nibbānaṃ, opinions concerning anupādisesa-nibbānaṃ are still as far from unanimity as they were when the question arose. The view is more and more gaining ground among Western scholars that the Buddha absolutely denied the attā, and therefore necessarily understood by his doctrine of parinibbānaṃ the absolute annihilation of being, while the assertion to the contrary, first advanced by Professor Max Müller, seems almost to be at the point of becoming extinct. Nevertheless, there are still a great many reasons and passages, not yet considered at all or not sufficiently considered, which decidedly favour the latter assertion, and to expound some of them the present essay is written.¹

First a few words on a third opinion. Professor Jacobi and others believe that the Buddha 'omitted the ātman out of his reflections because he could not attain to an inner certainty on it.'² That means nothing else than that the Buddha had not been able to arrive at certainty concerning the Tathāgata's 'being or not being, or being and not being, or neither being nor not being' after death. Against this I would ask: Why did the Buddha combat as a false view (ditthigataṃ) the doctrine of the Sceptics¹ which pretended that it was impossible to arrive at certainty on just this point (among others)? The answer surely is that his reason of declining such a possibility was none of the four² which, he said, induced the Sceptics to do so. But it is expressly stated³ that there are no other reasons than those four! I cannot but believe that the question I have here raised is included among those many which the Tathāgata—'well knowing'—did not explain to his Bhikkhus.⁴ My study of the Nikāyas has led me to the conviction that the incomparable security in which the Buddha is said to have met every one of his many opponents is a real historical feature; and is only explicable if we grant that the master, when a youth, had indeed, as he often said, very seriously studied all the systems attainable to him. The Buddha certainly does not belong to those who are silent because of their not knowing enough, but to those who do so because they know too much. The mere stating of the Avyākatas is demonstrative in this respect.

² 'Der Ursprung des Buddhismus aus dem Sāṅkhya-Yoga' in Nachrichten von der Königlichen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen, 1896, Philologisch-historische Klasse, p. 43 fl.

Thus I suppose, as a matter of course, that the Buddha had answered, though not to his disciples, yet to himself, the great question concerning the to be or not to be, and I proceed to show why I think his answer cannot have been a negative one.

A quite general consideration, such as may in the first instance induce people, as it induced myself, to believe a priori in the positive answer, is the following one.

Professor Max Müller asked whether a religion which attains at last to the Nothing would not thereby cease to be a religion. To this it may easily be replied that Buddhism has never been regarded as a religion in the usual sense. It is, however, another thing if we put the question in this way: 'Is it possible that a thinker who had drunk out to the bottom the cup of knowledge—and we cannot help believing that the Buddha was such a thinker—could attain to the conviction that there was absolutely nothing behind or above or besides this transitory world we conceive by our senses and supply by our fancy—this world of terrestrial and celestial things and beings?' I say no! We cannot by any means believe the Buddha, such as we know him from the Suttas, capable of such a limitation of intellect, such a testimonium paupertatis, as would place him far under all the great thinkers of all times.

But this is, of course, not an argument for everybody, and I would ask it to be considered only as a plus to what we shall find out in the further course of the argument.

Without any doubt the question of Parinibbānaṃ is, although not identical with, yet dependent on the question of the attā or substance, so that, if it were certain that the Buddha declined the idea of a substance in every sense, the answer concerning the Parinibbānaṃ would of course be that it was annihilation in every respect. But this is by no means certain.

As we know, e.g., from Saṃy. Nik. IV., p. 400, and Pugg. Paññ., p. 88 (cp. Buddhaghosa ad Jāliya-Suttanta), the sense of the doctrine of anattā is that there are no substances in the world which last either for a time (as the Uchedavādinas think) or for ever (as is the opinion of the Sassatavā-dinas), but that existence is something between being and not being, that it is becoming. Hence we are not entitled to say that Buddha denied the soul, but only that for him duration in time was duration of a flux and not immutability in any sense, not the stability of a substance.

The extent of the notion of anattā is evident, e.g., from Saṃy. Nik. XXII., 94, vol. iii.: ‘What is that, O Bhikkhus,’ the Buddha says, ‘which is not granted by the wise of the world, and of which I also say: It does not exist? A material thing (rūpaṃ), O Bhikkhus, which is eternal, firm, everlasting, not subject to change, is not granted by the wise of the world, and I also say: It does not exist. Feelings (vedanā), O Bhikkhus, which are eternal; perceptions (saññā), O Bhikkhus, which are eternal; dispositions (sankhārā), O Bhikkhus, which are eternal, firm, everlasting, not subject to change, are not granted by the wise of the world, and I also say: They do not exist. Thinking (viññāṇaṃ), O Bhikkhus, which is eternal, firm, everlasting, not subject to change, is not granted by the wise of the world, and I also say: It does not exist. This is that, O Bhikkhus, which is not granted by the wise of the world, and of which I also say: It does not exist.’

Accordingly, the notion of anattā embraces the five Khandas or constituent parts of nature, not more. It embraces (1) the four or (including ākāso) five material elements and whatever consists of them; (2) every kind of consciousness or spiritual existence: not only that of sensual beings as we are (kāmaloko), not only that of the Mahābrahmans and other gods like them (rūpabrahmaloko), but even the most etherial, unlimited consciousness existing in the very highest spheres of nature (arūpabrahmaloko). It does, however, not embrace a being, provided there be such a being, which can not be called either corporeal or spiritual or both (nāmarūpaṃ) in any sense, that is the existence of the Absolute One.

I cannot here explain the reasons why, to my way of thinking, philosophy is forced to accept the metaphysical conception of the Absolute One, although, if this idea be realized in perfect sharpness, we are as unable to think as to deny that the Absolute One is either identical with, or different from, the world.¹ I only state that the Absolute One in its very sense, as also, for instance, in the sense of Māṇḍūkya-Upaniṣad 7², is something without and beyond the three Avacaras of Buddhism, and therefore not touched by the doctrine of anattā.

So the doctrine of anattā cannot be claimed as a proof against the positive alternative of the problem of Nirvāṇa. It seems, on the contrary, for the following reasons, to strengthen this position.

As insinuated, the Parabrahman, or Absolute One, is so singular a notion that it must be looked upon at once as identical with and different from the world: the former, because there cannot be any things beside it (else it would not be the Absolute); the latter, because the principles of Nature: Time, Causality, Plurality, are incompatible with the ekamevādvitīyam.³ Now, as is well known, the older Upaniṣads show already this double statement, but not as such, in as much as the two sides are not yet looked on together—at least, not with a clear consciousness of their being contradictory. And the next development out of this indifference or non-discrimination was not a uniting, but a going asunder.

Upaniṣad speculation began to degenerate, and the pantheistic side of the Parabrahman came to be emphasized more and more. First rendered prominent by Uddālaka Āruṇi (Chānd. Up. VI.), as a kind of svabhāva-vāda with a prakṛtiḥ parā, later on called ātman, as highest principle,¹ the tat tvam asi = ‘You are a part of the all-pervading substance,’ became by-and-by the highest formula of orthodox Vedāntism. As such it remained a pantheistic formula more than a thousand years, until at last Çankarācārya reformed Vedānta into a clear māyā-vāda,² while the pantheistic Vedānta also continued, and continues down to to-day as the Viśiṣṭādvaita. This is the one line of development. The other branched out somewhat later, at about the time of the so-called Middle Upaniṣads (Kāṭhaka, etc.), and started from the Kṣatriyas, not the Brāhmins. It did not recognise the authority of the Veda, and therefore was held heterodox. It developed the neti neti of a Yājñavalkya into a severe tat tvam nāsi, and so became directly opposed to, and more orthodox, in the good sense of the word, than the other party. It pretended that every thing, from the lump of clay up to Brahmā (Sāṃkhya-Kārikā, 54 ; Majjh. Nik., 49), was produced and subject to time, and therefore anātman, ‘not Self,’ that is: different in every respect from the unknowable Absolute One. It consequently combated as the greatest and worst of all ‘confusions’ the aviśeṣa (Aśvagh. Buddhac. XII., 29) or pantheistic identification of the world with the Absolute One (*tat tvam asi ; so loko so attā*³). The first step in this direction had probably been made before Buddhism arose ; but it was the Buddha, without any doubt, who banished out of the world the last glitter of immutability, and liberated, on the other hand, from the last terrestrial feature it still possessed, viz., consciousness, the notion of the Absolute¹; it was the Buddha who, for the first time, saw clearly that only ignorance can devise any relation at all between nature and the Supernatural One, and that a true ethic must therefore necessarily be atheistic; it was the Buddha and no one else who made the doctrine of anattā a moral principle, and that not by denying the Absolute One, but presupposing it as the true self, the only reality.

² That Bādarāyaṇa was not yet a māyā-vādin is Professor Thibaut’s important discovery.

³ “World and Self are one ; that shall I be after death ; eternal, firm, everlasting, not subject to change, like the everlasting one ; thus shall I stay” : is not that, O Bhikkhus, a mere, complete doctrine of fools (bāladhammo) ? (Majjh. Nik., 32.)

That the doctrine of anattā has indeed this supposition, is proved, e.g., by the Alagaddûpama-Sutta (Majjh. Nik., No. 22). The Buddha, after having preached the anattā and declared the liberated one as beyond nature and inconceivable already in this life, continues (p. 140):

‘Teaching this, O Bhikkhus, explaining this, I am falsely, without reason, wrongly, not truthfully, accused thus by some Samaṇas and Brāhmaṇas: “An unbeliever is the Samaṇa Gotama; the real entity’s destruction, annihilation, dying away (sato satassa ucchedaṃ vināsaṃ vibhavaṃ) is what he preaches.” What I am not, O Bhikkhus, what is not my doctrine, that I am accused of by these venerable Samaṇas and Brāhmaṇas, who say: “An unbeliever preaches.” Formerly, as now, O Bhikkhus, it is dukkhaṃ I am preaching, and the extirpation (nirodho) of *dukkhaṃ*² Therefore, O Bhikkhus, what is not yours, throw that off! Then your having left it will become your health and welfare for a long time. Feeling, Bhikkhus, is not yours; throw it off! Craving The dispositions. Thinking,

² Cp. Saṃy. Nik. IV., 4, 4: ‘To apprehend perfectly what is dukkhaṃ, the holy life is led with the Perfect One.’

Bhikkhus, is not yours ; throw it off ! Then your having left it will redound to your health and welfare for a long time. What do you think, O Bhikkhus : if a man would take away, or burn, or employ according to his needs, all the grasses and boughs and branches and leaves in this Jeta Wood, would you then possibly think thus : “ Us takes the man away, us is he burning or employing according to his needs ” ?

‘ Certainly not, master.’

‘ And why not ?’

‘ Because, O master, it is not our self (attā) nor what belongs to it (attaniya).’

‘ Thus, verily, O Bhikkhus, (I tell you) : What is not yours, throw that off ! Then your having left it will redound to your health and welfare for a long time. And what, O Bhikkhus, is not yours ? Bodily form craving the dispositions thinking is not yours ; throw it off ! Then your having left it will redound to your health and welfare for a long time.’

The sense of this declaration can only be : ‘ As the proprietor of the wood is not hurt when its grasses, etc., are taken away, even so, O Bhikkhus, in giving up your individuality (the khandhā) you are not giving up your real entity (santaṃ sattam).’ This is the more obvious as the formula which the Buddha teaches his followers to apply to every thing in nature, viz. : N’etaṃ mama, n’eso ’ham asmi, na m’eso attā, is applied by the Sāṃkhya doctrine in almost exactly the same form, viz. : Nāsmi, na me, nāham, to exactly the same object, viz., the whole of material and spiritual things, but with the single aim of expressing the Puruṣa’s not being prakṛti or vikṛti. Indeed, the end seems to be quite the same in both the systems : To reduce to a cause (pratyaya) every thing in nature, and thereby to prove that our real entity must not be looked for in, but beyond, the world. The only difference is that the Buddha, well aware that it would avert the attention of his disciples from the practical and shortest way to salvation, declines to speak of the transcendental.¹

Like the doctrine of anattā, the more direct utterances of the Buddha on Parinibbānaṃ and the deceased Perfect One are proofs of the contrary rather than of Nihilism. An interesting example is the following one.

It is beyond doubt that in Buddha's opinion there rests of the parinibbuto not the slightest shade of an individuality. 'The wise,' it is said, 'expire like this lamp' (Sutta-Nipāta, 235). 'As the flame, blown down by the vehemence of the wind, goes out, and can be named no more (atthaṃ paleti na upeti saṃkhaṃ): even so the sage, liberated from individuality (nāmakāyo), goes out and can be named no more'² (ibid., 1074). This image of the flame is a favourite one, and was doubtless used by the Buddha himself. What it means, is best shown by the Aggi-Vacchagotta-Sutta (Majjh. Nik., No. 72). Vacchagotta, wishing to know what becomes of the Tathāgata after death, asks if he will be reborn? or if not, whether he will both reappear and not reappear? or neither reappear nor not reappear? The answer being always that his position does not fit the case, he is then enlightened by the Buddha in the following way (p. 487):

'This is, O Vaccha, a deep thing, difficult to see, difficult to discover, tranquil, excellent, unimaginal, internal, (only) to be found out by the wise; you will hardly understand it, you having different views, endurance, inclinations, effort, and teaching. Therefore, O Vaccha, I shall ask you concerning this matter; answer me as you like. Now, what do you think, Vaccha: if a fire should be burning before you, would you then know : “ This fire is burning before me ” ?

² That is: he is beyond all categories (vādapatho); ibid., 1076.

‘ I should, Master Gotama.’¹

‘ And if you, Vaccha, should be asked : “ This fire which is burning before you, through what does it burn ? ” Thus asked, Vaccha, what would be your answer ?’

‘ My answer, Master Gotama, would be : “ This fire which is burning before me, does so by seizing upon hay and wood. ” ’

‘ And now, Vaccha : if this fire before you should go out (nibbāyeyya), would you then know : “ This fire before me has gone out ” ?’

‘ I should, Master Gotama.’

‘ And if you, Vaccha, should be asked : “ This fire, gone out before you, to what direction has it gone : to the east, or west, or north, or south ? ” Asked thus, Vaccha, what would be your answer ?’

‘ This does not fit, Master Gotama, because, Master Gotama, the fire burns in consequence of its seizing upon hay and wood, and, after having completely consumed them, and not seizing upon any other, it is called “ gone out without food. ” ’

‘ Even so, O Vaccha : whatever material form (rūpaṃ) a man may declare as the Tathāgata’s, that form the Tathāgata has left behind, cut off at the root, made like the stump of a Tāla tree, made a non-existing thing, that cannot reappear in future. And the Tathāgata, O Vaccha, when thus liberated from the category of materiality, is deep, unmeasurable, difficult to fathom, like the great ocean. That he reappears, is not right ; that he does not reappear, is not right ; that he both reappears and does not reappear, is not right ; that he does neither reappear nor not reappear, is not right.’ There follow similar phrases with regard to the other Skandhas, whereupon Vaccha praises the clearness of Buddha’s speech and declares himself his follower.

This Suttanta, according to Professor Garbe,¹ was invented in order to veil the absolutely negative sense of Parinibbānaṃ. But this is an unproved hypothesis. The fact that the cream of the story is also contained in Sutta-Nipāta V., 7, and Udāna VIII., 10 (not to speak of other texts), seems rather to prove that the Buddha himself used to explain the matter in this way. At least the comparison of the dying saint with the expiring flame must be looked at as employed by the Buddha himself. And this is enough. For firstly the common Indian view is, since the oldest time, that an expiring flame does not really go out, but returns into the primitive, pure, invisible state of fire it had before its appearance as visible fire.² Secondly, there are several Upaniṣads which apply the image of the expired flame directly to the paramātman. Śvet. Up. VI., 19, for instance, speaks of the latter as of 'a fire, the fuel of which has been consumed' (dagdhêndhanam ivânalam), and Nṛsimhôtтарatāpinī-Up. 2 (middle) has the sentence: 'That Self is pure spirit, like fire after it has burnt what it had to burn' (Ayam ātmā cid-rūpa eva yathā dāhyaṃ dagdhvā'gnir). Of special importance is the third verse of the Maitreyī-Up.,³ as it shows the image in question in connection with the Yoga philosophy which is known to have influenced the Buddha more than any other system. It runs as follows: Yathā nirindhano vahniḥ sva-yonāv upaśāmyati tathā vṛtti-kṣayāc cittaṃ svayonāv upaśāmyati.

² This view is, e.g., shortly before the Buddha's time expressed in Śvet. Up. I., 13: Vahner yathā yoni-gatasya mūrtir na drśyate n'aiva ca liṅga-nāsaḥ, etc., and is still to be found in so late a text as Milindapañho IV., ed. p. 327.

³ The first chapter of which must be older than Maitrāyaṇa-Up., because it is quoted by the latter (Maitreyī-Up. I., 1; I., 2; I., 3-7, quoted in Maitrāyaṇa-Up. IV., 2; IV., 3; and VI., 34, resp.). The Upaniṣad is in the One Hundred and Eight, edited in Poona in 1895.

 'As fire for want of fuel comes to rest in its own birthplace, so for the cessation of its motions the thinking principle comes to rest in its own birthplace.'

I also cannot grant that the Brahmajālasuttanta justifies in any way the nihilistic conception of Parinibbānaṃ. For the sixty-two ditthi-gatāni are not condemned in every respect by the Buddha, but only as far as their imperfectness and exclusiveness is concerned—just as Mahāvīra declared to be 'heretics' all those who alleged the absoluteness (ekāntatva) of one of his own principles (kāla, purākṛta, puruṣakāra, etc.). This is quite evident, e.g., from the Buddha's attitude in regard to the Nevasaññi-nāsaññi-vāda. He declines this doctrine of his teacher Uddaka¹ only in so far as it claims to lead to final deliverance, but himself adopts the nevasaññānāsaññ'āyatanam in the sense of the highest heaven attainable in this world. Thus he also adopts, but not absolutely, the four sakal'ādeśās (atthi, n'atthi, atthi ca n'atthi ca, n'ev' atthi na n'atthi) of the Amarāvikkhepikā, and so on. Farther, the Aparantakappikā, or 'those who speculate on the future' (Brahmajāla-Suttanta II., 37 fl.), as well as the Sassatavādino and Ekaccasassatavādino, are throughout meant² to believe in an individual attā which lasts in time, without being altered (saccato thetato), either for ever or till its annihilation. The Buddha, however, and none but the Buddha, teaches the anattā and shows the way to deliverance from time.³ All the Saññivādino cannot be really delivered, in the Buddha's opinion, because there is no absolute extinction of individuality unless by saññāvedayitanirodho. Nor can asaññivādo, because it is—like all other ditthiyo—a product of taṇhā, lead to any other state than a very long unconscious life or dreamless sleep in the heaven of the Asaññasattas.

From this we can also understand why the Buddha, who did not acknowledge that the brahmasahavyatā, taught by the Brahmanic priests, was sufficient for salvation, did acknowledge it as leading to rebirth in the highest stages of Rūpabrahmaloko, or in Ākāśānañc'āyatanaṃ or Viññāṇānañc'āyatanaṃ, or, in the best case, in Ākiñcaññ'āyatanaṃ.¹ The Brahma (neuter) or Ātmā, as well as the Puruṣa of the Sāṃkhya-Yoga, was, as a rule, taught to be sacetano nirguṇaḥ, and, consequently, in the Buddha's conception is not beyond individuality on account of its consciousness or spirituality. Now, Infinite ākāśa was taught as the highest principle by the school of Atidhanvan Śaunaka (Chānd. Up. I., 9),² and All-pervading viññāna (prajñāna, prajñā)³ by numerous schools (Cp. Ait. Up. III., Kauṣ. Up. III., etc.). So the Buddha, who wished to embrace all systems in his own, felt compelled to construct an Arūpabrahmaloko by means of these two views and those of his two principal Yoga teachers. His idea seems to have been that those who strive to become identified, after death, with the soul of the world as infinite ākāśo or viññānaṃ respectively, attain to a state in which they have a corresponding feeling of infiniteness, without, however, having really lost their individuality.

The great stumbling-block in our problem is, to most people, the silence of Gotamo about the state of a deceased Tathāgato. If he had not regarded the 'extinction' or 'blowing out' as resulting in annihilation—Professor Hopkins asks¹—why did he hesitate to give an explanation which 'would have strengthened his influence among those to whom annihilation was not a pleasing thought'? I should like to answer by some other questions: Do you give a tinder-box as a toy to your little boy? Is there no danger at all in popularizing a doctrine like that, e.g., of Kauṣ. Up. III., 1, 1? Could not the Buddha have had the conviction² that there were very few who would not misunderstand his explanation of the most difficult of all philosophical conceptions? that most people would eagerly rush upon his metaphysics and neglect the more important thing, viz., sīla? I would further ask the objector to consider that such an explanation would have forced the Buddha to endless disputes with other teachers, and that in that case he would have necessarily become in the general opinion just that what he so much abhorred: a ditthiko or 'speculative philosopher.' The Buddha did not wish to be a philosopher; he wanted to teach a practical way to salvation, and, in doing so, he avoided intentionally whatever would have made him unsuccessful.

If the word of Spencer is true—that the history of religion is the history of the dispersonification of God—then Buddhism is the natural end of this process.³ For this is the only religion which acknowledges so absolutely the total difference between Nature and the Supernatural that it forbids its followers even to speak of the latter, without, however, denying or sceptically doubting its existence.
